WILL PROCEED WITHOUT THE CONSTITUTIONALISTS.

Some Pressure Exerted, But Not by Overtures from Mediators.

South American Envoys Preparing to Remove to Niagara Falls, Canada, May 14.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Mediation in the Mexican crisis will proceed without representation from the Constitutionalist forces in the revolution-torn republic. This definite announcement was made today by one of the South American envoys, after conferences at the State Department with Secretary Bryan.

That Carranza might change his mind and eventually come into the mediation coferences, which now will proceed on Canadian soil, over the differences between the United States and the Huerta government, was considered doubtful by the diplomats. Relating to their conference with Secretary Bryan the mediators had nothing to say, but the Secretary of State reiterated his statement that this government had not yet outlined any basis upon which it would mediate, and that thus far the United States merely has accepted the good offices of the South American envoys.

The envoys continued their sessions today, expecting to advance on various branches of the work pending the opening of the conference at Niagara Falls.

It was authoritatively stated that reports that the mediators are trying to induce Carranza to re-consider his attitude and come into the conference are not correct. Their position is that if Carranza comes back voluntarily, well and good; they will be glad to have the scope of mediation thus enlarged. It is believed that some pressure is being exerted on Carranza to come into the conference, but this is not through any further overtures by the mediators.

The envoys called at the State Department a few minutes after noon and went into conference with Secretary Bryan. After a short session with the Secretary it was announced that they had definitely decided to proceed without Carranza.

The South American mediators are perfecting plans today for removal of the conference to Niagara Falls, Canada, May 18. Telegrams were sent to a leading hotel there, now closed, asking if its opening would be advanced to accommodate them. If this is arranged the headquarters will be established there; otherwise at another hotel or private cottage, for which negotiations are under way.

The mediators will leave here Thursday, May 14, to arrange preliminaries for their opening sessions on the following Monday. The party, including secretaries, stenographers and other officials, will number about 15, not including the United States and Huerta delegates, and those of Carranza should he finally come into the deliberations.

Secretary Bryan made the announcement for the three diplomats in a brief statement which read as follows: "The mediators have notified the different parties that Niagara Falls, Canada, has been selected as the place where the mediators will confer with representatives of the different parties interested in the mediation, and that the eighteenth of May has been fixed as the date when the conference will begin."

As yet there has been no formal basis of negotiation, the United States or Huerta not having set forth their demands. It is learned that in all likelihood the United States will not confine itself now to a mere settlement of the incidents at Tampico, but aim at bringing about a solution of the whole Mexican problem so that it can recognize a constitutionally established government, which would be able to restore tranquility.

President Wilson resumed consideration of many names today, seeking trained diplomats to handle the delicate questions to be discussed in the border city. Selection of the delegation would not be hurried, it was known, the President feeling that there would be ample time for consideration of eligibles before the beginning of the conferences.

While interest in diplomatic developments overshadowed all features of the situation, changes in Mexico were not overlooked. Numerous reports stated that the Federals were mining railway tracks between Mexico City and the east coast. Huerta was said to recognize the menace of Villa's army in the north and the chance of a Zapatista attack from the south. Bombs for use against both these leaders were being turned out in the Federal arsenals.

While Zapata's reported threat to attack Mexico City yesterday did not materialize, it served to renew interest in the possibility that Zapata may emerge as a figure to be reckoned with in future happenings. The reported agrarian policies of the Zapatists were said to be scarcely consonant with Carranza's political program.

Renewal of inclusive fighting for possession of Tampico was reported by Rear Admiral Mayo early today. The investing rebels were said to have received additional artillery, and reports persisted that Villa would take personal charge of the attack.

President Wilson began to arrange his affairs so that he could leave Washington Sunday night for Brooklyn, where he will voice the nation's tribute to the dead marines and bluejackets at memorial services Monday. Secretary Daniels, on the Mayflower, will meet the Montana off Hampton

ENGLAND DELIVERS ULTIMATUM TO HAYTI.

Demand, Supported by Cruiser Suffolk Expires at 6 Tonight.

Requires Immediate Payment of Indemnity for Burned Mill.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, May 6.—The British diplomatic representative at Port au Prince today delivered an ultimatum to the Haytien government, demanding the immediate payment of an indemnity of $62,000 to a British subject in compensation for the destruction by fire of his saw mill during the Leconte revolution. The ultimatum expires at 6 o'clock this evening.

The British demand is supported by the presence here of British cruiser Suffolk. The payment of this sum of money to the British subject, named Peters, had previously been ordered by a court of arbitration.

THE POTOMAC RE-MANNED.

Abandoned Naval Tug Expected to Reach Curling Safely.

CURLING, Nf., May 6.—United States naval tug Potomac, which was abandoned in the Gulf of St. Lawrence last winter, was re-manned today by her engineer, a United States consular agent and a party of Newfoundlanders. It is expected that she will reach port safely.

It took the recovery party, which left here in power schooner Bessie Jennox, three weeks to report the Potomac. In the dash northward heavy ice floes, severe gales and snow were encountered. The men were obliged to make many detours and covered 250 miles before reaching the tug. Several members of the fire room force, who had remained here with the engineer, were carried on the Jennox and were transferred to the Potomac. A supply of coal and provisions was placed on board. The Potomac was reported as practically safe, and it was expected that she would reach port in a few days.

The Potomac was sent to the Bay of Islands last January to recover two American fishing schooners fast in the ice. Before she could haul them out of the harbor a big ice floe appeared in the gulf and the tug was imprisoned before she could reach open water. The ice fields carried the Potomac up and down the gulf for several weeks and the crew finally abandoned her and made their way to shore over the ice. It was expected that the tug would be crushed during the spring thaw, but she was frequently reported and the expedition to recover her started April 16.

The Potomac is one of a very few vessels that have been able successfully to withstand the pressure of the Gulf of St. Lawrence ice floes.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Clean-Up Squad Making an Effort to Rid City of Its Criminal Element.

Water Service Successful—A Unique Theatre—Powdered Milk—Hotel for Business Women.

(Correspondence of the News.)

NEW YORK, May 5.—The latest method of procedure devised by the police in an effort to rid New York of its criminal element is the "clean-up-squad." This has been in operation for several weeks. The squad is divided into two sections of 14 men each. One devotes its time to making it uncomfortable for professional pickpockets, and the other to thugs of the more vicious and soldier type. The police commissioner, in his report on the work of the squad, states that during three weeks 195 arrests have been made, 226 revolvers and 27 blackjacks have been taken from as many professional thieves and "gun men," while more than $5,000 worth of stolen property has been recovered. Since the clean-up-squad has been in operation the number of complaints of losses by pickpockets has dropped 50 per cent. During the pilgrimages the members of the squad to the various resorts in the city, the thing most frequently commented on is the absence of the criminals who are known to the police, but who are shrewd enough to keep out of their sight. The members of the squad attribute this condition to the fact that the new police commissioner has given an order which enables the police to use their clubs freely, when necessary, if a criminal does not obey the officer's command to "move on." Before this order was given to the police, the toughs and criminals would disregard the officer's command and oftentimes laugh at him, knowing that he was powerless. But under the new conditions they move on as soon as an officer comes in sight.

The squad does its work by inspecting districts beginning at the first district and continuing up to the Bronx. The men average two nights in each district. When the circuit has been completed they begin all over again. During the first trip the men visit all hangouts, and if they find any criminals within they warn the proprietor that he will be prosecuted for maintaining a disorderly house if any objectionable persons are found there again, the theory being that if the criminals' hangout be taken away they will have no place where they can keep out of the limelight. Therefore, they must either leave the city or stay in their rooms.

There has been considerable inquiry lately at the controller's office relative to the cost to the city of New York of its water service. The official report of experts engaged to investigate this matter shows that the gross revenues from the sale of water in the entire city during 1913 were $12,753,050.52 and the total operating expenses, including taxes, $4,622,128.86, leaving a total operating income of $8,130,921.66. Deducting from this latter amount interest on outstanding water bonds pertaining to the old water system, $3,270,451.72, and the amortization charges thereon, $1,534,158.61, a total of $4,804,610.32, leaves a net income of $3,326,311.33. No depreciation of obsolescence charges are included in this figure, although the amortization charges have been included for the reason that it serves something of the same purpose. The operating expenses for 1913 represent 36.2 per cent of the revenues, the 63.8 per cent remaining representing the net income from operation, excluding interest on investments or bonds outstanding, the proceeds of which form part of such investment, the annual contribution to the sinking funds of the city to amortize such bonds, and also any allowance for depreciation or obsolescence. The capital expenditures on account of the old water system in all the boroughs of the city, from its inception in 1832 to December 31, 1913, aggregate $194,734,432.64. The city is still obligated for the bonds issued in the acquisition of this system, to the amount of $89,084,295.05 carring an annual interest charge of $3,270,451.72.

It is expected that the new Catskill water system will be completed in 1915. This will add to the present water supply of the city 500,000,000 gallons of water daily. The cost of this new system is estimated at about $176,000,000. Adding together the interest on the bonds of the old system, $3,270,451.72, the interest on the bonds of the new system now issued, $7,819,539.56, and the interest on the bonds to be issued to complete the new system, $3,720,736.98, gives a total interest charge upon the entire water system of New York city of $14,810,788.26 per annum.

One of the most remarkable theatres in the world is now in operation on Nassau street. It is called the Women's Little Theatre, having a cast of 160 besides 11 stars of national fame. The stars are six inches high and their souls are encased in paper, but they have stunning costumes of the latest design and are good to look upon. To catch the attention of the "alert business man," as he hustles to lunch or dashes to keep an appointment, is the object of this little theatre—the Women's Own—which is being run by a number of New York women as another means of spreading the gospel of equal suffrage. The 11 stars, which, like the supporting cast and the "mob" were all created and dressed by one of the members of the women's political union, represent the 11 equal suffrage states. They open with a repertoire of three playlets and announce that others are being rehearsed.

The 11 stars made their debut several days ago in "The Land of Promise." The stage was set to show a bathing beach in the foreground, behind which appear bathing huts, suggestive of the large Eastern cities. One by one the star actresses pass across the stage and are admitted into the bathing place. As the last one enters another group of women rise from behind the barrier, carrying Votes for Women banners and looking longingly at the sacred precinct they are not permitted to enter. The second play is entitled, "Madam, Who Runs Your House?" The third is all ready, but as yet cannot be agreed upon by the leaders of the producing company. Some want to call it "Busting the Antis," while others hold for "Always an Anti" would be another thing. This is the most pretentious number in the repertoire, for it consists of five acts of two scenes each.

Milk from France in powdered form will be introduced within a few weeks on the markets of New York. It will be shipped to the city in tins, and will be sold directly to the consumer from a central distributing point. Powdered milk is obtained by a process of extracting the water from the milk without adding or taking away anything from the milk itself. When the water is added again the milk is the same as before, except that it has been sterilized in the process. It tastes the same, cream will rise and it can be kept without ice for several months. It is believed that the "dry milk" will revolutionize the milk industry. A milk expert, in discussing the new method of handling milk said that the greatest milk experts and hygienists in the world are convinced that before 20 years have passed liquid milk, on account of its dangers, will not be allowed in large cities.

It is claimed that the new rapid high temperature process of drying milk kills all disease germs found in liquid milk and the dry milk cannot communicate tuberculosis and typhoid fever. Also, that dry milk is not only safe but keeps without ice like sugar and flour and there is no waste in its use. It does not sour and does not have to be delivered a quart at a time. The dry milk will be sold in packed boxes representing twelve and one-half quarts of liquid milk.

Cosey corners in which to entertain beaux are a feature of the new hotel for business women which opened its doors several days ago in New York. A private room with a bath, and the use of the parlors, roof garden and the cosey corners can be obtained at a small rate. The management of the hotel intend to install a woman as "introducer," to bring about a cordial feeling among the guests. There is no race line and no age limit. The only requirement is a respectable character, which must be assured the manager by letters of reference, or the conversation of the applicant. Home cooking, by an old fashioned cook will also be a feature. The hotel is to be co-operative, but not philanthropic. Twelve hundred dollars' worth of shares is already owned by women who will live there. One woman bought 50 shares.

Along with the opening of this hotel comes the announcement that New York is also to have an exclusive apartment house for women in which the fairer sex will have apartments that will be "distinctly individual." The location of the site where this apartment house will be erected has not been made public, but it is reasonably certain that it will be in the vicinity of Washington Square. The building will be 12 stories high and will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Steady Rain Causes the Postponement of Several Gatherings.

[Regular Correspondence of The News.]

The steadily falling rain all day Tuesday well into the evening caused the postponement of several gatherings—St. Paul's guild, which was to have met with Mrs. Peter Malone; the Epworth League, which Rev. and Mrs. John Wadsworth were to entertain, and the parlor meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. Eunice A. Greene, the president.

Mr. James Ingham is on fishing steamer Montauk.

Mr. Grover Douglas, who has been ill for a few days at his father's home at Tiverton Four Corners, has returned to his duties as clerk at Mr. Oscar C. Manchester's.

The Brayton cottage on Turnpike road is being put in order for occupancy by its new tenants, Mr. and Mrs. William Mathews.

Miss Kate L. Durfee has let her cottage on the East Main road to Mr. Curtis B. Tallman.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Manchester of Sprague street have had as guests their son Mr. Gideon Manchester, and family, of Bristol, and Miss Alice Frawley and Miss Beatrice Manchester of New Bedford.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Carter have had as guests Mr. and Mrs. William Almy and family.

Mr. James Hussey and Mr. Manuel Dumas have gone to Patterson, N. J., to visit relatives.

Mrs. Joseph Souza of Attleboro is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Wyatt at their home on Quaker hill.

Mr. Andrew J. Kreider has returned to New Haven, after spending a few days with his parents.

Mrs. Mary Robinson, with her daughter, Miss Hattie Robinson, has been guest of her mother, Mrs. Abner C. Tallman of Tiverton.

Before the funeral of Rev. James H. Dennis, Friday at Holy Trinity in Tiverton, the body will lie in state from 12 until 2 o'clock. Bishop Perry will have charge and clergy from Providence, Newport and elsewhere will be present. Interment will be at Rochester, N. Y.

PROTECTION OF SOLDIERS.

New Hygiene, Wireless Operators and Aviators Lessen War Facilities.

[New York Times.]

War is, of course, the oldest of arts or trades, as one may choose to call it, but, though from the beginning of human history such a vast amount of study and ingenuity has been devoted by men to attack on and defense against each other, changes in the conduct of war, as of most other activities, have been slow and slight until recently. The invention of gunpowder did, indeed materially affect military operations but it can hardly be said to have revolutionized tactics as much as did the substitution of high for low power rifles, for the crossbow had almost the range and effectiveness of the old-fashioned muskets.

Our first conflict with Mexico, the civil war, and even that with Spain, were all of the old order, none of the armies in them being equipped with aero-planes or radio-telegraphy, and the latest of the three saw hardly the starting of the new hygien' as applied to soldiers, doubtless the most important innovation of the three.

So long has it been expected as a matter of course that in war the deaths from disease would outnumber by far those in battle that confident expectations to that effect are still expressed. Yet the probabilities are that even in the once terribly dangerous "hot country" of Mexico the health of our troops would not suffer seriously until the men had been worn down by many months of severe exertion under the tropic sun. They can and will be protected against about all of the malignant fevers, and the dreadful plan of keeping them encamped for weeks and months on burning sands as preparation for service in the tropics—it was called "hardening" and "acclimatization" in 1898—has been forever abandoned. We know enough now to send men into the field with strength accumulated, not exhausted.

What a few wireless operators and a few aviators can do in the way of scouting and carrying orders and reports has already been illustrated at Vera Cruz, and though the cavalryman's occupation is not yet gone, much of his old work can be better done by the new corps. Of old-type field telephones we now hear little and are soon likely to hear less or nothing, as slavery to a wire is rapidly becoming a thing of the past.

MEDICAL.

SO DECEPTIVE.

Many Newport People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Possibly it's weak kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

They're especially for weak or disordered kidneys.

Here's a Newport case.

Mrs. J. Shea, 106 Thames St., Newport, R. I., says: "I suffered from severe attacks of backache and my kidneys acted irregularly. I was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed at night. I was all run down and felt very nervous. I needed a good kidney tonic and found it in Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved the pain and distress in my back and benefited my whole system. They fixed my kidneys up all right and after I used them, I was better able to do my work. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for making me well."

Why Two Hods?

Crawford Ranges

have an Ash Hod with a Coal Hod beside it (patented). The Ash Hod is deep and catches all of the ashes. It is easy to remove and carry and doesn't spill. Both hods free. The old, clumsy ash pan is hard to remove and strews ashes over floor and stairs.

The wonderful "Single Damper" [patented] makes perfect control of fire and oven. Better than two dampers. Have you seen it?

HANDS BAD WITH SALT RHEUM

Small Water Pimples on Fingers, Itched and Burned. Painful and Sore Cracks. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in a Month.

Brooklin, Me.—"A few years ago my hands were very badly afflicted with salt rheum. At first there was an eruption of small water pimples on the inside of the fingers, and by not paying any attention to the humor my hands gradually became worse and began to itch and burn and one after another cracks appeared around the nails, on the inside of the fingers and on the bend of the joints until I was discouraged, as they were very painful and sore. I had to omit work that required putting my hands in water and could hardly work at all on account of the bleeding cracks.

"I finally procured some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I found by washing my hands in quite warm water and Cuticura Soap that they were improving. I began wrapping my fingers nightly in pieces of soft linen, after a good application of Cuticura Ointment which was very soothing. In a month my hands were completely cured and I have never been afflicted with the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. C. L. Parker, Nov. 22, 1912.

When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made. In addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant, it is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

A private room with a bath, and the use of the parlors, roof garden and the cosey corners can be obtained at a small rate. The management of the hotel intend to install a woman as "introducer," to bring about a cordial feeling among the guests. There is no race line and no age limit. The only requirement is a respectable character, which must be assured the manager by letters of reference, or the conversation of the applicant. Home cooking, by an old fashioned cook will also be a feature. The hotel is to be co-operative, but not philanthropic. Twelve hundred dollars' worth of shares is already owned by women who will live there. One woman bought 50 shares.

Along with the opening of this hotel comes the announcement that New York is also to have an exclusive apartment house for women in which the fairer sex will have apartments that will be "distinctly individual." The location of the site where this apartment house will be erected has not been made public, but it is reasonably certain that it will be in the vicinity of Washington Square. The building will be 12 stories high and will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000.

PORTSMOUTH.

Steady Rain Causes the Postponement of Several Gatherings.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The steadily falling rain all day Tuesday well into the evening caused the postponement of several gatherings—St. Paul's guild, which was to have met with Mrs. Peter Malone; the Epworth League, which Rev. and Mrs. John Wadsworth were to entertain, and the parlor meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. Eunice A. Greene, the president.

Mr. James Ingham is on fishing steamer Montauk.

Mr. Grover Douglas, who has been ill for a few days at his father's home at Tiverton Four Corners, has returned to his duties as clerk at Mr. Oscar C. Manchester's.

The Brayton cottage on Turnpike road is being put in order for occupancy by its new tenants, Mr. and Mrs. William Mathews.

Miss Kate L. Durfee has let her cottage on the East Main road to Mr. Curtis B. Tallman.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Manchester of Sprague street have had as guests their son Mr. Gideon Manchester, and family, of Bristol, and Miss Alice Frawley and Miss Beatrice Manchester of New Bedford.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Carter have had as guests Mr. and Mrs. William Almy and family.

Mr. James Hussey and Mr. Manuel Dumas have gone to Patterson, N. J., to visit relatives.

Mrs. Joseph Souza of Attleboro is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Wyatt at their home on Quaker hill.

Mr. Andrew J. Kreider has returned to New Haven, after spending a few days with his parents.

Mrs. Mary Robinson, with her daughter, Miss Hattie Robinson, has been guest of her mother, Mrs. Abner C. Tallman of Tiverton.

Before the funeral of Rev. James H. Dennis, Friday at Holy Trinity in Tiverton, the body will lie in state from 12 until 3 o'clock. Bishop Perry will have charge and clergy from Providence, Newport and elsewhere will be present. Interment will be at Rochester, N. Y.

PROTECTION OF SOLDIERS.

New Hygiene, Wireless Operators and Aviators Lessen War Facilities.

[New York Times.]

War is, of course, the oldest of arts or trades, as one may choose to call it, but, though from the beginning of human history such a vast amount of study and ingenuity has been devoted by men to attack on and defense against each other, changes in the conduct of war, as of most other activities, have been slow and slight until recently. The invention of gunpowder did, indeed materially affect military operations but it can hardly be said to have revolutionized tactics as much as did the substitution of high for low power rifles, for the crossbow had almost the range and effectiveness of the old-fashioned muskets.

Our first conflict with Mexico, the Civil war, and even that with Spain, were all of the old order, none of the armies in them being equipped with aero-planes or radio-telegraphy, and the latest of the three saw hardly the starting of the new hygiene as applied to soldiers, doubtless the most important innovation of the three.

So long has it been expected as a matter of course that in war the deaths from disease would outnumber by far those in battle that confident expectations to that effect are still expressed. Yet the probabilities are that even in the once terribly dangerous "hot country" of Mexico the health of our troops would not suffer seriously until the men had been worn down by many months of severe exertion under the tropic sun. They can and will be protected against about all of the malignant fevers, and the dreadful plan of keeping them encamped for weeks and months on burning sands as preparation for service in the tropics—it was called "hardening" and "acclimatization" in 1898—has been forever abandoned. We know enough now to send men into the field with strength accumulated, not exhausted.

What a few wireless operators and a few aviators can do in the way of scouting and carrying orders and reports has already been illustrated at Vera Cruz, and though the cavalryman's occupation is not yet gone, much of his old work can be better done by the new corps. Of old-type field telephones we now hear little and are soon likely to hear less or nothing, as slavery to a wire is rapidly becoming a thing of the past.

SO DECEPTIVE.

Many Newport People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.
It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.
Possibly it's weak kidneys.
That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

ordered kidneys.

They're especially for weak or disordered kidneys.
Here's a Newport case.

Mrs. J. Shea, 106 Thames St., Newport, R. I., says: "I suffered from severe attacks of backache and my kidneys acted irregularly. I was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed at night. I was all run down and felt very nervous. I needed a good kidney tonic and found it in Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved the pain and distress in my back and benefited my whole system. They fixed my kidneys up all right and after I used them I was better able to do my work. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for making me well."

Why Two Hods?

Crawford Ranges

have an Ash Hod with a Coal Hod beside it (patented). The Ash Hod is deep and catches all of the ashes. It is easy to remove and carry and doesn't spill. Both hods free. The old, clumsy ash pan is hard to remove and strews ashes over floor and stairs.

The wonderful "Single Damper" [patented] makes perfect control of fire and oven. Better than two dampers. Have you seen it?

Gas ovens if desired; end [single] or elevated [double].

HANDS BAD WITH SALT RHEUM

Small Water Pimples on Fingers, Itched and Burned. Painful and Sore Cracks. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in a Month.

Brooklin, Me.—"A few years ago my hands were very badly afflicted with salt rheum. At first there was an eruption of small water pimples on the inside of the fingers, and by not paying any attention to the humor my hands gradually became worse and began to itch and burn and one after another cracks appeared around the nails, on the inside of the fingers and on the bend of the joints until I was discouraged as they were very painful and sore. I had to omit work that required putting my hands in water and could hardly work at all on account of the bleeding cracks.

"I finally procured some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I found by washing my hands in quite warm water and Cuticura Soap that they were improving. I began wrapping my fingers nightly in pieces of soft linen, after a good application of Cuticura Ointment which was very soothing. In a month my hands were completely cured and I have never been afflicted with the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. C. L. Parker, Nov. 22, 1912.

When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made. In addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant, it is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

APPROVED BY THE HOUSE.

Two-Battleship Program Aided by Support of the Republicans.

Aided by the almost solid support of the Republicans, the two-battleship program, recommended by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, went through the House Friday despite the fact that a heavy Democratic vote was cast against it.

A motion made by Representative Frank Buchanan, Democrat, of Illinois, to substitute one battleship for two, was voted down, 91 to 148. Of the 91 votes cast for one ship all but half a dozen were by Democrats, including Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic leader of the House, and Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania.

An amendment offered by Representative Samuel A. Witherspoon against any battleships was beaten, 41 to 152.

This is the first time in two years that a two-battleship program has been successful in the House. The fact that the administration was in favor of it evidently did not weigh so heavily with Democrats as had been expected. If the same proportion of Republicans had voted against the measure as of the Democrats the two-ship proposal would have been overwhelmingly defeated. A majority of the Democratic leaders voted against two ships.

The naval bill was not completed. Consideration of the remainder of the building program will be resumed Thursday, when there probably will be a record vote on the battleship question.

Before the discussion on the battleship item Representative Lemuel P. Padgett, chairman of the naval committee, attempted to re-open the provision for the increase in the chaplains' corps, but this was objected to by Representative W. H. Stafford of Wisconsin.

Mr. Padgett then offered an amendment to the section of the bill dealing with the bureau of steam engineering for an appropriation of $400,000 for sites, towers and high power wireless apparatus for wireless stations at Samoa, Panama, San Diego, Hawaii and the Philippines. This amendment was agreed to without discussion.

CONTROL OF WAR NEWS.

Censorship at the Front Prevents Distorted and Sensational Stories.

War correspondents are finding themselves in quite a different position during the present trouble than at the time of the war with Spain. No free lances are allowed within the lines, as papers are called upon to supply reliable men and must give bond for a strict following of the rules laid down for their control. On the other hand, the government makes it easier for them to obtain the news. Real news, and that which will not work against the interest of the fighting force, is demanded and censorship at the front prevents distorted and sensational stories. Hence some papers of a certain class are finding the conditions such that they do not care to send men with the army.

Correspondents at the front take the oath of allegiance, wear the uniform, have the tentage, horsing and messing of officers, and are distinguished by a white sleeve band with a letter "C" on it, that they may be identified by all whom they meet. They are allowed to carry small hand cameras; moving picture cameras are barred, as are professional photographers. The army will have its own corps of photographers to make its records, and these photographs may be purchased by papers.

The plan for the control of war news was worked out some time since by the War Department and representatives of many of the larger papers of repute, and is believed to be for the good of all, each recognizing that the others have rights which frequently were not considered during the war with Spain. The actual working out of the plan is now on, and it is safe to say that some reports which are being printed and some moving pictures which will be displayed do not come from the front.

CAPTAIN ROGERS' RECORD.

Advancement to Rear Admiral and Retirement Within Three Hours.

From captain to rear admiral and honorable retirement within three hours, a new record for "speed" in the navy, was the experience recently of Charles Curtis Rogers, U. S. N., for the past two years commandant at the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H. From 1:30 to 4:30, Rogers's rear admiral's flag waved proudly in the breeze from the navy yard administration building, the only official recognition made of his advancement. Then came from Washington his notification of honorable retirement because of disability, by order of the navy medical board. The flag was then hauled down. Admiral Rogers is 60 years old and would have served two years more in the ordinary course.

About three months ago Captain Rogers took examinations for advancement to rear admiral at Washington and passed all the requirements except in health. Since then he has been at the navy hospital at Washington, until he returned to Portsmouth. He headed the list of captains in the navy. He has been in the service since June 8, 1872, enlisting from Tennessee. He is a native of Tennessee.

"POLITICAL CONTROL."

[Letter in New York Tribune.]

When you have occasion to refer in your columns to that abominable child of socialism, that wolf in sheep's clothing called by the euphemistic title of government ownership, will you not call it by its rightful name of political control?

Theodore Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, says the people of the country will never stand for anything that takes the control of our public utilities away from the private citizens and places them in the hands of politicians. May-be they will not, but again may-be they will.

When one sees how New York state has been made to blossom as the rose and yield a bounteous crop of graft and rake-off to a crowd of piratical politicians with nothing but paving stones and macadam roads to juggle, what might they not do if they could get their clutches on the railroads of the country? It would be a big plum for them.

The stockholders who have put their savings into a few shares of railroad stock—who cares about them? Surely not "the government."

WRIGHT HAMPERED.

Connecticut Aircraft Company to Buy Construction Patent Rights.

One of the most important moves ever made in the aviation industry in America is pending in New Haven in negotiations for the virtual purchase of the Wright patent rights to aeroplane construction in this country by the Connecticut Aircraft Company of that city. Under the terms of the deal the Wright Company at Dayton will, so far as practical purposes are concerned, go out of business, and will turn over to the Connecticut corporation not only the work of building machines, but of licensing all others who wish to build aeroplanes under the Wright patents.

For some time Orville Wright has been desirous of escaping from the maze of litigation and business which has hampered his work along the scientific lines of aviation, and the present arrangement is the outcome. The terms provide that a minimum sum of $75,000 annually will be paid to the Wright Company by the new firm, irrespective of the number of machines produced. The license fee per aeroplane is to be $1,000, and should the yearly production exceed 75 the Wright Company is to get an additional fee for each.

THE CALL OF BATTLE.

(Walter Millis, in the Delphian.)

Oh, the Gallic hills are calling,
And the fields of farther Gaul,
And the German rivers running
Send back the far-flung call,
Where the northern swords are playing,
And the Gallic war-trumps braying,
And the Roman Eagles tossing
Victorious, over all.

From the iron outposts standing
On the farthest north frontier,
Where the iron shields are clanking,
And the enemy is near,
Where the naked swords are gleaming,
And the battle standards streaming,
And the very heavens answer
To the Roman soldiers' cheer.

The call of war is sounding,
In the narrow streets of Rome,
Drawing forth the Roman youth
From peaceful hearth and home,
For they hear the armor rattle,
For they feel the lust of battle,
And they long to take their places
In the centuries of Rome!

LONDON PROFESSIONAL BEGGARS.

[London Chronicle.]

There are many professional beggars in London who have their own copyright methods of extracting coin from a sympathetic and credulous public. You may perhaps have come across the distressed governess out of situation who asks you in Oxford street the way to walk to Turnham Green and is so staggered at the distance that you ask her to accept the 'bus fare. Then there is the trans-Atlantic journalist stranded in the metropolis. He is too proud to seek aid from some of his millionaire friends at the Cecil but if you could?—and perhaps you do. Most artistic of all mendicants is the old lady of grandmotherly appearance dressed in black silk. She is up in London for the day, and some one has robbed her of her purse. She had called on her solicitor, but unfortunately he was out. What shall she do? You give her the train fare and she promises to send the money on to you if you will give her your address. But if you are wise you decline, and thus escape a shoal of begging letters. For addresses of benevolent persons have a market value among the cadging fraternity.

CLOSE POOL MATCH.

At the Moose Club Tuesday evening the Knights of Columbus team, Albert Commette and D. E. Sullivan, defeated the Moose team, O'Connell and Fitzgerald, 100 to 97, in one of the most exciting pool matches ever played at the club. The contest was close from beginning to end and at no time was there a difference of eight points between the scores. A large number of spectators watched the play with increasing interest and cheered their favorites on to victory.

THE RESOLUTE'S NEW RIG.

Fixed Topmast Will Not be Telescoped or Housed in Bad Weather.

A fixed topmast instead of a telescopic topmast for cup sloop Resolute is the arrangement of tophamper under which the yacht will appear when she is again in full rig and in condition for further trials in the bay. The rig looks as near like a pole mast as could possibly be, but there is a joint with two feet of the topmast stepped in the head of the mainmast. There will be no telescoping of the topmast hereafter, nor will there be any provision for housing it, should stress of weather require the taking down of an upper spar. The Resolute will carry it no matter what the condition of the weather.

From what is learned, the Resolute may not be ready to be re-fitted again before Saturday. There was a delay Tuesday in putting the yacht out on the marine railway, as it is being used by 50-foot racing sloop Barbara, owned by Payne Whitney of New York. The Barbara is having a wheel attached to her steering gear instead of a tiller. The cockpit is also being enlarged to twice its former capacity.

FINDS MANY JEWELS.

Professor Butler Thinks Quest for Treasures of Croesus Will Triumph.

The finding of buried gems in Sardis, Asia Minor, announced in a message from Professor Howard C. Butler of Croton Falls, who is in quest of the buried treasures of Croesus, leads him to believe his efforts are at last rewarded. Dr. Butler, who is a close friend of President Wilson, was a professor of art and archaeology at Princeton University when President Wilson was head of the faculty.

He has about 300 Turks and Greeks excavating under his direction. In an old tomb just uncovered Professor Butler found gold jewelry, chains of beads, diamond earrings and pendants. Besides, beautiful vases, sections of statuary and many other relics are being dug up. Some tablets with hieroglyphics that will aid in deciphering the Lydian alphabet were also discovered. If the excavators go deep enough Professor Butler believes they will get into the palace and buried treasure chest of Croesus, the Rockefeller of his age.

A BENEFIT TO COMMUNITY.

Motor Car Responsible for the Decrease of Flies.

If Lord Montague, editor of The Car, a leading British motoring magazine, is correct in his information as to the decrease in number of house flies in large cities, and reliable in his deduction that this is caused by the widespread use of motor cars, the automobile has another excellent reason for being, in addition to its usefulness and convenience as a vehicle. In a recent issue Lord Montague says:

"No dweller in London, or any other large city, can have helped noticing that the number of house flies is diminishing every year in a most welcome fashion. The fact is that in former old days there was no such favorable breeding ground as in the horse mews (and in what was in the mews), and the horse and what it implies was really the cause of flies in cities. But since motor cars have come into existence, and have so largely replaced the horse, flies have no longer the same opportunity for breding, and the result is that in London, Paris and other large centres, where motor vehicles preponderate the fly is becoming less of a nuisance. The conveyance of disease is thereby largely diminished and the number of cases of infectious and contagious illness in the community has been reduced. Thus the motor car has indirectly conferred a great benefit upon the community. The scavenging of streets, also, is nothing like so great an expense as it used to be; in fact, the mere washing once in every 24 hours is generally ample. There are considerably fewer sore throats than there used to be, and better general health prevails."

Rice with Apples.

Cook together in a double boiler one pint of milk, two-thirds cupful of well-washed rice, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful sugar. When half done add one tablespoonful butter. Peel, core and slice sufficient apples to measure one pint. When all the milk is absorbed, take rice from fire and arrange with the apples in layers in a buttered dish, having first and last layers rice. Cover closely and place in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Uncover, pour over the top one tablespoonful of melted butter, brown, and serve with a clear sauce.

Banana Pie.

Line a deep earthern pie dish with the best puff pastry. Fill with sliced bananas, sugar and orange juice. Sift a dessertspoonful of cornstarch over top and bake until a light brown. Cover with meringue flavored with orange juice.

HARD TO EXPLAIN.

[Lippincott's.]

Mrs. Flynn, who does cleaning in one of the city office buildings, had been absent from her duties for several days. Upon her return, her employer asked her the reason for her absence.

"Sure, sor, I've bin carin' for one of me sick children," she replied.

"And, how many children have you, Mrs. Flynn?" he asked.

"Nine in all," she replied, with a brave attempt at a smile. "Folve by the third wife of me second husband; four by the second wife of me furst."

APPROVED BY THE HOUSE.

Two-Battleship Program Aided by Support of the Republicans.

Aided by the almost solid support of the Republicans, the five-battleship program, recommended by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, went through the House Friday despite the fact that a heavy Democratic vote was cast against it.

A motion made by Representative Frank Buchanan, Democrat, of Illinois, to substitute one battleship for five was voted down, 91 to 148. Of the 91 votes cast for one ship all but half a dozen were by Democrats, including Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic leader of the House, and Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania.

An amendment offered by Representative Samuel A. Witherspoon against any battleships was beaten, 11 to 152.

This is the first time in two years that a two-battleship program has been successful in the House. The fact that the administration was in favor of it evidently did not weigh heavily with Democrats as had been expected. If the same proportion of Republicans had voted against the measure as of the Democrats the five-ship proposal would have been overwhelmingly defeated. A majority of the Democratic leaders voted against two ships.

The naval bill was not completed. Consideration of the remainder of the building program will be resumed Thursday, when there probably will be a record vote on the battleship question.

Before the discussion on the battleship item Representative Lemuel P. Padgett, chairman of the naval committee, attempted to re-open the provision for the increase in the engineers' corps, but this was objected to by Representative W. H. Stafford of Wisconsin.

Mr. Padgett then offered an amendment to the section of the bill dealing with the bureau of steam engineering for an appropriation of $400,000 for sites, towers and high power wireless apparatus for wireless stations at Samoa, Panama, San Diego, Hawaii and the Philippines. This amendment was agreed to without discussion.

CONTROL OF WAR NEWS.

Censorship at the Front Prevents Distorted and Sensational Stories.

War correspondents are finding themselves in quite a different position during the present trouble than at the time of the war with Spain. No free lances are allowed within the lines, as papers are called upon to supply reliable men and must give bond for a strict following of the rules laid down for their control. On the other hand, the government makes it easier for them to obtain the news. Real news, and that which will not work against the interest of the fighting force, is demanded and censorship at the front prevents distorted and sensational stories. Hence some papers of a certain class are finding the conditions such that they do not care to send men with the army.

Correspondents at the front take the oath of allegiance, wear the uniform, have the tentage, horsing and messing of officers, and are distinguished by a white sleeve band with a letter "C" on it, that they may be identified by all whom they meet. They are allowed to carry small hand cameras; moving picture cameras are barred, as are professional photographers. The army will have its own corps of photographers to make its records, and these photographs may be purchased by papers.

The plan for the control of war news was worked out some time since by the War Department and representatives of many of the larger papers of repute, and is believed to be for the good of all, each recognizing that the others have rights which frequently were not considered during the war with Spain. The actual working out of the plan is now on, and it is safe to say that some reports which are being printed and some moving pictures which will be displayed do not come from the front.

CAPTAIN ROGERS' RECORD.

Advancement to Rear Admiral and Retirement Within Three Hours.

From captain to rear admiral and honorable retirement within three hours, a new record for "speed" in the navy, was the experience recently of Charles Curtis Rogers, U. S. N., for the past two years commandant at the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H. From 1:30 to 4:30, Rogers's rear admiral's flag waved proudly in the breeze from the navy yard administration building, the only official recognition made of his advancement. Then came from Washington his notification of honorable retirement because of disability, by order of the navy medical board. The flag was then hauled down. Admiral Rogers is 60 years old and would have served two years more in the ordinary course.

About three months ago Captain Rogers took examinations for advancement to rear admiral at Washington and passed all the requirements except in health. Since then he has been at the navy hospital at Washington, until he returned to Portsmouth. He headed the list of captains in the navy. He has been in the service since June 8, 1872, enlisting from Tennessee. He is a native of Tennessee.

"POLITICAL CONTROL."

[Letter in New York Tribune.]

When you have occasion to refer in your columns to that abominable child of socialism, that wolf in sheep's clothing called by the euphemistic title of government ownership, will you not call it by its rightful name of political control?

Theodore Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, says the people of the country will never stand for anything that takes the control of our public utilities away from the private citizens and places them in the hands of politicians. May-be they will not. But again may-be they will.

When one sees how New York state has been made to blossom as the rose and yield a bounteous crop of graft as I rake-off to a crowd of piratical politicians with nothing but paving stones and macadam roads to juggle, what might they not do if they could get their clutches on the railroads of the country? It would be a big plum for them.

The stockholders who have put their savings into a few shares of railroad stock—who cares about them? Sure—not the government."

WRIGHT HAMPERED.

Connecticut Aircraft Company to Buy Construction Patent Rights.

One of the most important moves ever made in the aviation industry in America is pending in New Haven in negotiations for the virtual purchase of the Wright patent rights to aeroplane construction in this country by the Connecticut Aircraft Company of that city. Under the terms of the deal the Wright Company at Dayton will, so far as practical purposes are concerned, go out of business, and will turn over to the Connecticut corporation not only the work of building machines, but of licensing all others who wish to build aeroplanes under the Wright patents.

For some time Orville Wright has been desirous of escaping from the maze of litigation and business which has hampered his work along the scientific lines of aviation, and the present arrangement is the outcome. The terms provide that a minimum sum of $75,000 annually will be paid to the Wright Company by the new firm, irrespective of the number of machines produced. The license fee per aeroplane is to be $1,000, and should the yearly production exceed 75 the Wright Company is to get an additional fee for each.

THE CALL OF BATTLE.

(Walter Millis, in the Delphian.)

Oh, the Gallic hills are calling,
And the fields of farther Gaul,
And the German rivers running
Send back the far-flung call,
Where the northern swords are playing,
And the Gallic war-trumps braying,
And the Roman Eagles tossing
Victorious, over all.

From the iron outposts standing
On the farthest north frontier,
Where the iron shields are clanking,
And the enemy is near,
Where the naked swords are gleaming,
And the battle standards screaming,
And the very heavens answer
To the Roman soldiers' cheer.

The call of war is sounding,
In the narrow streets of Rome,
Drawing forth the Roman youth
From peaceful hearth and home.
For they hear the armor rattle,
For they feel the lust of battle,
And they long to take their places
In the centuries of Rome!

LONDON PROFESSIONAL BEGGARS.

[London Chronicle.]

There are many professional beggars in London who have their own copyright methods of extracting coin from a sympathetic and credulous public. You may perhaps have come across the distressed governess out of situation who asks you in Oxford street the way to walk to Turnham Green and is so staggered at the distance that you ask her to accept the 'bus fare. Then there is the trans-Atlantic journalist stranded in the metropolis. He is too proud to seek aid from some of his millionaire friends at the Cecil but if you could?—and perhaps you do. Most artistic of all mendicants is the old lady of grandmotherly appearance dressed in black silk. She is up in London for the day, and some one has robbed her of her purse. She had called on her solicitor, but unfortunately he was out. What shall she do? You give her the train fare and she promises to send the money on to you if you will give her your address. But if you are wise you decline, and thus escape a shoal of begging letters. For addresses of benevolent persons have a market value among the cadging fraternity.

CLOSE POOL MATCH.

At the Moose Club Tuesday evening the Knights of Columbus team, Albert Commette and D. E. Sullivan, defeated the Moose team, O'Connell and Fitzgerald, 100 to 97, in one of the most exciting pool matches ever played at the club. The contest was close from beginning to end and at no time was there a difference of eight points between the scores. A large number of spectators watched the play with increasing interest and cheered their favorites on to victory.

THE RESOLUTE'S NEW RIG.

Fixed Topmast Will Not be Telescoped or Housed in Bad Weather.

A fixed topmast instead of a telescopic topmast for cup sloop Resolute is the arrangement of tophamper under which the yacht will appear when she is again in full rig and in condition for further trials in the bay. The rig looks as near like a pole mast as could possibly be, but there is a joint with two feet of the topmast stepped in the head of the mainmast. There will be no telescoping of the topmast hereafter, nor will there be any provision for housing it, should stress of weather require the taking down of an upper spar. The Resolute will carry it no matter what the condition of the weather.

From what is learned, the Resolute may not be ready to be re-fitted again before Saturday. There was a delay Tuesday in putting the yacht out on the marine railway, as it is being used by 50-foot racing sloop Barbara, owned by Payne Whitney of New York. The Barbara is having a wheel attached to her steering gear instead of a tiller. The cockpit is also being enlarged to twice its former capacity.

FINDS MANY JEWELS.

Professor Butler Thinks Quest for Treasures of Croesus Will Triumph.

The finding of buried gems in Sardis, Asia Minor, announced in a message from Professor Howard C. Butler of Croton Falls, who is in quest of the buried treasures of Croesus, leads him to believe his efforts are at last rewarded. Dr. Butler, who is a close friend of President Wilson, was a professor of art and archaeology at Princeton University when President Wilson was head of the faculty.

He has about 300 Turks and Greeks excavating under his direction. In an old tomb just uncovered Professor Butler found gold jewelry, chains of beads, diamond earrings and pendants. Besides, beautiful vases, sections of statuary and many other relics are being dug up. Some tablets with hieroglyphics that will aid in deciphering the Lydian alphabet were also discovered. If the excavators go deep enough Professor Butler believes they will get into the palace and buried treasure chest of Croesus, the Rockefeller of his age.

A BENEFIT TO COMMUNITY.

Motor Car Responsible for the Decrease of Flies.

If Lord Montague, editor of The Car, a leading British motoring magazine, is correct in his information as to the decrease in number of house flies in large cities, and reliable in his deduction that this is caused by the widespread use of motor cars, then the automobile has another excellent reason for being, in addition to its usefulness and convenience as a vehicle. In a recent issue Lord Montague says:

"No dweller in London, or any other large city, can have helped noticing that the number of house flies is diminishing every year in a most welcome fashion. The fact is that in former old days there was no such favorable breeding-ground as in the horse mews (and in what was in the mews), and the horse and what it implies was really the cause of flies in cities. But since motor cars have come into existence, and have so largely replaced the horse, flies have no longer the same opportunity for breeding, and the result is that in London, Paris and other large centres, where motor vehicles preponderate the fly is becoming less of a nuisance. The conveyance of disease is thereby largely diminished and the number of cases of infectious and contagious illness in the community has been reduced. Thus the motor car has indirectly conferred a great benefit upon the community. The scavenging of streets, also, is nothing like so great an expense as it used to be; in fact, the mere washing once in every 24 hours is generally ample. There are considerably fewer sore throats than there used to be, and better general health prevails."

Rice with Apples.

Cook together in a double boiler one pint of milk, two-thirds cupful of well-washed rice, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful sugar. When half done add one tablespoonful butter. Peel, core and slice sufficient apples to measure one pint. When all the milk is absorbed, take rice from fire and arrange with the apples in layers in a buttered dish, having first and last layers rice. Cover closely and place in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Uncover, pour over the top one tablespoonful of melted butter, brown, and serve with a clear sauce.

Banana Pie.

Line a deep earthern pie dish with the best puff pastry. Fill with sliced bananas, sugar and orange juice. Sift a dessertspoonful of cornstarch over top and bake until a light brown. Cover with meringue flavored with orange juice.

HARD TO EXPLAIN.

[Lippincott's.]

Mrs Flynn, who does cleaning in one of the city office buildings, had been absent from her duties for several days. Upon her return, her employer asked her the reason for her absence.

"Sure, sor, I've bin carin' for one of me sick children," she replied.

"And how many children have you, Mrs. Flynn?" he asked.

"Nine in all," she replied, with a brave attempt at a smile. "Folve by the third wife of me second husband; four by the second wife of me first."

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station.

A "PUPPET OF THE INTERESTS."

Wilson may have made a mistake in not recognizing Huerta a year ago as a president de facto, and may have been precipitate in the occupation of Vera Cruz. These are subjects on which men may differ legitimately, but of all the foolish and wicked accusations against the President, the foolishest and the wickedest is that made by Bouck White, a New York socialist, graduate of Harvard and of Union Theological Seminary, that the President is the "puppet of the interests."

If "the interests" are the capitalists whom Porfirio Diaz invited to Mexico, and whose enterprises he protected and whose investments gave the country prosperity, the President's refusal to recognize Huerta and his action in the Tampico matter are conclusive evidence that he is not serving them. Huerta is the product of an insurrection in which the younger Diaz was the chief factor, though they quarreled as soon as Huerta landed in power and decided that he would like to stay there. Obviously "the interests" desire the protection of their property and the maintenance of order with a strong arm. They desire the federal government sustained and insurrections put down.

Major Gillette, formerly of the army and now interested in copper mines in Mexico, in many addresses has denounced the course of the President. Robert T. Kerr, who was for a day or two, by appointment of Admiral Fletcher, civil governor of Vera Cruz, has been attorney for several large Mexican corporations and in a series of lectures in Chicago severely denounced the course of the President and the Secretary of State and championed Huerta. He said Mexico was fit only for a "benefficent despotism," and complained that the President was aiding the Constitutionalists against Huerta.

It needs no argument to show that "the interests" would use their influence for the support of a strong central government, which would preserve order and encourage industrial development, as Porfirio Diaz did. That is exactly what Wilson has not done. Whether he has always been wise or not, he has not given recognition or moral support to the military dictator who would have imitated Diaz so far as he was able.

AMMONS AS A SCAPEGOAT.

All the labor unionists, and all the politicians who look for votes in the mining districts, are determined to impeach Governor Ammons, not for his failure to suppress rioting but for the means employed. It is quite possible that Ammons was not the man for the emergency. It is highly probable that the state troops were vindictive and savage and that some of the officers deserve punishment. Yet the fact remains that the rioters used force first, that the National Guard was needed in the mining district to preserve order and protect property and men who were willing to work, and that when most of the state troops were withdrawn it seemed to the strikers at Ludlow an opportune moment to make an attack on the rest. The militia retaliated, and probably some of them were guilty of cruelty and brutality, but the rioters began the savagery and kept it up. After their attack on the militia at Ludlow they drove non-union men and their wives and children into a mine in Aguilar and sealed the mouth of the mine with explosives.

Some of the militia officers ought to be tried, and perhaps they ought to be punished. There is still a great lack of specific information. If Governor Ammons shall be impeached it may be an effective method of bringing out all the facts, but the impeachment should not be based merely on what the militia did; it should be based also on the violence of the rioters, which the governor of the state should have prevented, if he had any means of doing so.

Every great strike is stained by acts of rioting, and when the police or the sheriff's posse or the state troops or the United States army puts down the rioting there is a tremendous howl from the strikers and their sympathizers against the force which acted, but never a word from that quarter about the conduct of the rioters. Their violence is extenuated, and the force used against them is denounced as the hirelings of capitalists and the bloodthirsty tools of despots. The people who denounce privilege insist that labor unionists are privileged to use violence, which the community has no right to use against them.

EAGER FOR AN EDUCATION.

The author of a magazine article on the College of the City of New York recently made some statements which are interesting and surprising, in connection with the attitude of the students toward the institution and their studies. He says the young men need to be driven to their outdoor games, because they prefer to devote all their time to their studies. That certainly is a novel condition in any institution of learning as a common rule. In most and perhaps all such places there are a few so devoted to study that they do not care for games, but prefer to give their time to the work which to them fulfills all the functions of play so far as enjoyment is concerned. At this college, it is stated, the teachers do not insist that a student shall take a certain number of courses each term and study a fixed number of hours for each course, but are obliged to restrict the number of courses and of hours and the office of the dean is besieged every term by a long line of students eagerly entreating to be allowed to add to their schedules.

This eagerness is so strong that the faculty is forced to set a limit, so that only a certain amount of work at home or outside of college hours shall be done in each subject. This passion for study is the dominant characteristic of the institution. It is declared, for the students are not chiefly boys, but young men who have learned by hard experience the value of education and the cost of every hour of squandered time. They know just what they desire and come with the determination to gain it in the shortest possible time. In other colleges men are debarred from athletics because of deficiency in their studies, but here they are debarred from their studies because of deficiencies in athletics. This is a wholesome condition when the class of students is taken into consideration, for it means an appreciation of education which is stimulating and influential. It is inspiring to see such devotion to this matter and to note the sacrifices these students are also glad to make in order to gain what they have lacked in earlier life.

THE SOCIOLOGICAL SPER.

Helen Keller says "there is always hope for improvement when people are willing and try to understand," and that is one of the most hopeful signs in regard to sociological work. So many problems are involved in that work and they are so puzzling in their nature that there would inevitably be much discouragement if those most active in it were not of an optimistic temperament, and if it were not also for the further fact that those leaders in efforts to improve the condition of those who need help are "willing and try to understand." The annual sociological conference is near at hand, when once more these men and women who are devoting their lives to the solution of problems affecting the welfare of the people, and to working out those problems as rapidly as is possible, will gather, compare notes, report progress, make recommendations and in a general and also a very specific way discuss the difficulties encountered and the means which may be employed to overcome those difficulties.

Every year, as this meeting is held, the fact is made prominent that it is the disposition and the endeavor to understand which give hope in this work, which has so many discouraging aspects and yet with them also so many which are encouraging. The spirit of willingness to labor and determination to understand the problems, the conditions and the principles which underlie their task is the strongest factor in keeping them at it and making them successful in it. Without that spirit interest would flag, enthusiasm would wane and effort would relax; with it these workers keep their faith, their hope and their purpose, and gradually advance in their endeavors to make the world better and improve the conditions under which people live. It is a wide field which they cover, with many different aspects, but it challenges all the enthusiasm and determination of those who are busy in it, and it brings after all rich rewards of satisfaction and contentment.

The English sporting papers are not very well pleased with the showing which the polo team selected to play for the international trophy against the Americans is making in its first matches, and the suggestion is made that it would be wise to consider whether the trip to the United States should not be postponed a year, "as a bad failure by the team would do much harm." The Pall Mall Gazette says that "on such form as it displayed Monday the British team does not stand a 100 to 1 chance. At present it lacks both a leader and confidence, essentials to its success in America." The American players, however, will keep on practicing.

Governor Blease of South Carolina, whose term of office has been replete with unusual features which brought down on his head severe criticism, has experienced a rather decisive recall in the election of delegates to his party convention. He desired to obtain control of the convention, to prevent the adoption of new party rules which would have the effect of disfranchising many of his supporters among the cotton mill workers and tenant farmers, and might seriously embarrass him in his race for the United States Senate. He lost in several counties in which he thought he was strong and failed to carry his home county. His opponents will have a large majority against him in the convention. It is just as well.

The House judiciary committee, which has voted to report "without recommendation" the Hobson resolution submitting to the state legislatures a Constitutional amendment providing for nation-wide prohibition and the Mondell resolution providing for universal woman suffrage, is not in favor of either resolution. It has reported them because of the criticism that the proposed amendments were being "chloroformed" by the committee. The members of the House of Representatives must now declare themselves on these two questions and it is said that many of them not like the prospect.

After all, the British government has finally consented to re-consider its decision not to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and will probably decide that Great Britain shall be officially represented, although in a distinctly modified form. The government does not wish to change its mind, but evidently thinks it can give some complimentary acceptance of the invitation to participate if it does not commit the nation to any great expenditure of money.

The superintendent of police in Providence has issued an order to prevent the distribution of sample boxes of pills and other so-called medicines at houses, basing his action on the belief that many of these fall into the hands of children, with disastrous results. In a number of cases children have been made seriously ill from these samples, and the police have come to the conclusion that it is time the practice were stopped. It certainly is.

The announcement by Senator Beeckman of his candidacy for governor as the nominee of the Republican party will be a surprise to few if any. He has long been in line for this promotion, and apparently thinks this the favorable opportunity to win the coveted prize. What attitude the party leaders, not to say the rank and file, will take in the matter remains to be seen. It is a long time to the date of the convention and the election.

It is hardly to be expected that New Shoreham, with a town debt of $172,000, could devote more than $3,500 to its schools and $1500 for highways, even if the school appropriation is increased by $1,500 this year. The town, with a population of 1,311, has a per capita debt exceeding $130.

The last days of the session of the General Assembly were not marked by the passage of so many undesirable measures as usual. This was not, however, because of the lack of such bills, but because of the active opposition of a few of the legislators and others to the schemes.

These first few days of spring warmth arouse the dormant flies. Every hour during the first two weeks of May is valuable for prevention. Flies which seem slow in flight are just as powerful for the summer's swarm, and are more easily put out of the supply source. Now is the time when a swat is fertile for prevention.

The state breathes easier now that the General Assembly has adjourned.

GOETHALS THE RIGHT MAN IN THE RIGHT PLACE.

[Philadelphia Record.]

Colonel Goethals evidently has as strong a grip on the economic features of the Panama canal as he has on the engineering work. His views in opposition to exempting American vessels from tolls are admirably brief, but they contain more meat than columns of the rubbishy stuff published about truckling to Great Britain and building up the American merchant marine. Coastwise vessels, as he points out, are "already fully protected and not in need of subsidy." The colonel is evidently the right man in the right place. If any one person can assist materially toward making the canal a success, financially and in every other way, he is clearly that person.

MR. FORD MEANS WELL.

Employes, However, Will Want to Live Their Lives in Their Own Way.

[William Marion Reedy, in The Minor, St. Louis.]

Mr. Henry Ford, the motor man, who gained fame by establishing the $5 per day minimum wage in his Detroit factory, is a true philanthropist. There may have been some doubt of it before, but there can't be after reading the latest news from his headquarters. His workmen are finding out that Mr. Ford wants more than their work and time. They must live in houses to suit him. They must not take in boarders if they are married. If they are boarders they must be good boarders. They must keep good hours. They must not double up to save money. Of course they must not be "gay." They must live as Mr. Ford or his inspectors want them to live in every respect. He won't have anything going on in anybody's home that he doesn't approve of. If he finds anything wrong, they lose their jobs.

Now Mr. Ford means well. All his rules and regulations as reported in the papers have for their object the health and morality—even the happiness—of his employes; but it is highly doubtful if he will gain his ends. People who work for a man sell him their labor; they do not sell him their liberty, their very souls. They may stand for his supervision in his factory, but they resent like supervision in their own homes. They will want to live their own lives in their own way, not in Mr. Ford's way—good as the latter may seem. They will for the most part probably prefer more freedom, even at lesser pay, to high pay and restricted liberty.

The trouble with philanthropists is just this: that they want to be good to us if we will be good in their particular and peculiar way. Mr. Ford's employes may like his wage scale, but they won't like it if it involves their submission to a system of snooping and spying and the methods of the social inquisition. They will feel that while Mr. Ford wants to be good to them he wants to be so in a way that will rob them of their self-respect. Probably most of them will explore under the beds and tables, in the cupboards and closets for hidden dictagraphs before they indulge in familiar conversation at home. Oh, yes, Mr. Ford is a philanthropist of the purest water—that is to say, he is a sort of a velvet-gloved tyrant.

PERILS OF WOOD ALCOHOL.

Nearly a thousand cases of poisoning attributed to wood alcohol have been reported since 1893, when methyl alcohol was placed on the market, under the trade names of "Columbian Spirits," "Colonial Spirits," "Manhattan Spirits," "Pro Spirit," Manhattan business involves the annual production and use of about 10,000,000 gallons of the substance, with a capital investment in this country of about $12,000,000 in the industry, which employs over 3,000 working people. It is interesting to note the attitude taken by the manufacturers toward the agitation for the control of this dangerous preparation. We are reminded that since man began to handle fire he has been utilizing dangerous substances to his own good purposes, and that many of the most useful substances are dangerous and poisonous.

We may agree with these contentions and still raise the question whether existing legislation is adequate to prevent accidents. Wood alcohol presents a unique case for legislation, not only because of its general resemblance to ethyl alcohol, but because the word "alcohol" is associated in the lay mind with "drink." The dangers, however, are by no means limited to the possibility of introducing methyl alcohol in foods or drinks. When, in 1906, the agitation for a tax-free, denatured ethyl alcohol brought about hearings before the committees of Congress, the injurious action of wood alcohol on the general health and the eyesight of working people handling it in the industries was strongly emphasized by manufacturers employing it, workmen and experts.

A pamphlet on wood alcohol prepared for the New York state factory investigating commission by Charles Baskerville, chairman of the committee on occupational diseases of the American Chemical Society, states that there are at present 63 manufacturers of wood alcohol in the United States. Workmen are liable to come into contact with the vapor in filling the containers. Ample ventilation should meet these difficulties. In the industries in which wood alcohol is employed it often serves as a solvent. Here it can produce poisoning if the workmen inhale the vapor, dip their hands and arms into the liquor, or drink it. Ample ventilation will avert the first danger; impervious gloves will prevent the second; only education can ward off the third. The New York report makes the following recommendations as to law which should be enacted:

To prohibit the presence of wood alcohol in any form of material intended for internal use.

To prohibit the presence of wood alcohol in preparations intended for external use on the human body.

To require ample ventilation in works in which wood alcohol is made or used in manufacturing products wherein the wood alcohol remains, as such; the same law should apply where the products containing wood alcohol are used up, as for example, in varnishing vats in breweries.

To require containers in which wood alcohol is marketed to bear suitable display labels of warning.

TO DEVELOP TRAFFIC.

Electric Railways Must Assist in Community Development.

[Aera.]

The mere laying of so many miles of track in, or the operation of so many cars each 24 hours through, any given territory does not end a railway's duty, either to itself or to the community. Business, if it exists, must be stimulated; if it does not exist, must be created, in order that the railway secure all possible returns. To the casual observer much of the territory through which the roads, whose officers took part in the Massachusetts Association's discussion, operate seems a particularly barren field for the development of traffic. Yet, by a careful study of conditions, by a determination of the kind of traffic which might be developed and by the choice of well-devised methods of building up such traffic, both the companies and the communities have been materially benefited.

Consumers are continually complaining of the high cost of farm products. Farmers are equally insistent that their profits are not large and all statistics show a marked discrepancy between the price at the farm and the price at the kitchen. The problem presented is of course to bring the producer and the consumer in touch, with the elimination or as much of the middleman's profit as is possible.

It is in this that the electric railway can and does, to a constantly increasing extent, play an important part. Not the least of its duty is the education of the farmer to the opportunities which the railway offers him. Conditions as far as he is concerned have changed. He is, however, naturally slow to take advantage of such changes and it is the province of the electric railway man, seeking business, to enlighten him.

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station.

A "PUPPET OF THE INTERESTS."

Wilson may have made a mistake in not recognizing Huerta a year ago as a president de facto, and may have been precipitate in the occupation of Vera Cruz. These are subjects on which men may differ legitimately. But of all the foolish and wicked accusations against the President, the foolishest and the wickedest is that made by Bouck White, a New York socialist, graduate of Harvard and of Union Theological Seminary, that the President is the "puppet of the interests."

If "the interests" are the capitalists whom Porfirio Diaz invited to Mexico, and whose enterprises he protected and whose investments gave the country prosperity, the President's refusal to recognize Huerta and his action in the Tampico matter are conclusive evidence that he is not serving them. Huerta is the product of an insurrection in which the younger Diaz was the chief factor, though they quarreled as soon as Huerta landed in power and decided that he would like to stay there. Obviously "the interests" desire the protection of their property and the maintenance of order with a strong arm. They desire the federal government sustained and insurrections put down.

Major Gillette, formerly of the army and now interested in copper mines in Mexico, in many addresses has denounced the course of the President. Robert Q. Kerr, who was for a day or two, by appointment of Admiral Fletcher, civil governor of Vera Cruz, has been attorney for several large Mexican corporations and in a series of lectures in Chicago severely denounced the course of the President and the Secretary of State and championed Huerta. He said Mexico was fit only for a "beneficent despotism," and complained that the President was aiding the Constitutionalists against Huerta.

It needs no argument to show that "the interests" would use their influence for the support of a strong central government, which would preserve order and encourage industrial development, as Porfirio Diaz did. That is exactly what Wilson has not done. Whether he has always been wise or not, he has not given recognition or moral support to the military dictator who would have imitated Diaz so far as he was able.

AMMONS AS A SCAPEGOAT.

All the labor unionists, and all the politicians who look for votes in the mining districts, are determined to impeach Governor Ammons, not for his failure to suppress rioting but for the means employed. It is quite possible that Ammons was not the man for the emergency. It is highly probable that the state troops were vindictive and savage and that some of the officers deserve punishment. Yet the fact remains that the rioters used force first, that the National Guard was needed in the mining district to preserve order and protect property and men who were willing to work, and that when most of the state troops were withdrawn it seemed to the strikers at Ludlow an opportune moment to make an attack on the rest. The militia retaliated, and probably some of them were guilty of cruelty and brutality, but the rioters began the savagery and kept it up. After their attack on the militia at Ludlow they drove non-union men and their wives and children into a mine in Aguilar and sealed the mouth of the mine with explosives.

Some of the militia officers ought to be tried, and perhaps they ought to be punished. There is still a great lack of specific information. If Governor Ammons shall be impeached it may be an effective method of bringing out all the facts, but the impeachment should not be based merely on what the militia did; it should be based also on the violence of the rioters, which the governor of the state should have prevented, if he had any means of doing so.

Every great strike is stained by acts of rioting, and when the police or the sheriff's posse or the state troops or the United States army puts down the rioting there is a tremendous howl from the strikers and their sympathizers against the forces which acted, but never a word from that quarter about the conduct of the rioters. Their violence is extenuated, and the force used against them is denounced as the hirelings of capitalists and the bloodthirsty tools of despots. The people who denounce privilege insist that labor unionists are privileged to use violence, which the community has no right to use against them.

EAGER FOR AN EDUCATION.

The author of a magazine article on the College of the City of New York recently made some statements which are interesting and surprising, in connection with the attitude of the students toward the institution and their studies. He says the young men need to be driven to their outdoor games, because they prefer to devote all their time to their studies. That certainly is a novel condition in any institution of learning as a common rule in most and perhaps all such places there are a few so devoted to study that they do not care for games, but prefer to give their time to the work which to them fulfills all the functions of play so far as enjoyment is concerned. At this college, it is stated, the teachers do not insist that a student shall take a certain number of courses each term and study a fixed number of hours for each course, but are obliged to restrict the number of courses and of hours and the office of the dean is besieged every term by a long line of students eagerly entreating to be allowed to add to their schedules.

This eagerness is so strong that the faculty is forced to set a limit, so that only a certain amount of work at home or outside of college hours shall be done in each subject. This passion for study is the dominant characteristic of the institution, it is declared, for the students are not chiefly boys, but young men who have learned by hard experience the value of education and the cost of every hour of squandered time. They know just what they desire and come with the determination to gain it in the shortest possible time. In other colleges men are debarred from athletics because of deficiency in their studies, but here they are debarred from their studies because of deficiencies in athletics. This is a wholesome condition when the class of students is taken into consideration, for it means an appreciation of education which is stimulating and influential. It is inspiring to see such devotion to this matter and to note the sacrifices these students are also glad to make in order to gain what they have lacked in earlier life.

THE SOCIOLOGICAL SPUR.

Helen Keller says "there is always hope for improvement when people are willing and try to understand," and that is one of the most hopeful signs in regard to sociological work. So many problems are involved in that work and they are so puzzling in their nature that there would inevitably be much discouragement if those most active in it were not of an optimistic temperament, and if it were not also for the further fact that these leaders in efforts to improve the condition of those who need help are "willing and try to understand." The annual sociological conference is near at hand when once more these men and women who are devoting their lives to the solution of problems affecting the welfare of the people and to working out those problems as rapidly as is possible, will gather, compare notes, report progress, make recommendations and in a general and also a very specific way discuss the difficulties encountered and the means which may be employed to overcome those difficulties.

Every year, as this meeting is held, the fact is made prominent that it is the disposition and the endeavor to understand which give hope in this work, which has so many discouraging aspects and yet with them also so many which are encouraging. The spirit of willingness to labor and determination to understand the problems, the conditions and the principles which underlie their task is the strongest factor in keeping them at it and making them successful in it. Without that spirit interest would flag, enthusiasm would wane and effort would relax; with it these workers keep their faith, their hope and their purpose, and gradually advance in their endeavors to make the world better and improve the conditions under which people live. It is a wide field which they cover, with many different aspects, but it challenges all the enthusiasm and determination of those who are busy in it, and it brings after all rich rewards of satisfaction and contentment.

The English sporting papers are not very well pleased with the showing which the polo team selected to play for the international trophy against the Americans is making in its test matches, and the suggestion is made that it would be wise to consider whether the trip to the United States should not be postponed a year, "as a bad failure by the team would do much harm." The Pall Mall Gazette says that "on such form as it displayed Monday the British team does not stand a 100 to 1 chance. At present it lacks both a leader and confidence, essentials to its success in America." The American players, however, will keep on practicing.

Governor Blease of South Carolina, whose term of office has been replete with unusual features which brought down on his head severe criticism, has experienced a rather decided recall in the election of delegates to his party convention. He desired to obtain control of the convention, to prevent the adoption of new party rules which would have the effect of disfranchising many of his supporters among the cotton mill workers and tenant farmers, and might seriously embarrass him in his race for the United States Senate. He lost in several counties in which he thought he was strong and failed to carry his home county. His opponents will have a large majority against him in the convention. It is just as well.

The House judiciary committee, which has voted to report "without recommendation" the Hobson resolution submitting to the state legislatures a Constitutional amendment providing for nation-wide prohibition and the Mondell resolution providing for universal woman suffrage, is not in favor of either resolution. It has reported them because of the criticism that the proposed amendments were being "chloroformed" by the committee. The members of the House of Representatives must now declare themselves on these two questions, and it is said that many of them do not like the prospect.

After all, the British government has finally consented to re-consider its decision not to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and will probably decide that Great Britain shall be officially represented, although in a distinctly modified form. The government does not wish to change its mind, but evidently thinks it can give some complimentary acceptance of the invitation to participate if it does not commit the nation to any great expenditure of money.

The superintendent of police in Providence has issued an order to prevent the distribution of sample boxes of pills and other so-called medicines at houses, basing his action on the belief that many of these fall into the hands of children, with disastrous results. In a number of cases children have been made seriously ill from these samples, and the police have come to the conclusion that it is time the practice were stopped. It certainly is.

The announcement by Senator Beekman of his candidacy for governor as the nominee of the Republican party will be a surprise to few if any. He has long been in line for this promotion, and apparently thinks this the favorable opportunity to win the coveted prize. What attitude the party leaders, not to say the rank and file, will take in the matter remains to be seen. It is a long time to the date of the convention and the election.

It is hardly to be expected that New Shoreham, with a town debt of $172,000, could devote more than $3,500 to its schools and $1500 for highways, even if the school appropriation is increased by $1,500 this year. The town, with a population of 1,314, has a per capita debt exceeding $130.

The last days of the session of the General Assembly were not marked by the passage of so many undesirable measures as usual. This was not, however, because of the lack of such bills, but because of the active opposition of a few of the legislators and others to the schemes.

These first few days of spring warmth arouse the dormant flies. Every hour during the first two weeks of May is valuable for prevention. Flies which seem slow in flight are just as powerful for the summer's swarm, and are more easily put out of the supply source. Now is the time when a swat is fertile for prevention.

The state breathes easier now that the General Assembly has adjourned.

GOETHALS THE RIGHT MAN IN THE RIGHT PLACE.

[Philadelphia Record.]

Colonel Goethals evidently has as strong a grip on the economic features of the Panama canal as he has on the engineering work. His views in opposition to exempting American vessels from tolls are admirably brief, but they contain more meat than columns of the rubbishy stuff published about truckling to Great Britain and building up the American merchant marine. Coastwise vessels, as he points out, are "already fully protected and not in need of subsidy." The colonel is evidently the right man in the right place. If any one person can assist materially toward making the canal a success, financially and in every other way, he is clearly that person.

MR. FORD MEANS WELL.

Employes, However, Will Want to Live Their Lives in Their Own Way.

[William Marion Reedy, in The Mirror, St. Louis.]

Mr. Henry Ford, the motor man, who gained fame by establishing the $5 per day minimum wage in his Detroit factory, is a true philanthropist. There may have been some doubt of it before, but there can't be after reading the latest news from his headquarters. His workmen are finding out that Mr. Ford wants more than their work out time. They must live in houses to suit him. They must not take in boarders if they are married. If they are boarders they must be good boarders. They must keep good hours. They must not double up to save money. Of course they must not be "gay." They must live as Mr. Ford or his inspectors want them to live in every respect. He won't have anything going on in anybody's home that he doesn't approve of. If he finds anything wrong, they lose their jobs.

Now Mr. Ford means well. All his rules and regulations as reported in the papers have for their object the health and morality—even the happiness—of his employes; but it is highly doubtful if he will gain his ends. People who work for a man sell him their labor; they do not sell him their liberty, their very souls. They may stand for his supervision in his factory, but they resent like supervision in their own homes. They will want to live their own lives in their own way, not in Mr. Ford's way—good as the latter may seem. They will for the most part probably prefer more freedom, even at lesser pay, to high pay and restricted liberty.

The trouble with philanthropists is just this: that they want to be good to us. If we will be good in their particular and peculiar way. Mr. Ford's employes may like his wage scale, but they won't like it if it involves their submission to a system of snooping and spying and the methods of the social inquisition. They will feel that while Mr. Ford wants to be good to them he wants to be so in a way that will rob them of their self-respect. Probably most of them will explore under the beds and tables, in the cupboards and closets for hidden dietaraphs before they indulge in familiar conversation at home. Oh, yes, Mr. Ford is a philanthropist of the purest water—that is to say, he is a sort of a velvet-gloved tyrant.

PERILS OF WOOD ALCOHOL.

Nearly a thousand cases of poisoning attributed to wood alcohol have been reported since 1893, when methyl alcohol was placed on the market, under the trade names of "Columbian Spirits," "Colonial Spirits," "Manhattan Spirits," "Pro Spirit," "Manhattan Spirits," "Pro Spirit," "Manhattan Spirits," business involves the annual production and use of about 10,000,000 gallons of the substance, with a capital investment in this country of about $12,000,000 in the industry, which employs over 3,000 working people. It is interesting to note the attitude taken by the manufacturers toward the agitation for the control of this dangerous preparation. We are reminded that since man began to handle fire he has been utilizing dangerous substances to his own good purposes, and that many of the most useful substances are dangerous and poisonous.

We may agree with these contentions and still raise the question whether existing legislation is adequate to prevent accidents. Wood alcohol presents a unique case for legislation, not only because of its general resemblance to ethyl alcohol, but because the word "alcohol" is associated in the lay mind with "drink." The dangers, however, are by no means limited to the possibility of introducing methyl alcohol in foods or drinks. When, in 1906, the agitation for a tax-free, denatured ethyl alcohol brought about hearings before the committees of Congress, the injurious action of wood alcohol on the general health and the eyesight of working people handling it in the industries was strongly emphasized by manufacturers employing it, workmen and experts.

A pamphlet on wood alcohol prepared for the New York state factory investigating commission by Charles Baskerville, chairman of the committee on occupational diseases of the American Chemical Society, states that there are at present 64 manufacturers of wood alcohol in the United States. Workmen are liable to come into contact with the vapor in filling the containers. Ample ventilation should meet these difficulties. In the industries in which wood alcohol is employed it often serves as a solvent. Here it can produce poisoning if the workmen inhale the vapor, dip their hands and arms into the liquor, or drink it. Ample ventilation will avert the first danger; impervious gloves will prevent the second; only education can ward off the third. The New York report makes the following recommendations as to law which should be enacted:

To prohibit the presence of wood alcohol in any form of material intended for internal use.

To prohibit the presence of wood alcohol in preparations intended for external use on the human body.

To require ample ventilation in works in which wood alcohol is made or used in manufacturing products wherein the wood alcohol remains, as such; the same law should apply where the products containing wood alcohol are used up, as for example, in varnishing vats in breweries.

To require containers in which wood alcohol is marketed to bear suitable display labels of warning.

TO DEVELOP TRAFFIC.

Electric Railways Must Assist in Community Development.

[Aera.]

The mere laying of so many miles of track in, or the operation of so many cars each 24 hours through, any given territory does not end a railway's duty, either to itself or to the community. Business, if it exists, must be stimulated; if it does not exist, must be created, in order that the railway secure all possible returns. To the casual observer much of the territory through which the roads, whose officers took part in the Massachusetts Association's discussion, operate seems a particularly barren field for the development of traffic. Yet, by a careful study of conditions, by a determination of the kind of traffic which might be developed and by the choice of well-devised methods of building up such traffic, both the companies and the communities have been materially benefited.

Consumers are continually complaining of the high cost of farm products. Farmers are equally insistent that their profits are not large and all statistics show a marked discrepancy between the price at the farm and the price at the kitchen. The problem presented is of course to bring the producer and the consumer in touch, with the elimination or as much of the middleman's profit as is possible.

It is in this that the electric railway can and does, to a constantly increasing extent, play an important part. Not the least of its duty is the education of the farmer to the opportunities which the railway offers him. Conditions as far as he is concerned have changed. He is, however, naturally slow to take advantage of such changes and it is the province of the electric railway man, seeking business, to enlighten him.

A MOVING SCENE.

Furniture Attached by Deputy Sheriffs on Washington Square.

There was a moving scene on Washington square this morning. A tenant decided to move out of town and sent to Fall River for a big van, in which the furniture was stowed. The landlord says the tenant has paid no rent in the six months during which the tenement was occupied, so he chased the sheriff's office after that furniture. The driver might have gone right out of town and perhaps escaped, though the sheriff says he would have caught the furniture somewhere in Newport county. However that may be, the driver drove to Washington square, and as all can see right into the view of the sheriff's office window, and Deputy Sheriff DeBlois put an attachment on the furniture.

Up to this time things had moved smoothly, if not speedily, but the driver refused to acknowledge the attachment. He telephoned his "boss" in Fall River and the boss told him if the furniture was loaded to drive on to Fall River. The sheriff told him he could not. Apparently the sheriff was right, for when the driver attempted to escape Deputy Sheriffs DeBlois and King sent out the official S-O-S call. Officers Coggeshall and Palmer responded and the driver and his two helpers were taken to the police station.

The deputy sheriffs had a big load of furniture on their hands. Acker, Merrill & Condit's entrance was blocked and there was a crowd looking on. Carry, the expressman, was called on for second aid. He drove the wagon to the court house and stored the furniture in the cellar. Then the sheriff said he had no complaint to make against the driver and his two assistants and they were released. The furniture van then went back to Fall River.

Thus ends Chapter 1.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Chase is showing post cards of the laying of the corner-stone at the Chapel of the Cenacle Sunday.

—Seaman John H. King, Jr., of Battleship Rhode Island is spending his furlough with is father on Girard avenue.

—Among the bills which the legislature had before it and which did not pass was the one to amend the Newport city charter.

—Mr. William F. Lockwood, son of Colonel and Mrs. D. W. Lockwood of Put-in-Bay, Ohio, formerly of this city, died May 1 at Colorado Springs, Col., aged 34 years.

—Ice carts of five different firms are to be seen on the streets, which suggests that there is to be some competition this year, in the early part of the season at least.

—If the garbage collector is a trifle off duty for a day or two people can understand that it is because the city's boat, the Sanitas, is out at the shipyard for her annual overhauling.

—Miss Mildred Rives arrived Tuesday afternoon and opened "Swanhurst" for the season. It is expected that Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Mason will be here this afternoon, to open their cottage on Catherine street.

—The court-martial at the Training Station of Paymaster Chew and Chief Yeoman Smith is as yet indefinite as to time of starting, as the judge advocate has not been able to prepare the case for procedure.

—The police report this morning had one assault case, which netted $10 and costs. Two drunkenness cases netted no money, but five days in jail each. One door was reported open Tuesday night.

—There are rumors that freight steamer City of Boston now at the repair shops for an overhauling, has been chartered for work in connection with the troubles in Mexico. The report could not be confirmed here, but it is in the air.

—Chief Clerk M. F. Shea of the postoffice is back from Block Island. He went to hold a civil service examination, and instead of coming back the next day it took three days. However, he is not complaining, in view of the fact that he is finally at home.

—The Naval Training Station base ball team has been organized for the season with J. J. Moore as manager, and would like to arrange for games with semi-professional teams either at home or abroad. A return game will be played at the Training Station, at a convenient date, for all games played abroad.

—As Friday, Arbor day, is a legal holiday, the banks, public offices and city departments will be closed. The schools will have appropriate exercises in the morning, following generally the program suggested by the commissioner of public schools in his annual bulletin, and will close at noon for the day.

—A party was given Tuesday evening at the home of Chief Boatswain and Mrs. A. Madsen on Clarke street, in honor of the thirteenth birthday of their daughter, Edith, about 20 children being present. Various games were played and prizes were awarded. Misses Emily Cooper and Margaret Tukey were at the piano.

—The American Ice Company has taken possession of its new quarters on Bridge street, where it is comfortably housed, with an office in front, ice boxes behind and the stable and wagon shed in the rear. The whole seems well arranged for doing business and the scales, which are worked from the office, are under cover. The location is the old Thorndike barrel factory and storehouse.

—The Rogers-School of Design and the St. George's-Allan School base ball games, scheduled for today, have been called off on account of wet grounds. The next game will come Friday, Arbor day, when Rogers and St. George's meet in a return engagement on the latter's grounds. There is a possibility that Rogers may play Saturday at the Vernon Avenue playfield, although Manager Lawton has yet no game scheduled.

NOT ENFORCING LAW.

Sheriff of Penobscot County Asked to Resign Position.

BANGOR, Maine, May 6.—J. Fred O'Connell, who was appointed sheriff of Penobscot county to succeed W. W. Emerson, removed from that office by vote of the Maine legislature last spring, has been asked by Governor William T. Haines to resign his position. According to the statement made by Sheriff O'Connell the letter was received Tuesday and the governor gives as the reason for his action that the prohibitory law is not being enforced by his appointee in some of the cities and towns of Penobscot county.

AN EVENING OF MUSIC.

Mrs. Rooney's Beautiful Songs Ably Accompanied by Mrs. John W. Burgess.

Large and Brilliant Audience Hears Delightful Recital for Benefit of Art Association.

A large and brilliant audience at the Civic League Hall, Tuesday evening was "carried away" with the beautiful songs given by Mrs. Mary Curley Rooney, accompanied by Mrs. John W. Burgess. The list of patronesses included Mrs. Roderick Terry, Mrs Henry Redmond, Mrs. James A. Swan, Mrs. George Gordon King, Miss Caroline Ogden Jones, Mrs. J. Marsden Perry, Mrs. Walter C. Cabell, Mrs. John Elliott, Mrs. Richard C Derey, Mrs. Alfred Tuckerman, Miss Anna P. Hunter, Mrs. Boutelle Noyes, Mrs. Bradford Norman, Mrs. Livingston Hunt, Mrs. Harford W. H Powel, Mrs. F E. Chadwick, Mrs. Roger Welles, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Mrs. Reginald Belknap, Mrs. John W. Burgess and Mrs. French Vanderbilt. The affair was given for the benefit of the Art Association.

Before the recital, and between the parts there was general conversation of the liveliest sort, but once the singing commenced all were held in delighted, almost breathless attention. While everybody knows Mrs. Rooney has a voice equal to every demand, she also knows how to use it and this was a whole evening of music, not noise; always sweet, and often [illegible] with a charming diminuendo at the end. This kind of singing calls for no ordinary sort of accompaniment, and happily Mrs. Burgess was willing to appear at the piano. She must have given much time to the work, for she was always "with" the singer, and it was interesting to note how admirably the solo and accompaniment fitted together. Nor were the accompaniments easy, in themselves each had a good character of its own. The artists were received with great applause as they entered, and so enthusiastic were the responses to each number that any of them would have been taken by many singers as encores.

The first group was of Italian songs—"Caro mio ben," by Giordani; "Fior di Dolcezza," by E. Dei Valle de Pax; "In Primavera," by Rotoli. Next came German songs—the beautiful "Sapphische Ode" of Brahms; "Im Kahne," by Gries; "Fruelingsabend," by Fritz Fieck, and the ever lovely "Haidenroeslein" of Schubert, which was so delightfully given as to receive an encore, in response to which Chadwick's "Thou art like a flower" was sung, suffering little by comparison with the fine things which had preceded it. Both Mrs. Rooney and Mrs. Burgess were given an ovation as they left the stage at the close of the second part of the program.

The group of French songs included much, and "Way down South," a short "Si mes vers avient des ailes," short and very sweet; Chaminade's "Pourquoi?" which was a favorite; "Chanson indoue," by N. Rimsky- Korsakow (from the legend "Sadko") which has a really harp-like accompaniment, and was deservedly encored and repeated, and Hahn's "Paysage," the beautiful close of which captivated all.

In English were C. D. Hecksher's "Norse Maiden's Lament," truly greeted as "lovely" and deservedly repeated as an encore; two songs, of more than ordinary merit, by Huntington Woodman a young American composer, who has been organist at one of the Brooklyn churches—"I am thy Harp" and "An Open Secret," the latter being a delightful Spring song; "Cadman's "I found him on the Mesa," an odd minor which pleased much, and "Way down South," a short little thing which pleased so much that it was repeated. As an encore to Woodman's "Open Secret (for the people refused to go after this last number of the regular program) Mrs. Rooney sang a taking little piece by Liza Lehmann "If no one ever marries me," which was not so trifling as to spoil the good effect of the evening, and yet was amusing.

DEATH OF PATRICK E. NOLAN.

Mr. Patrick E. Nolan, who died this morning at his boarding house on Hammond street, after an illness of about two weeks, was an old-time gardener and had worked at the Wetmore estate so long that about two years ago he was pensioned on account of disabilities due to an injured knee. He has a sister residing in New York, who came here a day or so ago when informed of the serious condition of her brother.

AMERICA REPRESENTED.

International Book Trade and Graphic Arts Exposition in Leipsic.

LEIPSIC, Germany, May 6.—The International Book Trade and Graphic Arts Exposition was opened here today by King Frederick Augustus of Saxony. The exposition is by far the largest and most comprehensive exhibition of the kind ever held. The grounds measure 100 acres, and the main building alone covers five acres. There are more than 20 buildings devoted to exhibition purposes.

The exposition, which is under the patronage of the King of Saxony, is given in celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Royal Academy of Graphic Arts and Book Trade at Leipsic.

In the American exhibit the government printing office at Washington and several American libraries are represented.

One of the curiosities of the exposition is a hand-operated paper mill of 200 years ago. It will be worked daily, and in contrast to it is a series of the most modern machinery of the trade that begins with the pine logs and ends with the finished newspaper.

A HEAVY DOWNPOUR.

Sun Again in Sight and Tulips Added to the Growing Things.

It rained some in the downpour Tuesday; 1.32 inches in all the gauge reported. Of this 1.32 fell after 6 in the morning and before 6 at night, which the rain could be said to be over. There was a little sprinkle this morning early, but it did not really count. Out on the island they are talking of hiring submarine boats to do farming. The soil is too wet to do anything, the ground is too cold for anything but grass and dandelions to grow, and nearly two inches of water was put on top of those conditions in the past few hours.

There is one thing to be thankful for; the promised gale was not felt much and the storm signal is down. Apparently there was a blow somewhere, for the fishermen were unable to pull their traps today on account of the wind and sea and Block Island steamer Islander was unable to make her trip to the island.

The sun is again in sight part of the time, and the tulips have been added to the growing things. It looks better, even if wetter.

There was something of a flood to be seen in various parts of the city about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. At Thames and Marlborough streets the roadway was a raging mass of water. On Wellington avenue it seemed as if all the rain in town had gathered, but a look at Marchant street, Clinton street or any of the streets leading into them would quickly dispel this idea. There was a superabundance of water in all low places.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

At a meeting of the H. C. Club, held at the home of Miss Julia Manning, the following officers were elected:

President—Anna Nielsen.
Vice President—Frances Sullivan.
Secretary—Christine Nielsen.
Treasurer—Julia Manning.
Chairman Entertainment Committee Marcella Nelson.

Plans were made for a dance and social, to be given in the near future.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

Not only are the farmers on the island handicapped by the lateness of the spring weather, but their work has received another setback by a surplus of rain. The wet weather has prevented large fields of oats from coming up, the seed rotting in the ground. This will necessitate a replanting or a change to some other crop.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B Stork of Philadelphia are in town, to arrange for the opening of their summer home on the Shore road.

C. E. Weeden has rented his south cottage on Walcott avenue to A. F. Downes of Washington for the season.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the ferry company was held Tuesday evening, only routine business being transacted.

Mr. Richard Watson, who has been visiting relatives on the island, has been recalled to his duties in the postoffice at Detroit, Mich.

The lumber has arrived for a store building on Narragansett avenue for Mr. J. T. O'Connell of Newport.

The telephone and electric light companies are busy on the island, putting in telephones and service for lighting, in anticipation of the arrival of summer residents.

FIRST REAL SCUP CATCH.

Tuesday the Newport Fisheries Company had some soup, mackerel, shad and other sorts of fish, just like the other trappers. One roe shad which weighed over six pounds was a handsome fish. Today, on account of conditions outside, none of the local trappers pulled, but down off the beaches past Point Judith George Allison pulled his trap and his steamer Gifford came in this afternoon and landed the first real catch of scup, 500 pounds, at Long wharf. She also had a dozen barrels of sea robins, which the local dealers will be glad to have, as robins have been scarce.

Sale of Tub Dresses

And Demonstration of Methods Now Used in Their Making by Big Manufacturers.

Thursday morning we inaugurate a very extraordinarture that we have ever held. stylish Washable Dresses that should eclipse any sale of this nay 3-day sale of Women's neat,

In the first place the prices will be wonderfully attractive, and in addition to that we are going to give a most interesting and instructive exhibition, right here in the store, of the actual making of the dresses, so that you will see just how the big manufacturers now make dresses that fit so well, look so well and are so dainty and pretty, yet so modest in price.

Skilled Operatives from the Factory will cut the Dresses in our window and make them on second floor.

During this sale, an operative from the factory will cut dresses on an electric cutting machine in our window, while two others will be occupied in the making and finishing of the garments on our second floor. You can see every part of the work done and the dress completed in the space of an hour and a half.

A MOVING SCENE.

Furniture Attached by Deputy Sheriffs on Washington Square.

There was a moving scene on Washington square this morning. A tenant decided to move out of town and sent to Fall River for a big van, in which the furniture was stowed. The landlord says the tenant has paid no rent in the six months during which the tenement was occupied, so he chased the sheriff's office after that furniture. The driver might have gone right out of town and perhaps escaped, though the sheriff says he would have caught the furniture somewhere in Newport county. However that may be, the driver drove to Washington square, and as all can see right into the view of the sheriff's office window, and Deputy Sheriff DeBlois put an attachment on the furniture.

Up to this time things had moved smoothly, if not speedily, but the driver refused to acknowledge the attachment. He telephoned his "boss" in Fall River and the boss told him if the furniture was loaded to drive on to Fall River. The sheriff told him he could not. Apparently the sheriff was right, for when the driver attempted to escape Deputy Sheriffs DeBlois and King sent out the official S-O-S call. Officers Coggeshall and Palmer responded and the driver and his two helpers were taken to the police station.

The deputy sheriffs had a big load of furniture on their hands. Acker, Merrill & Condit's entrance was blocked and there was a crowd looking on. Carry, the expressman, was called on for second aid. He drove the wagon to the court house and stored the furniture in the cellar. Then the sheriff said he had no complaint to make against the driver and his two assistants and they were released. The furniture van then went back to Fall River.

Thus ends Chapter 1.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Chase is showing post cards of the laying of the corner-stone at the Chapel of the Cenacle Sunday.

—Seaman John H. King, Jr., of battleship Rhode Island is spending his furlough with is father on Girard avenue.

—Among the bills which the legislature had before it and which did not pass was the one to amend the Newport city charter.

—Mr. William F. Lockwood, son of Colonel and Mrs. D. W. Lockwood of Put-in-Bay, Ohio, formerly of this city, died May 1 at Colorado Springs, Col., aged 34 years.

—Ice carts of five different firms are to be seen on the streets, which suggests that there is to be some competition this year, in the early part of the season at least.

—If the garbage collector is a trifle off duty for a day or two people can understand that it is because the city's boat, the Sanitas, is out at the shipyard for her annual overhauling.

—Miss Mildred Rives arrived Tuesday afternoon and opened "Swanhurst" for the season. It is expected that Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Mason will be here this afternoon, to open their cottage on Catherine street.

—The court-martial at the Training Station of Paymaster Chew and Chief Yeoman Smith is as yet indefinite as to time of starting, as the judge advocate has not been able to prepare the case for procedure.

—The police report this morning had one assault case, which netted $10 and costs. Two drunkenness cases netted no money, but five days in jail each. One door was reported open Tuesday night.

—There are rumors that freight steamer City of Boston now at the repair shops for an overhauling, has been chartered for work in connection with the troubles in Mexico. The report could not be confirmed here, but it is in the air.

—Chief Clerk M. F. Shea of the postoffice is back from Block Island. He went to hold a civil service examination, and instead of coming back the next day it took three days. However, he is not complaining, in view of the fact that he is finally at home.

—The Naval Training Station base ball team has been organized for the season with J. J. Moore as manager, and would like to arrange for games with semi-professional teams either at home or abroad. A return game will be played at the Training Station, at a convenient date, for all games played abroad.

—As Friday, Arbor day, is a legal holiday, the banks, public offices and city departments will be closed. The schools will have appropriate exercises in the morning, following generally the program suggested by the commissioner of public schools in his annual bulletin, and will close at noon for the day.

—A party was given Tuesday evening at the home of Chief Boatswain and Mrs. A. Madsen on Clarke street, in honor of the thirteenth birthday of their daughter, Edith, about 20 children being present. Various games were played and prizes were awarded. Misses Emily Cooper and Margaret Tukey were at the piano.

—The American Ice Company has taken possession of its new quarters on Bridge street, where it is comfortably housed, with an office in front, ice boxes behind and the stable and wagon shed in the rear. The whole seems well arranged for doing business and the scales, which are worked from the office, are under cover. The location is the old Thorndike barrel factory and storehouse.

—The Rogers-School of Design and the St. George's-Allan School base ball games, scheduled for today, have been called off on account of wet grounds. The next game will come Friday, Arbor day, when Rogers and St. George's meet in a return engagement on the latter's grounds. There is a possibility that Rogers may play Saturday at the Vernon Avenue playfield, although Manager Lawton has yet no game scheduled.

NOT ENFORCING LAW.

Sheriff of Penobscot County Asked to Resign Position.

BANGOR, Maine, May 6.—J. Fred O'Connell, who was appointed sheriff of Penobscot county to succeed W. W. Emerson, removed from that office by vote of the Maine legislature last spring, has been asked by Governor William T. Haines to resign his position. According to the statement made by Sheriff O'Connell, the letter was received Tuesday and the governor gives as the reason for his action that the prohibitory law is not being enforced by his appointee in some of the cities and towns of Penobscot county.

AN EVENING OF MUSIC.

Mrs. Rooney's Beautiful Songs Ably Accompanied by Mrs. John W. Burgess.

A large and brilliant audience at the Civic League Hall, Tuesday evening was "carried away" with the beautiful songs given by Mrs. Mary Curley Rooney, accompanied by Mrs. John W. Burgess. The list of patronesses included Mrs. Roderick Terry, Mrs. Henry Redmond, Mrs. James A. Swan, Mrs. George Gordon King, Miss Caroline Ogden Jones, Mrs. J. Marsden Perry, Mrs. Walter C. Cobell, Mrs. John Elliott, Mrs. Richard C. Derby, Mrs. Alfred Tuckerman, Miss Anna F. Hunter, Mrs. Bourke Noyes, Mrs. Bradford Norman, Mrs. Livingston Hunt, Mrs. Harford W. H. Powel, Mrs. F. E. Chadwick, Mrs. Roger Welles, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Mrs. Reginald Belknap, Mrs. John W. Burgess and Mrs. French Vanderbilt. The affair was given for the benefit of the Art Association.

Before the recital, and between the parts there was general conversation of the liveliest sort, but once the singing commenced all were held in delighted, almost breathless attention. While everybody knows Mrs. Rooney has a voice equal to every demand, she also knows how to use it and this was a whole evening of music, not noise; always sweet, and often with a charming diminuendo at the end. This kind of singing calls for no ordinary sort of accompaniment, and happily Mrs. Burgess was willing to appear at the piano. She must have given much time to the work, for she was always "with" the singer, and it was interesting to note how admirably the solo and accompaniment fitted together. Nor were the accompaniments easy, in themselves each had a good character of its own. The artists were received with great applause as they entered, and so enthusiastic were the responses to each number that any of them would have been taken by many singers as encores.

The first group was of Italian songs—"Caro mio ben," by Giordani; "Fior di Dolcezza," by E. Del Valle de Paz; "In Primavera," by Rotoli. Next came German songs—the beautiful "Sapphische Ode" of Brahms; "Im Kahne," by Grieg; "Fruelingsabend," by Fritz Fleck, and the ever lovely "Haidenroeslein" of Schubert, which was so delightfully given as to receive an encore, in response to which Chadwick's "Thou art like a flower" was sung, suffering little by comparison with the fine things which had preceded it. Both Mrs. Rooney and Mrs. Burgess were given an ovation as they left the stage at the close of the second part of the program.

The group of French songs included much, and "Way down South," a short "Si mes vers avient des ailes," short and very sweet; Chaminade's "Pourquoi?" which was a favorite; "Chanson indoue," by N. Rimsky- Korsakow (from the legend "Sadko") which has a really harp-like accompaniment, and was deservedly encored and repeated, and Hahn's "Paysage," the beautiful close of which captivated all.

In English were C. D. Hecksher's "Norse Maiden's Lament," truly greeted as "lovely" and deservedly repeated as an encore; two songs, of more than ordinary merit, by Huntington Woodman a young American composer, who has been organist at one of the Brooklyn churches—"By thy Harp" and "An Open Secret," the latter being a delightful Spring song; "Cadman's "I found him on the Mesa," an odd minor which pleased much, and "Way down South," a short little thing which pleased so much that it was repeated. As an encore to Woodman's "Open Secret (for the people refused to go after this last number of the regular program) Mrs. Rooney sang a taking little piece by Liza Lehmann "If no one ever marries me," which was not so trifling as to spoil the good effect of the evening, and yet was amusing.

DEATH OF PATRICK E. NOLAN.

Mr. Patrick E. Nolan, who died this morning at his boarding house on Hammond street, after an illness of about two weeks, was an old-time gardener and had worked at the Wetmore estate so long that about two years ago he was pensioned on account of disabilities due to an injured knee. He has a sister residing in New York, who came here a day or so ago when informed of the serious condition of her brother.

AMERICA REPRESENTED.

International Book Trade and Graphic Arts Exposition in Leipsic.

LEIPSIC, Germany, May 6.—The International Book Trade and Graphic Arts Exposition was opened here today by King Frederick Augustus of Saxony. The exposition is by far the largest and most comprehensive exhibition of the kind ever held. The grounds measure 100 acres, and the main building alone covers five acres. There are more than 20 buildings devoted to exhibition purposes.

The exposition, which is under the patronage of the King of Saxony, is given in celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Royal Academy of Graphic Arts and Book Trade at Leipsic.

In the American exhibit the government printing office at Washington and several American libraries are represented.

One of the curiosities of the exposition is a hand-operated paper mill of 200 years ago. It will be worked daily, and in contrast to it is a series of the most modern machinery of the trade that begins with the pine logs and ends with the finished newspaper.

A HEAVY DOWNPOUR.

Sun Again in Sight and Tulips Added to the Growing Things.

It rained some in the downpour Tuesday; 1.82 inches in all the gauge reported. Of this 1.22 fell after 6 in the morning and before 6 at night, when the rain could be said to be over. There was a little sprinkle this morning early, but it did not really count. Out on the Island they are talking of hiring submarine boats to do farming. The soil is too wet to do anything, the ground is too cold for anything but grass and dandelions to grow, and nearly two inches of water was put on top of those conditions in the past few hours.

There is one thing to be thankful for; the promised gale was not felt much and the storm signal is down. Apparently there was a blow somewhere, for the fishermen were unable to pull their traps today on account of the wind and sea and Block Island steamer Islander was unable to make her trip to the Island.

The sun is again in sight part of the time, and the tulips have been added to the growing things. It looks better, even if wetter.

There was something of a flood to be seen in various parts of the city about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. At Touro and Marlborough streets the roadway was a raging mass of water. On Wellington avenue it seemed as if all the rain in town had gathered, but a look at Marchant street, Clinton street or any of the streets leading into them would quickly dispel this idea. There was a superabundance of water in all low places.

At a meeting of the H. C. Club, held at the home of Miss Julia Manning, the following officers were elected:

President—Anna Nielsen.
Vice President—Frances Sullivan.
Secretary—Christine Nielsen.
Treasurer—Julia Manning.
Chairman Entertainment Committee Marcella Nelson.

Plans were made for a dance and social, to be given in the near future.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

Not only are the farmers on the island handicapped by the lateness of the spring weather, but their work has received another setback by a surplus of rain. The wet weather has prevented large fields of oats from coming up, the seed rotting in the ground. This will necessitate a replanting or a change to some other crop.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Sterk of Philadelphia are in town, to arrange for the opening of their summer home on the Shore road.

C. E. Weeden has rented his south cottage on Walcott avenue to A. P. Downes of Washington for the season.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the ferry company was held Tuesday evening, only routine business being transacted.

CARRANZA THE MAN.

Said to Be the Only One to Control and Restore Order in Mexico.

Gloomy Outlook for Intervention by the United States—Inattention in the Senate.

[Washington correspondence of the News.]

WASHINGTON, May 5.—It is natural that the administration should keep secret its intentions regarding future developments in Mexico after Huerta has been eliminated. At the same time there is speculation as to just what the President and his advisers have in mind when they have accomplished the first object. From different sources it has come out that the United States government will get behind Carranza in an effort to have him attempt to pacify the unhappy republic.

It is said that a careful canvass of the situation has convinced the administration that Carranza is the only man in sight who can take control of the government of Mexico and bring order out of the chaotic conditions which exist. Most people believe that Carranza cannot get an opportunity unless he is supported by the United States, but if that is one of the policies of the future such support will be forthcoming.

No matter how we may view the Mexican situation, no matter what politics a man may have, there is nothing ahead but a gloomy outlook as long as the United States is involved. We who know the character of the people of Mexico, the ambitions and aspirations of the leaders and almost helpless condition of the common people, are aware that as long as this government undertakes to do anything in that country it will have fierce opposition. The Mexican leaders would rather fight out their own battles, settle their own quarrels in their own way, no matter what the cost may be or how disastrous the effect would be upon the people. In fact, the people is the least consideration there is in the mind of the average Mexican revolutionist.

It has been almost impossible to get the Senate to pay any attention to what is going on unless something springs up in regard to Mexico. In a sort of haphazard way the Senate has been considering several measures during the past few weeks. The Senate would talk radium for awhile, then it would talk postal savings, then it would switch on to the grading of grain, and between times an appropriation bill would be taken up. But only when conditions in Mexico were discussed would the Senate keep still and the Senators give attention.

"Many elucidating speeches and several important measures have been made in the Senate recently," commented Senator Burton of Ohio, "but few Senators have been listening to them." And, what is more, they will not know much about voting on them.

Congressman Borland of Missouri was making a speech about the District of Columbia and was interrupted by Congressman Moore of Pennsylvania with a rather knotty question.

"Oh," remarked Borland, "I am like a man down in my state. I cannot give you gentlemen a college education all in one morning."

At the beginning of the present Congress, the first in which the Democrats had control of the Senate in many years, Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia made a strong and successful fight upon the old system of giving a few Senators all the good committee places. In making this fight Senator Smith landed on finance and several other good committees. Recently he has been given a place on judiciary and rules committees. Besides that, he is a member of agriculture and postoffice and post roads. It is altogether likely that the Georgia Senator will make no further complaint about one man having too many important committee assignments.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota shows his Scotch ancestry in everything he does in the Senate. From the time he entered the body he has been one of the most persistent men in following up anything that he really wants. It is due to him to a large extent that Congress passed the pure food law. Almost single handed and alone McCumber is now making the hardest kind of fight providing for the government inspection of grain. He may not win, but he will make a lot of trouble before he finally loses.

I have mentioned several times the power which the President wields, and I mention it again to quote Senator Borah of Indiana. We were talking about the fact that the President always has the support of the people as against Congress in almost anything that he undertakes. "The people do not know yet that we have assumed a monarchical form of government," remarked Borah, who has many times complained about the over-riding of the power of Congress by the Executive.

FOUR TO BE HELD.

Plans for Military Instruction Camps Not to be Abandoned.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—There will be no suspension or abandonment of the elaborate plans of the War Department for holding the students' military instruction camps this summer because of the Mexican crisis. In fact, the Mexican trouble has served to emphasize the necessity for such preparation of the youth of the country, in the opinion of the general staff.

Many letters are being received from heads of educational institutions and from individual students, asking for information as to the department's plans for the summer. Answers are being returned that the four camps for students' instruction will be held at Ashville N. C., at Burlington, Vt., and Ludington, Mich., July 6 to August 7, inclusive, and at Monterey Cal., from June 26 to July 31.

FOR SAVING AMERICANS.

United States Sends Gold Watches and Chains to Chinese Officers.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The United States government today forwarded six gold watches and chains to the legation at Pekin for distribution among Chinese officers and civilians, in recognition of services in saving the lives of American citizens in China.

KILLING BY PIRATES.

Details of a Raid on the Shinglai Brought by the Nippon Maru.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Details of a raid made by Chinese pirates on steamer Shinglai, March 31, in which a number of the ship's officers and crew were killed and $30,000 stolen, were brought here yesterday by Japanese liner Nippon Maru.

The Shinglai, which is a Chinese-owned vessel and flies the British flag, sailed from Hong Kong in the evening with 17 passengers, who proved to be pirates. Three hours out of port, at a pre-arranged signal, the pirates drew pistols and knives and attacked four soldiers who had been supplied by the Canton government to guard the vessel's treasure. One soldier was killed and another injured. The pirates then rushed into the engine room and took charge. There the keeper of the ship's stores tried to intervene, and was killed. By disguising himself as a coolie and hiding, the Chinese skipper escaped with his life.

According to the Nippon Maru's officers the entire coast of China is infested with pirates. The government, being without funds to operate a coast patrol, is powerless. Thus far only native vessels have been attacked.

PONIES IN GOOD CONDITION.

American Polo Team to Hold Practice Games on Long Island.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The scene of polo activities preparatory to the international challenge cup matches next month were shifted today from Lakewood, N. J., to the grounds of the Meadow Brook Steeple Chase Association and the field of the Phipps estate on Long Island, where all future practice games between candidates for the American team will be held. The ponies used by the players were shipped by special train to Roslyn today. Playing on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays probably will be arranged. Trainer Fitzpatrick said today that, with the exception of three or four, the ponies were in as good a condition as he would ask for.

SINGLE RATE TO BE CHARGED.

Soldiers and Sailors to Send Mail Without Pre-Payment of Postage.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—American soldiers, sailors and marines, whether in the United States or not, may send their letters without the prepayment of postage to any place in the domestic mail service by marking them "soldier's letter," "sailor's letter" or "marine's letter," and having them indorsed by their commanding officers, under an order issued today by Postmaster General Burleson. Only a single rate of postage will be charged and this will be collected when the letter is delivered.

NOW HELD BY PENNSYLVANIA.

Three College Crews to Compete for the Childs Cup Saturday.

PHILLADELPHIA, May 6.—The historic George W. Childs cup, which was first competed for by crews from Princeton, Columbia and Pennsylvania in 1879, will be one of the trophies awarded the winner of the race between crews from the same institutions next Saturday at Princeton. The Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania, present custodians of the cup, at its meeting yesterday granted the rowing committee permission to place the cup up for competition at Saturday's races. There was no race for the trophy last year and Columbia returned the cup to Pennsylvania.

Stevens Sands, her child, and Miss Barbara Rutherford. Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Jay, Mrs Levi P. Morton and Mr. George I. Scott are also passengers on the France.

MARKING A BOUNDARY IN THE FAR NORTH.

Possessions of United States and Canada to be Separated.

Broad Line Across Miles of Wilderness Nearing Completion.

SITKA, Alaska, May 6.—The work of scarring a broad line across 600 miles of wilderness in the far north, in order that the possessions of the United States and Canada may have a distinct separation at every point, will be completed during the coming season. It has been in progress since 1907 under the direction of Thomas Riggs, Jr., civil engineer, representing the United States Alaskan Boundary Commission, and T. D. Craig, representing a similar commission of Canada.

Although the United States and Canada have been neighbors in the far north for more than a half-century, the exact dividing line between their possessions, especially as to the northern portion, was previous to this survey indefinite and conflicting. Many disputes arising, the two governments decided, finally, through their commissions, that an absolute survey, clearly established and marked for all time, should be made along the one hundred and forty-first meridian, from the Mt. St. Elias Alps, on the Pacific, to the Arctic ocean, a distance of approximately 600 miles.

The United States surveying party has consisted of from 60 to 80 men each season since the work was undertaken. Chief Engineer Riggs, himself a young college man, selected his aids from the hardiest classes—cowboys, forest rangers, prospectors, timber cruisers and frontiersmen, with a liberal sprinkling of engineers. New expeditions were organized each spring, although many of the men who started at the beginning have remained in the service up to the present time. It was the custom, too, to leave a few men in the north each winter to care for equipment and supplies.

The actual visible results of the six or seven years of effort is a 20-foot vista cut, like a gigantic avenue or lane, through all timber and brush districts, together with monuments set at intervisible points, from three to four miles apart.

The monuments erected are of two types, depending upon the importance of the locality. At prominent stream crossing and main points of travel the line marker consists of a five-foot aluminum-bronze shaft, weighing 300 pounds, set in 2,000 pounds of concrete. At less important points the monument is smaller, being designated as a cone, cast of the same metal, and requiring only 1,500 pounds of concrete for the base. There are approximately 200 of these monuments along the 600 miles of boundary. The work of conveying the heavy material for their construction, mostly on pack-animals, sometimes on the shoulders of the men themselves, was very slow and laborious.

This survey is declared by engineers to be the straightest in the world for the length encompassed. In speaking of it, one of the engineers said: "The start was made from one of the desolate peaks of the Mt. St. Elias Alps, on the southern extremity. There we laid our course straight for the Northern Lights and there after swerved not so much as a hair-breadth—peaks, gulches, bottomless swamps, wherever the needle pointed there we went, one day cutting our way through brush tangles, the next building a track across marshes, or crawling over rocks and through crevasses."

Small steamers, plying the Yukon and Porcupine rivers, co-operated with the expedition, but were able to reach with supplies only a small portion of the actual route. South of the Yukon is a vast region, over 250 miles in extent, over which all supplies had to be transported, for the most part on the backs of horses and mules, the commissary wagons being rendered useless by the mud which follows the escape of frost from the soil in that region.

As might be expected, the greatest difficulties were encountered beyond the Arctic Circle. Following the rough sealing of the southern portion of the survey, the joint expeditions established their base at Rampart House, an ancient Hudson Bay station, on the Porcupine, whence several dashes were made before the Arctic ocean was finally reached.

When the steamers landed the topographers and their equipment at Rampart House, the native Indians were amazed at the drove of what they first took to be huge dogs, but later decided must be a variety of hornless caribou. Inquiry developed the fact that they had never before seen or heard of the horse.

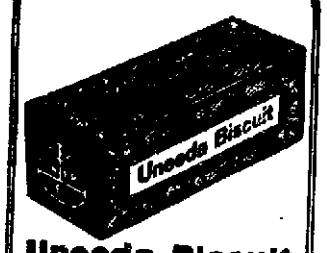

Almost at the water line of the Arctic ocean one of the larger of the monuments stands today, marking the international division. The final line required to place it there was over a region fairly bristling with natural difficulties, although only about 10 miles across. The course led over treacherous lakes and swamps of the Old Crow country, over the Ammon man mountains, the Davidson and British ranges, and thence down the long slope to the coast. On this dash wild animals raided the couches and menaced the surveyors, ravenous mosquitoes settled upon them in hordes day and night; phantom lakes, mountains and cities lured and confused them, and over all blazed the summer sun of the Arctics, 24 hours each day.

The farthest-north monument was placed in October, two years ago. Since then the line has been traversed several times for the purpose of closing up the different divisions and the work is not yet complete. Each year a large force of men will be employed during the open season, to brush out the avenue and keep the monuments in repair.

PREVENTION AGAINST DEATH

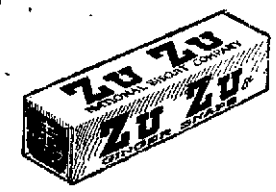

Strict Enforcement of Automobile Laws Urged in Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 6.—Strict enforcement of the automobile laws of the state and a liberal imposition of jail sentences by courts for violations are urged by Secretary of State Albert T. Phillips, who in a statement called attention today to the fact that there have been 14 deaths from automobile accidents in the state during the first four months of the year. In particular, Secretary Phillips warns automobilists against the danger of passing standing trolley cars.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The United States government today forwarded six gold watches and chains to the legation at Pekin for distribution among Chinese officers and civilians in recognition of services in saving the lives of American citizens in China.

KILLING BY PIRATES.

Details of a Raid on the Shinglai Brought by the Nippon Maru.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Details of a raid made by Chinese pirates on steamer Shinglai, March 31, in which a number of the ship's officers and crew were killed and $30,000 stolen, were brought here yesterday by Japanese liner Nippon Maru.

The Shinglai, which is a Chinese-owned vessel and flies the British flag, sailed from Hong Kong in the evening with 17 passengers, who proved to be pirates. Three hours out of port, at a pre-arranged signal, the pirates drew pistols and knives and attacked four soldiers who had been supplied by the Canton government to guard the vessel's treasure. One soldier was killed and another injured. The pirates then rushed into the engine room and took charge. There the keeper of the ship's stores tried to intervene and was killed. By disguising himself as a coolie and hiding, the Chinese skipper escaped with his life.

According to the Nippon Maru's officers the entire coast of China is infested with pirates. The government, being without funds to operate a coast patrol, is powerless. Thus far only native vessels have been attacked.

PONIES IN GOOD CONDITION.

American Polo Team to Hold Practice Games on Long Island.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The scene of polo activities preparatory to the international challenge cup matches next month were shifted today from Lakewood, N. J., to the grounds of the Meadow Brook Steeple Chase Association and the field of the Phipps estate on Long Island, where all future practice games between candidates for the American team will be held. The ponies used by the players were shipped by special train to Roslyn today. Playing on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays probably will be arranged. Trainer Fitzpatrick said today that, with the exception of three or four, the ponies were in as good a condition as he would ask for.

SINGLE RATE TO BE CHARGED.

Soldiers and Sailors to Send Mail Without Pre-Payment of Postage.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—American soldiers, sailors and marines, whether in the United States or not, may send their letters without the prepayment of postage to any place in the domestic mail service by marking them "soldier's letter," "sailor's letter" or "marine's letter," and having them indorsed by their commanding officers, under an order issued today by Postmaster General Burleson. Only a single rate of postage will be charged and this will be collected when the letter is delivered.

NOW HELD BY PENNSYLVANIA.

Three College Crews to Compete for the Childs Cup Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—The historic George W. Childs cup, which was first competed for by crews from Princeton, Columbia and Pennsylvania in 1879, will be one of the trophies awarded the winner of the race between crews from the same institutions next Saturday at Princeton. The Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania, present custodians of the cup, at its meeting yesterday granted the rowing committee permission to place the cup up for competition at Saturday's races. There was no race for the trophy last year and Columbia returned the cup to Pennsylvania.

Stevens Sands, her child, and Miss Barbara Rutherford. Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Jay, Mrs Levi P. Morton and Mr. George I. Seitz are also passengers on the France.

MARKING A BOUNDARY IN THE FAR NORTH.

Possessions of United States and Canada to be Separated.

Broad Line Across Miles of Wilderness Nearing Completion.

SITKA, Alaska, May 6.—The work of scarring a broad line across 600 miles of wilderness in the far north, in order that the possessions of the United States and Canada may have a distinct separation at every point, will be completed during the coming season. It has been in progress since 1907 under the direction of Thomas Riggs, Jr., civil engineer, representing the United States Alaskan Boundary Commission, and T. D. Craig, representing a similar commission of Canada.

Although the United States and Canada have been neighbors in the far north for more than a half-century, the exact dividing line between their possessions, especially as to the northern portion, was previous to this survey indefinite and conflicting. Many disputes arising, the two governments decided, finally, through their commissions, that an absolute survey, clearly established and marked for all time, should be made along the one hundred and forty-first meridian, from the Mt. St. Elias Alps, on the Pacific, to the Arctic ocean, a distance of approximately 660 miles.

The United States surveying party has consisted of from 60 to 80 men each season since the work was undertaken. Chief Engineer Riggs, himself a young college man, selected his aids from the hardiest classes—cowboys, forest rangers, prospectors, timber cruisers and frontiersmen, with a liberal sprinkling of engineers. New expeditions were organized each spring, although many of the men who started at the beginning have remained in the service up to the present time. It was the custom, too, to leave a few men in the north each winter to care for equipment and supplies.

The actual visible results of the six or seven years of effort is a 20-foot vista cut, like a gigantic avenue or lane, through all timber and brush districts, together with monuments set at intervisible points, from three to four miles apart.

The monuments erected are of two types, depending upon the importance of the locality. At prominent stream crossing and main points of travel the line marker consists of a five-foot aluminum-bronze shaft, weighing 300 pounds, set in 2,000 pounds of concrete. At less important points the monument is smaller, being designated as a cone, cast of the same metal, and requiring only 1,500 pounds of concrete for the base. There are approximately 200 of these monuments along the 600 miles of boundary. The work of conveying the heavy material for their construction, mostly on pack-animals, sometimes on the shoulders of the men themselves, was very slow and laborious.

This survey is declared by engineers to be the straightest in the world for the length encompassed. In speaking of it, one of the engineers said: "The start was made from one of the desolate peaks of the Mt. St. Elias Alps, on the southern extremity. There we laid our course straight for the Northern Lights and there after swerved not so much as a hair's-breadth—peaks, gulches, bottomless swamps, wherever the needle pointed there we went, one day cutting our way through brush tangles, the next building a track across marshes, or crawling over rocks and through crevasses."

Small steamers, plying the Yukon and Porcupine rivers, co-operated with the expedition, but were able to reach with supplies only a small portion of the actual route. South of the Yukon is a vast region, over 250 miles in extent, over which all supplies had to be transported, for the most part on the backs of horses and mules, the commissary wagons being rendered useless by the mud which follows the escape of frost from the soil in that region.

As might be expected, the greatest difficulties were encountered beyond the Arctic Circle. Following the rough scaling of the southern portion of the survey, the joint expeditions established their base at Rampart House, an ancient Hudson Bay station, on the Porcupine, whence several dashes were made before the Arctic ocean was finally reached.

When the steamers landed the topographers and their equipment at Rampart House, the native Indians were amazed at the drove of what they first took to be huge dogs, but later decided must be a variety of hornless caribou. Inquiry developed the fact that they had never before seen or heard of the horse.

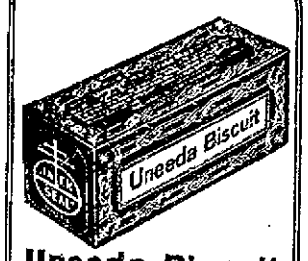

Almost at the water line of the Arctic ocean one of the larger of the monuments stands today, marking the international division. The final line required to place it there was over a region fairly bristling with natural difficulties, although only about 10 miles across. The course led over treacherous lakes and swamps of the Old Crow country, over the Ammerman mountains, the Davidson and British ranges, and thence down a long slope to the coast. On this dash wild animals raided the coaches and menaced the surveyors, ravenous mosquitoes settled upon them in hordes, day and night; phantom lakes, mountains and cities lured and confused them, and over all blazed the summer sun of the Arctics, 24 hours each day.

The farthest-north monument was placed in October, two years ago. Since then the line has been traversed several times for the purpose of closing up the different divisions and the work is not yet complete. Each year a large force of men will be employed during the open season, to brush out the avenue and keep the monuments in repair.

PREVENTION AGAINST DEATH

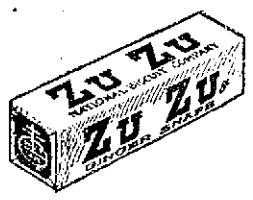

Strict Enforcement of Automobile Laws Urged in Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 6.—Strict enforcement of the automobile law of the state and a liberal imposition of jail sentences by courts for violations are urged by Secretary of State Albert T. Phillips, who in a statement called attention today to the fact that there have been 14 deaths from automobile accidents in the state during the first four months of the year. In particular, Secretary Phillips warns automobilists against the danger of passing standing trolley cars.

COLUMBIAN'S CAPTAIN AND 26 OF CREW SAFE.

Two Boats Picked Up by the Manhattan and Franconia.

Third Still Missing, Contains 17 Members of Burned Craft.

SABLE ISLAND, Nova Scotia, May 6—Captain McDonald and 13 members of the crew of British steamer Columbian, burned at sea, were saved by steamer Manhattan. A wireless despatch to this effect was received from the Manhattan by the Marconi station here early today.

The Manhattan, bound from New York for Antwerp, had been near the scene of the burning of the Columbian for some hours and was known to be searching for boats containing members of the Columbian's crew. Her success was announced by the following message:

"Manhattan picked up one boat of Columbian, captain and 13 others. One engineer killed in explosion and one man drowned leaving ship. Manhattan still searching for other boat."

The rescue, it was added, was made early this morning in 41-19 north latitude and 69.35 west longitude.

Yesterday Cunard liner Franconia picked up one of the Columbian's boats containing 13 men and the body of Chief Steward Matthews, so that 27 in all have been rescued alive. The other missing boat, for which the Manhattan and other steamers are still searching, contains the first and second officers and 17 men.

Steamer Columbian, bound from Antwerp to New York, caught fire at sea Sunday night. According to the wireless advices from the Franconia, which rescued the first boat of survivors, the flames spread quickly and were followed by explosions which necessitated the hasty abandoning of the steamer by the crew. The men got away in three boats, but in their haste were ill prepared for a battle with the seas in open boats. The first survivors when picked up had been adrift for 36 hours and suffered severely. Captain McDonald's boat, picked up early today by the Manhattan, was adrift for more than 50 hours before help reached them.

The rescued on board the Franconia are: James Drohan, wireless operator; Antone Elas, carpenter; Ivar Iverson, boatswain's mate; Unguse Prinz, Jens Jensen, A. Abelnick, quartermaster; Gustav Schriborn, donkey man; Thomas Connor, Juri Lel and Arthur Brantik, able seamen; Antony Cordenes and Bennett Rother, firemen, and Frank Wedekind, mess room steward.

The survivors suffered terribly during 40 hours exposure in an open boat. Their exhaustion was so great that it was impossible to obtain a coherent story from them several hours after their rescue.

The Columbian, which is owned by F. Leyland & Co., Limited, of Liverpool, caught fire when about 300 miles south of Cape Race. A series of violent explosions followed almost immediately.

Captain McDonald gave orders to the wireless operator, James Drohan, to send out calls for assistance, with the information that the ship was afire. Drohan was flashing out one of these cries for aid when an explosion destroyed the wireless apparatus, and the Columbian was cut off from communication with near-by ocean liners which might have lent succor.

With their vessel belching flames and wrecked by the intermittent explosions, the crew found themselves helpless. Safety lay only in abandoning the steamer, and this the captain ordered when the flames became almost unbearable.

The crew left the Columbian in boats. Chief Steward Matthews was in charge of the first, which was dropped over the windward side. Drohan, the wireless operator, went with him, his apparatus wrecked beyond possibility of being of any further help in obtaining aid. This boat put away from the steamer and lay to for a time. Its occupants watched the burning steamer, from which tongues of flame darted through a pall of dense smoke, which shut out view of the Columbian's sides.

Of their sufferings during the 40 hours in which they were tossed about, and of the death of Chief Steward Matthews during this time, the men could say little when they were brought on the decks of the Franconia.

Food and sleep were matters of first consideration for the survivors, and both were given them. Sympathetic passengers offered assistance to the shipwrecked ones, but Captain Miller of the Franconia saw that they were first given the required rest.

NUMBER OF SURVIVORS 27.

Franconia With Part of Columbian's Crew Expected at Midnight.

BOSTON, May 6.—The rescue of Captain McDonald and 13 members of the crew of the burned steamer Columbian by steamer Manhattan, made known through a wireless sent by the Manhattan to the Sable Island radio station early today, brought the number of known survivors to 27. Cunard liner Franconia, with 13 men from the Columbian and the body of Chief Steward Matthews on board, is expected to arrive off Boston light about midnight tonight.

The despatch from the Manhattan, which is bound from New York for Antwerp, told of the death of one engineer in an explosion which followed the breaking out of the flames on the Columbian, and of the drowning of a seaman while the men were leaving the ship. The Manhattan remained in the vicinity to search for a third boat, supposed to contain the chief and second officers of the Columbian and 17 seamen.

The boats picked up by the Franconia and the Manhattan were found not far from the Columbian, which was abandoned in the west-bound trans-Atlantic steamer lane south of Sable Island.

Captain John McDonald had been in command of the Columbian nearly five years and had been in the service of the Leyland line for a decade. He went to sea as a boy from Cape Breton, where he was born, became master of sailing vessels, among them the speedy packet Queenstown, and later turned to the steamers, rising from junior officers to a command.

The Franconia was about 600 miles east of Boston lightship when she first reported. Her captain is David S. Miller of Liverpool, a commander in the Royal Navy Reserve. On board the Franconia are 1,733 passengers, including 65 in the first cabin, 394 in the second cabin and 1,274 in the third cabin.

Steamer Columbian sailed from London April 16 for Antwerp, and thence April 23 for New York. She was last reported by wireless 810 miles east of Sandy Hook at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

The Columbian was a cargo vessel and is not believed to have had any passengers on board. She was of 5038 tons gross registry, 442 feet long, 45 feet beam and 31 feet depth. She was built by Harland & Wolff at Belfast in 1899 and was owned by F. Leyland & Co., Limited, of Liverpool. The Leyland Line is controlled by the International Mercantile Company with offices in New York.

The last direct word from the burning vessel had been a mysterious message, saying: "We are on fire; hurry up." It is believed that it was this message which Operator Drohan was flashing out when his apparatus was smashed by an explosion.

SURVIVORS EXHAUSTED.

Some of Columbian's Crew Picked Up by the Franconia Burned.

BOSTON, May 6.—The local office of the Cunard line today received a report from Captain Miller of the Franconia telling of the rescue of a part of the crew of steamer Columbian, which was burned at sea. The wireless message was dated today and follows:

"Received wireless from steamer Georgic 11:24 a. m. May 4. Seydlitz passed in 41 27 N 39 07 W, a large steamer burning all over. Hull high out of water, foremast and funnel gone, no people on board.'

"At the same time a wireless from Sable Island requesting me to endeavor to identify steamer, should I pass close, was received. At 1:15 p. m. I received from The Associated Press, Boston: 'Great alarm over Seydlitz's report of a big ocean liner afire. Rescue by Franconia. Please send brief despatch.'

"At that time rumor of rescue was not true. On receipt of Georgic's message I changed my course to cross given position of burning steamer, arriving there at 3 p. m. Could discover no trace of wreck, but decided, owing to false report and fearing influence on other possible rescuing steamers, to encircle position at six miles, and at 3:30 p. m. sighted a boat on starboard bow. Being already prepared, the occupants thereof were taken on board in a few minutes. A heavy swell was running at the time, so took precautions of putting out my sea boat to cover their embarkment. The boat contained 13 men, and a corpse lying awash in the bottom of the boat.

"The survivors had used trousers leg, from corpse, on end of boat hook for distress signal. Survivors were in a state of extreme exhaustion and mental collapse. Some had been burned by fire. They stated that they had been adrift 40 hours. Six were put under doctor's care in hospital and the others were given brandy and soup, bathed in hot water, and put to bed. They immediately fell asleep.

"The carpenter says the ship was the Columbian, sailing from Antwerp, and of about 12,000 tons register. He was asleep, heard the alarm of fire, and was coming along the deck and had arrived about amidships when an explosion occurred under his feet which blew him overboard. He was picked up by a small boat.

"A lamp trimmer's son states that his father was coming forward, calling for him, when the deck blew up and the lamp trimmer fell into the burning hold.

"A quartermaster says that Captain McDonald, chief engineer, chief officer and several others were getting a third boat out when a big explosion took place. He does not know if the captain and his boat were saved. The second officer got away with about 24 men 10 minutes before the boat that we picked up.

"All agree that the fire started at midnight, Saturday, from a cause unknown. It was first reported by the outlook man, who saw smoke coming up the fore hatch. Half an hour later the whole ship forward and amidships was in flames, with constant violent explosions. The wireless apparatus was wrecked.

"We are carrying to Boston body of the chief steward, who was frightfully injured by explosion and was delirious soon after the boat got away. He died Tuesday, mid-day. Our doctor certified that death was due to shock an exposure.

"After picking up the boat we made another detour, searching for other boats and deeply regret we could not find them, but many other steamers hastening to scene of disaster and trust, if not already picked up, following steamers will rescue them. Have Marconied all ships to look out for two missing boats and received replies from Manhattan, Haverford and Marongo."

IN QUIQUENNIAL SESSION.

International Council of Women in Rome to Meet Until May 14.

ROME, May 6.—The quiquennial session of the International Council of Women, now being held in Rome under the presidency of the Countess of Aberdeen, entered this morning upon its second day of business. The morning exercises included meetings of the standing committees of peace, finance and the press, and in the afternoon reports were heard from the committees on an equal moral standard and public health. The daily sessions are to continue until May 14.

The inaugural address of the Countess of Aberdeen lays particular emphasis on the impetus obtained by the womans' movement throughout the world. Women, said the countess, being true to the golden rule, comprehend the needs of humanity more than do men.

Reviewing the fundamental ideas of the International Council, the countess described these as favorable to international arbitration, the extension of suffrage to women, the improvement of the public health, the protection of emigrants and betterment in existing systems of education and opposed to the white slave traffic. She invited the council to form standing committees to deal with the subjects of anti-alcoholism and professional occupations for women. Children, said the countess, have a right to be well. If disease, crime, ignorance and vicious indulgence operate against their good health the parents must be educated to a higher conception of their obligations.

General Funston was today formally authorized to extend his lines about Vera Cruz as far as he deems necessary to afford proper protection to the city. It was explained that changes in the placing of the American troops would not include any movement which could be considered an advance from Vera Cruz. Reports reached here from various sources to the effect that the Mexicans already are destroying the railroads and bridges, but the department has received no confirmation up to this time.

In diplomatic circles despatches have been received, stating that fear of an attack on Mexico City by Zapata's forces causes considerable alarm. Huerta's hold upon his soldiers, these despatches say, is weakening and probability of opposition to the Zapata movement is decreasing. Zapata has said he would reach Mexico City before Villa.

Admiral Howard reported today from the west coast of Mexico that "relations with the Mexican authorities are more cordial than would be expected under the conditions." All ships of the American fleet, he said "had been ordered to avoid hostile acts and jeopardizing lives."

A late despatch from General Funston stated that food is not coming into Vera Cruz from the interior, but is being brought from shore villages and towns from the north and from Tejar on the south.

FUNSTON GIVEN FREE HAND.

Authorized to Extend Lines About Vera Cruz as Far as Necessary.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Orders have gone from the War Department to General Funston, it was learned today, authorizing him to extend his lines about Vera Cruz as far as "in his judgment it is necessary." This, it was explained, gives the American commander virtually a free hand in dealing with the situation in Vera Cruz, and it was said that the American lines would at once be extended and heavy fortifications thrown up.

General Funston, at Vera Cruz, reported to the War Department today that he had no definite information regarding movements of Mexican troops, and said he thought it probable that such concentration as the Mexican forces had made was only for the purpose of defending the lines of railroads to Mexico City in case the United States troops should advance. Mexican natives reported that the track of the Inter-Oceanic railroad was being torn up.

FEDERALS RETURN FIRE.

Rebels on Piedra Island Shell Mexican Gunboat Morelos.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Admiral Howard reports from Mazatlan that the rebels entrenched in Piedro island fired continuously all day yesterday with their rifles and field guns on Mexican Federal gunboat Morelos, lying in the harbor, and the fire was returned by Federalists from batteries on shore.

VILLA TO LEAD ATTACK.

Plans Provide for Simultaneous Charge on Saltillo and San Luis Potosi.

TORREON, May 6.—Preparations under way here have made it evident that the plan of campaign of Villa against the Federals provides for a simultaneous attack on Saltillo and San Luis Potosi. He, himself, has decided to lead the attack on Saltillo, while General Maclovio Herrera and General Benavides will lead a strong force against San Luis Potosi. The attack on San Luis Potosi will have the effect of practically isolating the Saltillo garrison.

Should the Federals under General Joaquin Maas be unable to hold Saltillo, nothing would remain for them but surrender or death, by hunger and thirst, if they were cut off from San Luis Potosi by an attacking force there. The country between the two points is almost barren and if the railroads were cut to the south, as Villa undoubtedly intends, but a few fugitives would have a chance of making their way through the stretch of desert on horseback or on foot.

There are approximately 10,000 men in the garrison at Saltillo and about 6,000 in San Luis Potosi. It is believed here that the loading of troops reported to have taken place at Saltillo was for the purpose of re-inforcing the San Luis Potosi garrison in expectation of a simultaneous attack.

QUIET IN OIL WELL DISTRICT.

Rebels Attack Federals in Northwestern Part of Vera Cruz Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Admiral Badger reported to the Navy Department today that rebel forces made a sharp attack yesterday on Mexican Federal troops in the northwestern portion of the province of Vera Cruz and to the west of Tampico. Theee was no decisive, results as far as he could learn, the report stated.

Admiral Badger's report said further that Admiral Mayo informed him of persistent rumors current about Tampico that Villa was on his way with re-inforcements for the Constitutionalists and intended to "take them and burn the city." Admiral Mayo stated that he did not put the slightest faith in the truce supposed to have been arranged between the rebels and Federals at Tampico. There had been no trouble recently in the oil well district, he added.

Precaution Taken Against Bringing Cartridges Into Mexico.

EL PASO, Texas, May 6.—Military officers and customs inspectors enforcing the embargo on arms and ammunition along the border have been compelled to install female inspectors at all crossings near here, to check the trickle of cartridges across the line. The close drawn shawls of the feminine adherents of Villa and Carranza, it is said, have covered enough cartridges to fill many a bandolier. All women crossing the international bridges into Mexico now are carefully searched.

BONNEY IN MEXICO CITY.

Consul Says All Americans in San Luis Potosi Were Safe.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The Brazilian minister in Mexico City informed the State Department today that American Consul Bonney, reported under arrest in San Luis Potosi, had arrived in Mexico City with Mrs. Bonney. Both were safe and well. The minister added that at last accounts all Americans in San Luis Potosi were safe.

NOT CONTROLLED BY CHURCH.

Methodists No Longer Connected With Vanderbilt University.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 6.—Methodist connection with Vanderbilt University at Nashville, through the recent decision of the Tennessee supreme court, has become a mere shadow, said the address of the bishops or general superintendents of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at the opening of the quadrennial General Conference here today. After several years of litigation, following efforts of a church commission to reach a solution of the question of the church's control of the university, the Tennessee supreme court recently decided that the church, through its bishops, did not control the school.

"The decree of the court leaves to the church a mere shadow of connection with the university," declared the address, "which in our opinion does not justify the church in any attempt to direct the affairs of the institution or assume any responsibility for it. We are thus deprived of what we honestly believed to be our own and which by hundreds of actions taken in our General and annual conferences, and in the board of trustees of the university itself, had been affirmed to be the property of the church. Indeed, the ownership of the university by the church was never questioned for more than 30 years by any one within or without the church, but as lawabiding citizens we bow to the decision of the court. This however, does not mean that we are bound to agree that the church has received justice in what has been done and decided.

"We do not presume to indicate to you what course you should pursue to repair the loss which has been inflicted on the church. That is for the wisdom of the General Conference to determine and * * * it is respectfully recommended that the whole matter be referred to a select committee to report what should be done as the case now stands."

The Conference was urged to "take such action as may be deemed necessary to secure the speedy and creditable erection of a church in Washington, D. C., adequately representative of our Methodism."

On the question of "laity rights" for women the cause for a widespread discussion at the 1910 General Conference, the address declares "we have reason to believe that the reason for the demand for this kind of equality is not in harmony with the general sentiment of the women of our church."

That no new bishops will be elected at the present General Conference is indicated.

Don't Take It Easy

THERE are lots of merchants who are prone to take things easy when they should be up and doing. It is not because they are lazy or because they shirk meeting an issue, but rather by reason of being uncertain just how to make a beginning.

This uncertainty is making many a merchant overlook the trade possibilities which the parcel post now enables him to develop. He hesitates, because he doesn't know how, about taking advantage of the low cost of delivering goods within his zone, which enables him to compete with even the largest mail order houses not in his immediate vicinity. He fails to realize that his field for trade is vastly broadened and that he can ship and deliver goods far more quickly to consumers within his district than any one else.

To take advantage of these features of the parcel post he must plan out an effective advertising campaign (it will pay him now where it wouldn't in times past) and organize an efficient shipping and correspondence department. The results will not be long in coming.

COLUMBIAN'S CAPTAIN AND 26 OF CREW SAFE.

Two Boats Picked Up by the Manhattan and Franconia.

Third Still Missing, Contains 17 Members of Burned Craft.

SABLE ISLAND, Nova Scotia, May 6—Captain McDonald and 13 members of the crew of British steamer Columbian, burned at sea, were saved by steamer Manhattan. A wireless despatch to this effect was received from the Manhattan by the Marconi station here early today.

The Manhattan, bound from New York for Antwerp, had been near the scene of the burning of the Columbian for some hours and was known to be searching for boats containing members of the Columbian's crew. Her success was announced by the following message:

"Manhattan picked up one boat of Columbian, captain and 13 others. One engineer killed in explosion and one man drowned leaving ship. Manhattan still searching for other boat."

The rescue, it was added, was made early this morning in 41.19 north latitude and 69.35 west longitude.

Yesterday Cunard liner Franconia picked up one of the Columbian's boats containing 13 men and the body of Chief Steward Matthews, so that 27 in all have been rescued alive. The other missing boat, for which the Manhattan and other steamers are still searching, contains the first and second officers and 17 men.

Steamer Columbian, bound from Antwerp to New York, caught fire at sea Sunday night. According to the wireless advices from the Franconia, which rescued the first boat of survivors, the flames spread quickly and were followed by explosions which necessitated the hasty abandoning of the steamer by the crew. The men got away in three boats, but in their haste were ill prepared for a battle with the seas in open boats. The first survivors when picked up had been adrift for 36 hours and suffered severely. Captain McDonald's boat, picked up early today by the Manhattan, was adrift for more than 50 hours before help reached them.

The rescued on board the Franconia are: James Drohan, wireless operator; Antone Elks, carpenter; Ivar Iverson, boatswain's mate; Unguse Printz, Jens Jensen, A. Abelulck, quartermaster; Gustav Schriborn, donkey man; Thomas Connor, Jurl Lel and Arthur Brantik, able seamen; Antony Cordenes and Bennett Rother, firemen; and Frank Wedekind, mess room steward.

The survivors suffered terribly during 40 hours exposure in an open boat. Their exhaustion was so great that it was impossible to obtain a coherent story from them several hours after their rescue.

The Columbian, which is owned by F. Leyland & Co., Limited, of Liverpool, caught fire when about 300 miles south of Cape Race. A series of violent explosions followed almost immediately.

Captain McDonald gave orders to the wireless operator, James Drohan, to send out calls for assistance, with the information that the ship was afire. Drohan was flashing out one of these cries for aid when an explosion destroyed the wireless apparatus, and the Columbian was cut off from communication with near-by ocean liners which might have lent succor.

With their vessel belching flames and wrecked by the intermittent explosions, the crew found themselves helpless. Safety lay only in abandoning the steamer, and this the captain ordered when the flames became almost unbearable.

The crew left the Columbian in boats, Chief Steward Matthews was in charge of the first, which was dropped over the windward side. Drohan, the wireless operator, went with him, his apparatus wrecked beyond possibility of being of any further help in obtaining aid. This boat put away from the steamer and lay to for a time. Its occupants watched the burning steamer, from which tongues of flame darted through a pall of dense smoke, which shut out view of the Columbian's sides.

Of their sufferings during the 40 hours in which they were tossed about, and of the death of Chief Steward Matthews during this time, the men could say little when they were brought on the decks of the Franconia.

Food and sleep were matters of first consideration for the survivors, and both were given them. Sympathetic passengers offered assistance to the shipwrecked ones, but Captain Miller of the Franconia saw that they were first given the required rest.

NUMBER OF SURVIVORS 27.

Franconia With Part of Columbian's Crew Expected at Midnight.

BOSTON, May 6.—The rescue of Captain McDonald and 13 members of the crew of the burned steamer Columbian by steamer Manhattan, made known through a wireless sent by the Manhattan to the Sable Island radio station early today, brought the number of known survivors to 27. Cunard liner Franconia, with 13 men from the Columbian and the body of Chief Steward Matthews on board, is expected to arrive off Boston light about midnight tonight.

The despatch from the Manhattan, which is bound from New York for Antwerp, told of the death of one engineer in an explosion which followed the breaking out of the flames on the Columbian, and of the drowning of a seaman while the men were leaving the ship. The Manhattan remained in the vicinity to search for a third boat, supposed to contain the chief and second officers of the Columbian and 17 seamen.

The boats picked up by the Franconia and the Manhattan were found not far from the Columbian, which was abandoned in the west-bound trans-Atlantic steamer lane south of Sable Island.

Captain John McDonald had been in command of the Columbian nearly five years and had been in the service of the Leyland line for a decade. He went to sea as a boy from Cape Breton, where he was born, became master of sailing vessels, among them the speedy packet Queenstown, and later turned to the steamers, rising from junior officers to a command.

The Franconia was about 600 miles east of Boston lightship when she first reported. Her captain is David S. Miller of Liverpool, a commander in the Royal Navy Reserve. On board the Franconia are 1,733 passengers, including 65 in the first cabin, 394 in the second cabin and 1,274 in the third cabin.

Steamer Columbian sailed from London April 16 for Antwerp, and thence April 23 for New York. She was last reported by wireless 810 miles east of Sandy Hook at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

The Columbian was a cargo vessel and is not believed to have had any passengers on board. She was of 5088 tons gross registry, 442 feet long, 49 feet beam and 31 feet depth. She was built by Harland & Wolff at Belfast in 1899 and was owned by F. Leyland & Co., Limited, of Liverpool. The Leyland Line is controlled by the International Mercantile Company with offices in New York.

The last direct word from the burning vessel had been a mysterious message, saying: "We are on fire; hurry up." It is believed that it was this message which Operator Drohan was flashing out when his apparatus was smashed by an explosion.

SURVIVORS EXHAUSTED.

Some of Columbian's Crew Picked Up by the Franconia Burned.

BOSTON, May 6.—The local office of the Cunard line today received a report from Captain Miller of the Franconia telling of the rescue of a part of the crew of steamer Columbian, which was burned at sea. The wireless message was dated today and follows:

"Received wireless from steamer Georgic 11:24 a. m. May 4: Seydlitz passed in 41.27 N. 59.07 W, a large steamer burning all over. Hull high out of water, foremast and funnel gone, no people on board.'

"At the same time a wireless from Sable Island requesting me to endeavor to identify steamer, should I pass close, was received. At 1:15 p. m. I received from The Associated Press, Boston: 'Great alarm over Seydlitz's report of a big ocean liner afire. Rescue by Franconia. Please send brief despatch.'

"At that time rumor of rescue was not true. On receipt of Georgic's message I changed my course to cross given position of burning steamer, arriving there at 3 p. m. Could discover no trace of wreck, but decided, owing to false report and fearing influence on other possible rescuing steamers, to encircle position at six miles, and at 3:30 p. m. sighted a boat on starboard bow. Being already prepared, the occupants thereof were taken on board in a few minutes. A heavy swell was running at the time, so took precautions of putting out my sea boat to cover their embarkment. The boat contained 13 men, and a corpse lying awash in the bottom of the boat.

"The survivors had used trousers leg, from corpse, on end of boat hook for distress signal. Survivors were in a state of extreme exhaustion and mental collapse. Some had been burned by fire. They stated that they had been adrift 10 hours. Six were put under doctor's care in hospital and the others were given brandy and soup, bathed in hot water, and put to bed. They immediately fell asleep.

"The carpenter says the ship was the Columbian, sailing from Antwerp, and of about 12,000 tons register. He was asleep, heard the alarm of fire, and was coming along the deck and had arrived about amidships when an explosion occurred under his feet which blew him overboard. He was picked up by a small boat.

"A lamp trimmer's son states that his father was coming forward, calling for him, when the deck blew up and the lamp trimmer fell into the burning hold.

"A quartermaster says that Captain McDonald, chief engineer, chief officer and several others were getting a third boat out when a big explosion took place. He does not know if the captain and his boat were saved. The second officer got away with about 24 men 10 minutes before the boat that we picked up.

"All agree that the fire started at midnight, Saturday, from a cause unknown. It was first reported by the outlook man, who saw smoke coming up the fore hatch. Half an hour later the whole ship foreward and amidships was in flames, with constant violent explosions. The wireless apparatus was wrecked.

"We are carrying to Boston body of the chief steward, who was frightfully injured by explosion and was delirious soon after the boat got away. He died Tuesday, mid-day. Our doctor certified that death was due to shock an exposure.

"After picking up the boat we made another detour, searching for other boats and deeply regret we could not find them, but many other steamers hastening to scene of disaster and trust, if not already picked up, following steamers will rescue them. Have Marconied all ships to look out for two missing boats and received replies from Manhattan, Haverford and Marongo."

Consul Says All Americans in San Luis Potosi Were Safe.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The Brazilian minister in Mexico City informed the State Department today that American Consul Bonney, reported under arrest in San Luis Potosi, had arrived in Mexico City with Mrs. Bonney. Both were safe and well. The minister added that at last accounts all Americans in San Luis Potosi were safe.

This suit tilts upward toward the front, the skirt being lifted to show the buttoned walking boot, and the little coat emphasizing the upward trend of the ruffled tunic. The costume is of mustard colored mohair and worsted mixture, with pussy willow taffeta ruffles in the same shade.

NOT CONTROLLED BY CHURCH.

Methodists No Longer Connected With Vanderbilt University.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 6.—Methodist connection with Vanderbilt University at Nashville, through the recent decision of the Tennessee supreme court, has become a mere shadow, said the address of the bishops or general superintendents of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at the opening of the quadrennial General Conference here today. After several years of litigation, following efforts of a church commission to reach a solution of the question of the church's control of the university, the Tennessee supreme court recently decided that the church, through its bishops, did not control the school.

"The decree of the court leaves to the church no share in the government in connection with the university," declared the address, "which in our opinion does not justify the church in any attempt to direct the affairs of the institution, or assume any responsibility for it. We are thus deprived of what we honestly believed to be our own and which by hundreds of actions taken in our General and annual conferences, and in the board of trustees of the university itself, had been affirmed to be the property of the church. Indeed, the ownership of the university by the church was never questioned for more than 30 years by any one within or without the church, but as law-abiding citizens we bow to the decision of the court. This however, does not mean that we are bound to agree that the church has received justice in what has been done and decided.

"We do not presume to indicate to you what course you should pursue to repair the loss which has been inflicted on the church. That is for the wisdom of the General Conference to determine and * * * it is respectfully recommended that the who's matter be referred to a select committee to report what should be done as the case now stands."

The Conference was urged to "take such action as may be deemed necessary to secure the speedy and creditable erection of a church in Washington, D. C., adequately representative of our Methodism."

On the question of "laity rights" for women, the cause for a widespread discussion at the 1910 General Conference, the address declares: "We have reason to believe that the reason for the demand for this kind of equality is not in harmony with the general sentiment of the women of our church."

That no new bishops will be elected at the present General Conference is indicated.

Don't Take It Easy

THERE are lots of merchants who are prone to take things easy when they should be up and doing. It is not because they are lazy or because they shirk meeting an issue, but rather by reason of being uncertain just how to make a beginning.

This uncertainty is making many a merchant overlook the trade possibilities which the parcel post now enables him to develop. He hesitates, because he doesn't know how, about taking advantage of the low cost of delivering goods within his zone, which enables him to compete with even the largest mail order houses not in his immediate vicinity. He fails to realize that his field for trade is vastly broadened and that he can ship and deliver goods far more quickly to consumers within his district than any one else.

To take advantage of these features of the parcel post he must plan out an effective advertising campaign (it will pay him now where it wouldn't in times past) and organize an efficient shipping and correspondence department. The results will not be long in coming.

BIRDS AND THEIR MUSIC.

Naturalist Pleases the Blind by Imitations of Calls and Songs.

Unfortunates "See" With Their Hands Stuffed Specimens of Favorites at Museum.

[New York Evening Post]

The average person, although there of course is no such a thing, has a stronger visual than auditory imagination and to this person birds' mean the flicker of wings through the woods or a flock of moving things silhouetted against the sky or dashes of color—a blue jay's swing or the brilliance of a cardinal with the black of its top knot. To people who do not see who are blind the songs of birds are the more positive things the more natural. They are the only means of identification and are full of memories. With these people it is not sight but sounds that means the birds are flying South for the winter or coming back in the spring or that a robin is saying the rain is done. And so Louis Agassiz Fuertes naturalist gave the greatest pleasure in his power to an audience of blind people in the American Museum of Natural History when he talked about "Our Birds and Their Music" and imitated the calls and songs of every bird he mentioned. And it was the blind people in the audience and not those who had brought them there who responded most quickly to a familiar note and who were made happy by it.

Their favorites were the whippoorwill whose song Mr Fuertes says is to him the least melancholy the most joyful and exultant the different kinds of all the field sparrow and meadow lark the woodpewee and a robin at twilight. Mr Fuertes gave the song of every bird from the queer weird cries of the seabirds and the songs of the shorebirds who make flights of thousands of miles every year to the thin dry sound of the pewee in the hot summer woods. His thrush notes were marvellously real and it was the natural tendency of every one in the room who was not blind to close his eyes and feel himself in the especial patch of woods or bit of lawn which had always meant thrushes and thrush songs to him.

But it was with even keener interest and an almost feverish delight that the blind people saw with their hands, the stuffed specimens of the birds whose calls they had heard in the huge entrance hall of the museum. Their fingers were ever moving never satisfied. They could not seem to get enough. They followed every line and noted every difference between stubby tails and long ones texture of feathers and all characteristics. One tiny old lady with hands as small as a little child loved the big owl most of all. "Oh isn't he fine and big!" she would say over and over and she stroked him and held him and patted him as if he satisfied her fingers supremely as if she could never feel of him enough. She was led about by her son a big rough fellow who yet seemed the gentlest nurse an old lady ever had.

Boy Scouts some of them so small that it seemed adventurous for them to be out at night brought the people who had no families to come with them. Many men came with tiny daughters or granddaughters. One of these men had either been a naturalist or he lost his eyesight or else had studied birds with the help of books for the blind. He pointed out to the little girl all the small differences between one stuffed bird and another his face radiant with pleasure with being where he was perfectly at home.

The robin! Oh that's pretty. I can remember some of them you know one woman said wistfully as she held the stuffed thing in her hand for a long time. Every one was interested, and every one w... pleased ... heer ful ... se med q ... te on ... t ... at ... n ... a blind ... n ... a t ... ... of ... t ... thes ... who ... s ... The one person who made every one long to help was the little old lady with the owl ... could not seem to get enough. Her little hands were outstretched all the time trying to find something new something big and solid to explore and feel and know about.

One little boy sorted the birds in together and went meteoring for meteors are th... in the entrance hall of the museum. He felt of every bit of the rough surfaces and stretched his arms as high as he could but he could not reach the top and he had no idea how much higher it went.

New York is a great place—even the blind are ... ited and helped one blind man said reflectively to his companion. And the people don't appreciate ... the people did seem to appreciate ...

A POPULAR TUNE.

"Dixie" Sung in Both the North and South During the Civil War

[New York Mail]

The Mine... n who goes back home in disgust because of the incessant playing of ... in New York, must be an extremely sensitive Yankee. We hate to lose him but probably it can't be helped. "Dixie" is a popular tune here.

As a matter of fact it was always popular even in the North. It was sung in the Northern states during the Civil war as much probably, as it was in the South. The Northerner who was a child in the sixties remembers Dixie as a part of his youthful repertoire along with "John Brown's Body" "Rally Round the Flag" "Tramp Tramp Tramp" "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" and "Marching Through Georgia." There is in fact no such thing as a sectional air in this country a song that is popular in one section inevitably spreads until it takes in the whole land. It is true that the Southerners do not yet take kindly to "Marching Through Georgia" and "John Brown's Body," but they know the tunes well and sometimes use them with other words. The prejudice against them is disappearing.

Northerners can well afford to like and use "Dixie" for there is not a word in it which is offensive to the North and that is more than can be said, from the Southern point of view with regard to "John Brown's Body" and "Marching Through Georgia" both of which were conquerors songs or battle songs.

The time is at hand when we can say of the war tunes what the old Confederates said at Gettysburg when ... the war the losers there. Well, it is all a part of history now."

NEWPORT'S GOVERNMENT.

The Entire Community Derives Great Benefit from New System.

[Passaic News]

Newport, which is in Rhode Island has an exceedingly unique plan of government over which its citizens are very enthusiastic after seven years of trial. A mayor and five aldermen are elected to execute the laws and that is all they do, for they are subservient in every other way to what they call a Representative Council whose functions are a combination of the old fashioned New England town meeting and the new fashioned Western round-up for the purposes of initiative, recall or referendum rolled into one. This council consists of 195 members 39 from each of the five wards. Each ward infuses new blood into its representation by an election of 13 every year. It supervises the assessment and collection and controls the appropriation and disbursement of the fund ... enacts all laws and exercises a compelling influence on every branch of the government. It serves of course without one cent of compensation. Its effect upon what had been a graft ridden community has been so beneficial that a serious suggestion of abandoning it and of returning to the old system would create wonderment and doubt as to the sanity of the proposer.

We have a bound manual of its appropriations for 1908. For streets and highways there was appropriated the sum of $91,7... Now every one knows that of all cities in this country Newport is the city beautiful par excellence and will recognize that when this sum maintains the city ... ves and wharves—which are city property—and the expense of cleaning the streets the removal of snow and ice and of watering and oiling them cleaning and repairing of sewers culverts and settling tanks general repairs of streets and sidewalks ($8,100 for that) building repairing and cleaning catch basins resurfacing and macadamizing streets ($9,700) resetting curbs gutters and crossways taking care of the beach collection of garbage (about $7,000) and a lot of new work (about $9,000) etc. etc. some idea is gathered as to how efficiently it is spent.

But the most important feature is that through this council composed as it is of about one to every 200 inhabitants the whole people are drawn into an intimate relation to the government which never flags. For it has only an annual session and every member makes a supreme effort to attend that and those who are ... members have the right of speech. One other feature of this peculiar government. Any amount above $10,000 to be spent for a single object aside from the annual appropriations is subject to a decision or a referendum to the people upon an appeal to the Representative Council of 170 citizens provided that in the 170 are included the signatures of 10 from each ward.

An adjunct like this council to municipal government compels the selection ... employment of the people's ... and keeps the office holder to his full ability.

TEACHING HORSES TO THINK

Wonderful Stallion Makes Rapid Progress in Spelling and Reading

[Maurice Maeterlinck in Metropolitan]

Some 20 years ago there lived in Berlin an old misanthrope named Wilhelm von Olsten. He was a man with a small private income a little eccentric in his ways and obsessed by one idea the intelligence of animals. He began by undertaking the education of a horse that gave him no definite results. But, in 1900 he became the owner of a Russian stallion which under the name of Hans to which was soon added the Homeric and well earned prefix of Kluge or Wise was destined to upset all our notions of animal psychology and to raise questions that rank among the most unexpected and the most absorbing problems which man has yet encountered.

A well to do Elberfeld manufacturer Herr Krall had taken a great interest in von Osten's labors and during the latter years of the old man's life had eagerly followed and even on occasion directed the education of the wonderful stallion. Von Osten left Kluge Hans to him by will on his own side Krall had bought two Arab stallions Muhamed and Zarif whose prowess soon surpassed that of the pioneer.

He talks to them long and tenderly as a father might talk to his children and we have the strange feeling that they listen to all that he says and understand it. If they appear not to grasp an explanation or a demonstration he will begin it all over again analyze it paraphrase it ten times in succession with the patience of a mother. And so their progress has been incomparably swifter and more astounding than that of old Hans. Within a fortnight of the first lesson Muhamed did simple little addition and subtraction sums quite correctly. He had learned to distinguish the tens from the units striking the latter with his right foot and the former with his left. He knew the meaning of the symbols plus and minus. Four days later he was beginning multiplication and division. In four months time he knew how to extract square and cubic roots and soon after he learned to spell and read by means of the conventional alphabet devised by Krall.

MIX-UP ON THE BIDS.

asked permission to put in a flush iron door in the sidewalk, as an entrance to its cellar from Meeting street, in place of the present coal hole. Permission was given under the direction of the street commissioner.

Fischel David asked for permission to plant four trees in the sidewalk in front of his estate on Pond avenue, and permission to do so was gladly given, subject of course to the direction of the street commissioner. Thomas Lucas asked for permission to plant four trees in the sidewalk on Third street in front of his house, and permission was given. Messrs Lucas and David were placed on the roll of honor for desiring to plant trees.

When William G Peckham asked permission to cut down a tree on Bliss road the matter was referred to Alderman Kirby to look into and report. According to Mr Peckham's petition the cutting down is preliminary to the opening of a new street opposite where the tree stands.

A petition was received from William L Carter of "Quarterfoil," Narragansett avenue asking for a culvert near his property. He said it is the lowest on the avenue and the water runs there overflows his walks and comes into his cellar. He thought a culvert similar to the one across the road would help. The matter was referred to Alderman Leddy.

A resolution was passed authorizing the city treasurer to contract with the First National Bank of Boston for the printing advertising and certifying of the $10,000 bonds for Third Street improvement.

A communication was received from the street commissioner suggesting that the weather has come around so that it seems seasonable to have the granolithic walk laid on the beach hill to replace the walk washed out by the storm last March. He submitted specifications for the construction in accordance with other sidewalks built for the city, the city to put in the foundation. Alderman Kirby mindful of last year when everything could best be done by the department asked if this was the best way to do the work. The mayor said of course for there was competition in this. The board voted to authorize the city clerk to ask for bids on the construction of this piece of granolithic walk.

Carl Berger was granted a license for a tavern and Mrs R. McKie a license to sell fireworks.

A petition was received from William B Franklin and others asking that the sidewalk in front of the new parsonage of the Second Baptist Church on Bull street be repaired or a new walk laid. Mr Hughes said a new building has been erected and it is desired to have the sidewalk fixed. The matter was referred to the street commissioner with power to act.

Bids were opened for $60,000 notes of the city treasurer in anticipation of taxes. There were five as follows: Livingston Davis 3 16 per cent discount. Blake Bros. & Co, 3 17 per cent plus 36 cents. Aquidneck National Bank 3 22 per cent plus 50 cents, Bond & Goodwin 3 27 per cent plus 50 cents. Curtis & Sanger 3 34 per cent. The award was to Livingston Davis the lowest bidder.

Alderman Hughes reported that James J Lynch had informed him that he had made a mistake in bidding on the heating of the Coggeshall School addition having figured only on one boiler when the specifications called for two. He asked to be relieved of his bid. No official action was taken but the understanding was that he was relieved of responsibility on his bid. The next bidder Mr Smith bid only on condition that he do the entire job. This made the lowest bidder R B Wilson Jr whose bid is higher than that of Mr Lawton. It was thought it would not be right to take any action until after the architect and Mr Lawton had been given a hearing for it might be that Mr Lawton's was a legitimate bid and should be considered, so action was deferred.

The city clerk suggested that Friday being a holiday it was desirable for the aldermen to meet Wednesday to pass the pay rolls. This the board decided to do meeting at 7 30 as the committee on Clarke Street School has a session at 8. Mr Lawton and the architect will be asked to be present at this time instead of Thursday, as at first planned.

Mr Leddy for the committee on public convenience had plans for the new public convenience on Touro park. He said there was no agreement as to location. Some desired it in one place and some in another. The Park Commission it appears desires it in Aquidneck park. The committee favors having it as at the Mall under the band stand and the plans he had were prepared with that in view. The mayor said the park is already well filled and perhaps it would be desirable to avoid if possible another structure on it. He suggested that the matter does not seem to merit a public hearing and that the committee could settle the question of site.

The board adjourned to meet Wednesday at 7 30.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of this Free Prescription—Try it if your Eyes Give You Trouble

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist who would any way charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten cent store and often times get glasses that they do not need or which after being used two or three months do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use.

5 grains Optona (1 tablet)
2 ounces Water

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation weak watery overworked tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which could injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know what real eye comfort is.

Naturalist Pleases the Blind by Imitations of Calls and Songs.

Unfortunates "See" With Their Hands Stuffed Specimens of Favorites at Museum.

[New York Evening Post.]

The average person, although there of course is no such a thing, has a stronger visual than auditory imagination, and to this person "birds" mean the flicker of wings through the woods or a flock of moving things silhouetted against the sky, or dashes of color—a blue jay's swing or the brilliance of a cardinal with the black of its top knot. To people who do not see, who are blind, the songs of birds are the more positive things, the more natural. They are the only means of identification and are full of memories. With these people, it is not sight, but sounds, that means the birds are flying South for the winter, or coming back in the spring, or that a robin is saying the rain is done. And so Louis Agassiz Fuertes, naturalist, gave the greatest pleasure in his power to an audience of blind people in the American Museum of Natural History, when he talked about "Our Birds and Their Music" and imitated the calls and songs of every bird he mentioned. And it was the blind people in the audience, and not those who had brought them there, who responded most quickly to a familiar note and who were made happy by it.

Their favorites were the whippoorwill, whose song Mr. Fuertes says is to him the least melancholy, the most joyful and exultant; the different kinds of owl the field sparrow and meadow lark, the woodpewee and a robin at twilight. Mr. Fuertes gave the song of every bird from the queer, weird cries of the seabirds and the songs of the shorebirds, who make flights of thousands of miles every year, to the thin dry sound of the pewee in the hot summer woods. His thrush notes were marvellously real, and it was the natural tendency of every one in the room who was not blind to close his eyes and feel himself in the especial patch of woods or bit of lawn which had always meant thrushes and thrush songs to him.

But it was with even keener interest and an almost feverish delight that the blind people "saw," with their hands, the stuffed specimens of the birds whose calls they had heard, in the huge entrance hall of the museum. Their fingers were ever moving, never satisfied. They could not seem to get enough. They followed every line, and noted every difference between stubby tails and long ones, texture of feathers and all characteristics. One tiny old lady, with hands as small as a little child's, loved the big owl most of all. "Oh, isn't he fine and big?" she would say over and over, and she stroked him and held him and patted him as if he satisfied her fingers supremely; as if she could never feel of him enough. She was led about by her son, a big, rough fellow, who yet seemed the gentlest nurse an old lady ever had.

Boy Scouts some of them so small that it seemed adventurous for them to be out at night, brought the people who had no families to come with them. Many men came with tiny daughters or granddaughters. One of these men had either been a naturalist before he lost his eyesight, or else had studied birds with the help of books for the blind. He pointed out to the little girl with the small differences between one stuffed bird and another, his face radiant with pleasure with being where he was perfectly at home.

"The robin! Oh, that's pretty! I can remember some of them, you know," one woman said wistfully, as she held the stuffed thing in her hand for a long time. Every one was interested, and every one was pleased and cheerful, and seemed quite unconscious that cheerfulness in a blind person seemed a miracle of bravery to those who saw. The whole attitude there of these people was summed up by one blind girl.

"How are you?" a friend asked her.

"Oh, I feel just fine!" she answered, and she meant it.

The one person who made every one long to help was the little old lady with the owl who could not seem to get enough. Her little hands were outstretched all the time, trying to find something new, something big and solid to explore and feel and know about.

One little boy deserted the birds altogether and went meteoring, for meteors are thick in the entrance hall of the museum. He felt of every bit of the rough surfaces and stretched his arms as high as he could, but he could not reach the top and he had no idea how much higher it went.

"New York is a great place—even the blind are educated and helped," one blind man said reflectively, to his companion. "And the people don't appreciate it." But the people did seem to appreciate it.

A POPULAR TUNE.

"Dixie" Sung in Both the North and South During the Civil War.

[New York Mail.]

The Maine man who goes back home in disgust because of the incessant playing of "Dixie" in New York, must be an extremely sensitive Yankee. We hate to lose him, but probably it can't be helped. "Dixie" is a popular tune here.

As a matter of fact, it was always popular, even in the North. It was sung in the Northern states during the Civil war as much, probably, as it was in the South. The Northerner who was a child in the sixties remembers "Dixie" as a part of his youthful repertoire, along with "John Brown's Body," "Rally Round the Flag," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" and "Marching Through Georgia." There is, in fact, no such thing as a sectional air in this country; a song that is popular in one section inevitably spreads until it takes in the whole land. It is true that the Southerners do not yet take kindly to "Marching Through Georgia" and "John Brown's Body," but they know the tunes well, and sometimes use them with other words. The prejudice against them is disappearing.

Northerners can well afford to like and use "Dixie" for there is not a word in it which is offensive to the North; and that is more than can be said, from the Southern point of view, with regard to "John Brown's Body" and "Marching Through Georgia," both of which were conquerors' songs, or battle songs.

The time is at hand when we can say of the war tunes what the old Confederates said at Gettysburg when remarked that they were the Union tunes. "Well, it is all a part of history now."

NEWPORT'S GOVERNMENT.

The Entire Community Derives Great Benefit from New System.

[Passaic News.]

Newport, which is in Rhode Island, has an exceedingly unique plan of government over which its citizens are very enthusiastic after seven years of trial. A mayor and five aldermen are elected to execute the laws and that is all they do, for they are subservient in every other way to what they call a Representative Council, whose functions are a combination of the old fashioned New England town meeting and the new fashioned Western round-up for the purposes of initiative, recall or referendum rolled into one. This council consists of 195 members; 39 from each of the five wards. Each ward infuses new blood into its representation by an election of 13 every year. It supervises the assessment and collection and controls the appropriation and disbursement of the funds; enacts all laws and exercises a compelling influence on every branch of the government. It serves of course without one cent of compensation. Its effect upon what had been a graft ridden community has been so beneficial that a serious suggestion of abandoning it and of returning to the old system would create wonderment and doubt as to the sanity of the proposer.

We have in hand a manual of its appropriations for 1908. For streets and highways there was appropriated the sum of $91,755. Now every one knows that of all cities in this country Newport is the city beautiful par excellence, and will recognize that when this sum maintains the city offices and wharves—which are city property—and the expense of cleaning the streets, the removal of snow and ice and of watering and oiling them; cleaning and repairing of sewers, culverts and settling tanks; general repairs of streets and sidewalks ($8,100 for that), building, repairing and cleaning catch basins; re-surfacing and re-macadamizing streets ($39,750); re-setting curbs, gutters and crossways; taking care of the beach; collection of garbage (about $7,000); and a lot of new work (about $3,000) etc., etc., some idea is gathered as to how efficacious it is spent.

But the most important feature is that through this council, composed as it is of about one to every 200 inhabitants, the whole people are drawn into an intimate relation to the government which never flags. For it has only an annual session and every member makes a supreme effort to attend that, and those who are not members have the right of speech. One other feature of this peculiar government. Any amount above $10,000 to be spent for a single object, aside from the annual appropriations, is subject to a decision of a referendum to the people upon an appeal to the Representative Council of 150 citizens, provided that in the 150 are included the signatures of 10 from each ward.

An adjunct like this council to municipal government compels the existing employment of the people's money and keys the office holder to his full ability.

TEACHING HORSES TO THINK

Wonderful Stallion Makes Rapid Progress in Spelling and Reading.

[Maurice Maeterlinck, in Metropolitan.]

Some 20 years ago there lived in Berlin an old misanthrope named Wilhelm von Osten. He was a man with a small private income, a little eccentric in his ways and obsessed by one idea: the intelligence of animals. He began by undertaking the education of a horse that gave him no definite results. But, in 1900, he became the owner of a Russian stallion which, under the name of Hans, to which was soon added the Homeric and well-earned prefix of Kluge, or Wise, was destined to upset all our notions of animal psychology and to raise questions that rank among the most unexpected and the most absorbing problems which man has yet encountered.

A well-to-do Elberfeld manufacturer, Herr Krall, had taken a great interest in von Osten's labors and, during the latter years of the old man's life, had eagerly followed and even on occasion directed the education of the wonderful stallion. Von Osten left Kluge Hans to him by will; on his own side, Krall had bought two Arab stallions, Muhamed and Zarif, whose prowess soon surpassed that of the pioneer.

He talks to them long and tenderly, as a father might talk to his children; and we have the strange feeling that they listen to all that he says and understand it. If they appear not to grasp an explanation or a demonstration, he will begin it all over again, analyze it, paraphrase it ten times in succession, with the patience of a mother. And so their progress has been incomparably swifter and more astounding than that of old Hans. Within a fortnight of the first lesson, Muhamed did simple little addition and subtraction sums quite correctly. He had learned to distinguish the tens from the units, striking the latter with his right foot and the former with his left. He knew the meaning of the symbols, plus and minus. Four days later, he was beginning multiplication and division. In four months' time, he knew how to extract square and cubic roots; and, soon after, he learned to spell and read by means of the conventional alphabet devised by Krall.

ELI SPRAGUE ADVANCED.

Eli Sprague, Jr., has been appointed keeper of the New Shoreham life saving station. He was born on Block Island September 14, 1875, and entered the service as surfman No. 6 at the Point station August 1, 1900. He was promoted to surfman No. 5 August 1, 1911; October 8 of that year was transferred to the New Shoreham station as surfman No. 6, and May 16, 1912, was promoted to surfman No. 5. At the commencement of the present active season August 1, 1913, he was again promoted surfman No. 1, succeeding James E. Dewey, resigned. His transfer was due to faithful performance of all duties connected with the service, and to the interest he took in it.

MIX-UP ON THE BIDS.

asked permission to put in a flush iron door in the sidewalk, as an entrance to its cellar from Meeting street, in place of the present coal hole. Permission was given under the direction of the street commissioner.

Fiscle, David asked for permission to plant four trees in the sidewalk in front of his estate on Pond avenue, and permission to do so was gladly given, subject of course to the direction of the street commissioner. Thomas Lucas asked for permission to plant four trees in the sidewalk on Third street in front of his house, and permission was given. Messrs. Lucas and David were placed on the roll of honor for desiring to plant trees.

When William G. Peckham asked permission to cut down a tree on Bliss road the matter was referred to Alderman Kirby, to look into and report. According to Mr. Peckham's petition the cutting down is preliminary to the opening of a new street opposite where the tree stands.

A petition was received from William H. Carter of "Quarterfoil," Narragansett avenue, asking for a culvert near his property. He said it is the lowest on the avenue and the water runs there, overflows his walks and comes into his cellar. He thought a culvert similar to the one across the road would help. The matter was referred to Alderman Leddy.

A resolution was passed authorizing the city treasurer to contract with the First National Bank of Boston for the printing, advertising and certifying of the $30,000 bonds for Third Street improvement.

A communication was received from the street commissioner, suggesting that the weather has come around so that it seems seasonable to have the granolithic walk laid on the beach hill, to replace the walk washed out by the storm last March. He submitted specifications for the construction in accordance with other sidewalks built for the city, the city to put in the foundation. Alderman Kirby, mindful of last year, when everything could best be done by the department, asked if this was the best way to do the work. The mayor said of course, for there was competition in this. The board voted to authorize the city clerk to ask for bids on the construction of this piece of granolithic walk.

Carl Berger was granted a license for a tavern and Mrs. H. McKie a license to sell fireworks.

A petition was received from William B. Franklin and others, asking that the sidewalk in front of the new parsonage of the Second Baptist Church on Bull street be repaired or a new walk laid. Mr. Hughes said a new building has been erected and it is desired to have the sidewalk fixed. The matter was referred to the street commissioner with power to act.

Bids were opened for $50,000 notes of the city treasurer, in anticipation of taxes. There were five, as follows: Livingston Davis, 3.16 per cent discount; Blake Bros. & Co., 3.17 per cent, plus 26 cents; Aquidneck National Bank, 3.22 per cent, plus 50 cents; Bond & Goodwin, 3.37 per cent plus 50 cents; Curtis & Sanger 3.34 per cent. The award was to Livingston Davis, the lowest bidder.

Alderman Hughes reported that James J. Lynch had informed him that he had made a mistake in bidding on the heating of the Coggeshall School addition, having figured only on one boiler when the specifications called for two. He asked to be relieved of his bid. No official action was taken, but the understanding was that he was relieved of responsibility on his bid. The next bidder, Mr. Smith, bid only on condition that he do the entire job. This made the lowest bidder R. B. Wilson, Jr., whose bid is higher than that of Mr. Lawton. It was thought it would not be right to take any action until after the architect and Mr. Lawton had been given a hearing, for it might be that Mr. Lawton's was a legitimate bid and should be considered, so action was deferred.

The city clerk suggested that, Friday being a holiday, it was desirable for the aldermen to meet Wednesday to pass the pay rolls. This the board decided to do, meeting at 7:30, as the committee on Clarke Street School has a session at 8. Mr. Lawton and the architect will be asked to be present at this time, instead of Thursday, as at first planned.

Mr. Leddy, for the committee on public convenience had plans for the new public convenience on Touro park. He said there was no agreement as to location; some desired it in one place and some in another. The Park Commission, it appears, desires it in Aquidneck park. The committee favors having it as at the Mall, under the band stand, and the plans he had were prepared with that in view. The mayor said the park is already well filled and perhaps it would be desirable to avoid if possible another structure on it. He suggested that the matter does not seem to merit a public hearing and that the committee could settle the question of site.

The board adjourned to meet Wednesday at 7:30.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of this Free Prescription—Try it if your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles, because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten-cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona (1 tablet)
2 ounces Water

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefitted and oftentimes cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which could injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know for sure what real eye comfort is.

BECKER FACES SECOND TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Whitman's Practice of Talking to Reporters Attacked.

Request for Change of Venue Denied and Selection of Jury Begun.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Charles Becker, once a lieutenant in the police department, was today placed on trial for the second time for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, in July, 1912. Notwithstanding that the crime was committed nearly two years ago, public interest in the case appeared hardly less acute than at the first trial, when Becker and the four gun men were found guilty. The latter died in the electric chair and Becker was granted a new trial by a higher court.

At the outset of the proceedings today the defense attacked what it characterized as District Attorney Whitman's practice of "talking to the newspapers," to the detriment of their client's case. For this reason they asked for a change of venue. This the court denied, and the selection of the jury was begun. The first twojurors accepted by both sides were F. Meredith Blagden, a bond broker and for two years a student at the Harvard Law School, and William B. Dalton, an advertising agent.

Becker, dressed with care, sat with his wife at the counsel table.

Bourke Cockran was among counsel for the defense.

The prosecution, it was said, had found an important new witness in Walter Washington, a negro formerly employed as a porter in "Bridgie" Webber's poker rooms. He disappeared after the murder and only recently came back to town. It was said that he was prepared to testify to alleged conversations between Becker and certain of the conspirators in the crime.

There were early indications that Mr. Whitman intended to go fully into the graft phase of the case.

Among the names of prospective witnesses for the state, as called out by the clerk, were Rhinelander Waldo, former commissioner of police; Winfield Sheehan, his secretary, the wife of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, the dead gunman, and an assortment of gamblers and characters of the Tenderloin.

Justice Seabury, after listening to Mr. Cochran's arguments that the district attorney should be adjudged guilty of contempt of court for having talked freely of the case before it was brought to trial, denied the motion for a change of venue.

It is thought that the remainder of the week will be required to complete the jury and that the trial will last three weeks or a month. There will be no night sessions, but court will be held Saturdays.

Nearly 100 witnesses have been subpoenaed by the state and defense. Many of the witnesses at the last trial have been ignored by the district attorney. It is not probable that Sam Schepps, one of the principal informers at the previous trial, will be called. A chauffeur named Cohen, who testified for the defense at the first trial, has, according to rumor, come over to the side of the prosecution and will supplant Schepps as a corroborating witness concerning an alleged meeting between Becker and the conspirators prior to the murder.

The crime for which Becker stands indicted occurred early in the morning of July 16, 1912, and was the result of a war among factions of gamblers. Rosenthal was expected on that day to go to the office of the district attorney and narrate a story involving Becker, who, it was whispered among the gamblers, had been a sort of a silent partner in Rosenthal's gambling house.

For the shooting of the so-called "squealer," "Gyp the Blood," "Dago Frank," "Whitey Lewis" and "Lefty Louis" died in the electric chair at Sing Sing. The court of appeals held, however, that the evidence has not shown that they had been Becker's instruments. Of the informers who turned state's evidence, "Bald Jack" Rose, Harry Vallon and others, all except Schepps, it is understood, will be called upon to repeat their story at the present trial.

OLNEY'S LETTER TO WILSON.

Devotion of Entire Time to Federal Board Obstacle to His Acceptance.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—President Wilson today received Richard Olney's letter declining the appointment as governor of the federal reserve board. The letter, which was dated Boston, May 4, follows:

"My dear Mr. President:

"I feel honored quite beyond words by your letter of the thirtieth ultimo, by the important offer and by the friendly expressions of confidence which accompanied the offer, but the act of Congress which very properly requires each member of the federal reserve board to give his entire time to his work is an insuperable obstacle to my acceptance of the offer. In the course of a long life I have in various instances assumed duties and undertaken trusts which from their personal nature cannot properly be devolved upon others.

"If the conclusion I have come to is a disappointment to you I greatly regret it, but you can hardly be sorrier than I am that I am able to do so little in aid of an administration whose first year of achievement makes it one of the most notable the country has ever known.

"Trusting you will not suffer your health and strength to be impaired by the strain of the unusual difficulties now attending the duties of your great office, I am,

"Sincerely yours,
"Richard Olney."

The President has not yet selected any one to substitute Mr. Olney on the board and is not likely to make a choice for several days, as he is canvassing the field of available men. It was said by persons close to the President that in all likelihood a New England man would be chosen, so the geographical representation might be symmetrical. C. S. Hamlin, now Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who comes from Boston, has been mentioned for the place among others. It is unlikely the governorship of the board will go to the New Englander, but that one of the four men already selected for the board will be its governor. Either W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, Ala., or Paul M. Warburg of New York may be selected.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, May 6, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper at 72½, American Locomotive 31¼, American Smelting and Refining 62½, Anaconda 33, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe 95, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 92⅞, Canadian Pacific 192⅞, Central Leather 35¾, Chicago & Northwestern 135⅜, Erie 28½, Missouri Pacific 20⅝, New York Central 92¾, Northern Pacific 110, Pennsylvania 111, Reading 164⅝, Southern Pacific 91⅞, Union Pacific 155¾, United States Steel 59½, Wabash preferred 18⅝, Westinghouse Electric 74¼.

Speculation was characterized during today's early market by the growing dullness and hesitation such as appeared in yesterday's trading. Only a nominal amount of business was transacted in the first half hour. Lower prices were made all through the list, but changes were slight and were due to the absence of demand rather than to bear pressure. The market apparently had settled down for an indefinite period of waiting, pending developments in the Mexican situation.

Noon—The morning's movement came to little. After the slight early decline, prices held steady for a time and subsequently hardened slowly. Early heaviness was due principally to continued realizing on a small scale. The large speculative interest held aloof. In the absence of leadership or of any developments with influence on financial affairs, traders were conservative in their dealings and the market developed no definite trend. Some of the international shares were heavy for a time, but London did little in this market. A better demand appeared toward noon and quotations were marked up to about a level with the preceding close. Bonds were steady. Rock Island collaterals were bought in round amounts and advanced 2 points. Call money, firmer, at 1¾. Mercantile paper, 2¼ @ 3. Exchanges, $216,173,083; balances, $16,846,198.

The President has not yet selected any one to substitute Mr. Olney on the board and is not likely to make a choice for several days, as he is canvassing the field of available men. It was said by persons close to the President that in all likelihood a New England man would be chosen, so the geographical representation might be symmetrical. C. S. Hamlin, now Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who comes from Boston, has been mentioned for the place among others. It is unlikely the governorship of the board will go to the New Englander, but that one of the four men already selected for the board will be its governor. Either W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, Ala., or Paul M. Warburg of New York may be selected.

NEW YORK, May 6, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper at 72½, American Locomotive 31½, American Smelting and Refining 62½, Anaconda 33, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe 95, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 92½, Canadian Pacific 192½, Central Leather 35¾, Chicago & Northwestern 133¾, Erie 28½, Missouri Pacific 20¾, New York Central 92¾, Northern Pacific 110, Pennsylvania 111, Reading 164¾, Southern Pacific 91¾, Union Pacific 155¾, United States Steel 59¾, Wabash preferred 3¾, Westinghouse Electric 74½.

Speculation was characterized during today's early market by the growing dullness and hesitation such as appeared in yesterday's trading. Only a nominal amount of business was transacted in the first half hour. Lower prices were made all through the list, but changes were slight and were due to the absence of demand rather than to bear pressure. The market apparently had settled down for an indefinite period of waiting, pending developments in the Mexican situation.

Noon—The morning's movement came to little. After the slight early decline, prices held steady for a time and subsequently hardened slowly. Early heaviness was due principally to continued realizing on a small scale. The large speculative interest held back. In the absence of leadership or of any developments with influence on financial affairs, traders were conservative in their dealings and the market developed no definite trend. Some of the international shares were heavy for a time, but London did little in this market. A better demand appeared toward noon and quotations were marked up to about a level with the preceding close. Bonds were steady. Rock Island collateral 5s were bought in round amounts and advanced 2 points. Call money, firmer, at 1¾. Mercantile paper, 2¼ @ 4. Exchanges, $316,173,083; balances, $16,816,08.

BELMONT DIVORCE GRANTED

Justice Greenbaum Allows Alimony of One Hundred Dollars a Month.

Mrs Ethel Lorraine Belmont has won her separation suit against Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont. Alimony at the rate of $100 a month is allowed. Mrs. Belmont is now abroad.

In fixing the amount of the alimony Justice Greenbaum of the New York supreme court alluded to the testimony to the effect that August Belmont cut off his son's allowance of $3,000 a year upon learning of the marriage, and that Raymond Belmont left his father's employ, giving up a salary of $900 a year.

"It is evident that an award of alimony may not be based upon the assumption that a generous parents, possessed of large means, may be expected to continue his voluntary bounties upon his son. There is no obligation upon the parent to continue his son's support after his majority, and no power is vested in the court to cause the parents to bestow his benefactions upon his son."

When Raymond Belmont became of age in 1910, according to the opinion, he had a fortune of $143,284. In three years he spent $73,000, "almost constantly in the company of the plaintiff," the opinion finds, besides giving about $30,000 in cash to the plaintiff. The money, said the court, was spent "in a life of pleasure and reckless squanderings," and the fortune has sunk to about $11,300, which brings an income of about $2,000 a year. The alimony is calculated on that income and an earning capacity of $900 a year."

TO SUPPLY THE UNITED CONGREGATIONAL PULPIT.

The pulpit of the United Congregational Church will be occupied during the remaining Sundays of May as follows: May 10, by Professor Daniel Evans, D. D., of Andover Theological Seminary; May 17, Rev. William Ewer, D. D., secretary of the Congregational Sunday School and Publication Society; May 24, Rev. Cornelius Patten, D. D., field secretary of the American Board of commissioners for Foreign Missions; May 31, Rev. Vincent Rau, pastor of the North Congregational Church, Cambridge, Mass. The pastor-elect, Mr. C. Edwin Sheon, will begin his work here Sunday, June 7.

CHERRY NECK WATER MAIN COMPLETED.

The water main to the Huntington Wilson cottage at Cherry neck has been completed and water is turned on. This ends what can be called quite a job. Pipe was laid nearly 5,000 feet to connect the house, and about one fifth of this was through some of the toughest rock on the island. Right at the turn by the Clark house and the cottage of the Gooseberry Island Club the diggers met this real rock, and it was hard. Then they had some submarine work along by the Lily pond and further west near the Clark cottage. There was already an abundance of salt water, as Mr. Wilson found in the March storm; now it has soft water also.

SUBSCRIPTION DANCE BY THE SAYESA CLUB.

Hickey, James Moore, Arthur O'Sullivan, George V. O'Connor, Jerry J. Sullivan, J. Sherman Mellowan and Anatole Maynard.

NEWPORT REPRESENTED.

Rhode Island Odd Fellows Elect Officers at Session in Providence.

The annual session of the Rhode Island Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, in Providence Tuesday, had a large attendance. Retiring Grand Master George H. Curtis presided and in his annual report spoke of the gain in membership and activity among the subordinate lodges.

Grand Secretary William H. T. Moseley reported a number of lodges which are deserving of special mention "for the progressive spirit which has enabled them to accomplish splendid results," and gave Rhode Island Lodge of this city the first place honor in this respect.

His statistical report for the year was as follows: Number of lodges, 47; contributing members, last report, 6,306; non-contributing members, last report, 63; members initiated, 353; admitted by card, 18; re-instated, 18; transferred to non-contributing roll, 11; total, 6,780. From this total are deducted: Errors in last report, 5; withdrawn by card, 45; dropped, 164; transferred to non-contributing roll, 11; contributing members deceased, 122; non-contributing members deceased, 6; total, 414. There was a gain in the contributing membership of 57. The total number of contributing members December 31, 1913, was 6,363; total number of non-contributing members December 31, 1913, 67, making the total number of members December 31, 1913, 6,430. The total receipts of the subordinate lodges for the year were $477,493.72; total disbursements, $86,396.91; net assets on December 31, 1913, $91,096.81; total amount paid for relief, $38,687.24.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Grand Master—Albert D. Pierce of James Wood Lodge, Providence.
Deputy Grand Master—Orloff I. Ellsworth of Roger Williams Lodge, Providence.
Grand Warden—Ellis A. Cranston of Westminster Lodge, Providence.
Grand Secretary—William H. T. Moseley of Eagle Lodge, Providence.
Grand Treasurer—J. Milton Payne of Good Samaritan Lodge, Pawtucket.
Grand Representative—George H. Curtis of Enterprise Lodge, Pawtucket.
Trustee for I. O. O. F. Home Fund, for three years—C. F. Newcomb, P. G. M., Hope Lodge.

After the luncheon the Grand Lodge re-convened the new officers were installed, and the grand master-elect made the following appointments:

Grand Chaplain—William H. Lowe.
Grand Marshal—Henry N. Burnett.
Grand Guardian—Harvey McLean.
Grand Conductor—George H. Sherman.
Grand Herald—William D. Babbitt.

Among the district deputy grand masters appointed were Past Noble Grand Eben Ravnor of Rhode Island Lodge for district No. 16, which includes the lodges in Newport and Portsmouth, and Edith M. Peckham for district No. 33, which includes the Rebekah lodges in this vicinity.

Rhode Island Lodge is represented on the committees by Andrew K. McMahon on correspondence and Allen C. Griffith on state of the order.

DECIDEDLY HUMAN.

"In the Bishop's Carriage" Deals With Career of a Female Thief.

"The Only Son," this week's offering by the Malley-Denison Stock Company at the Opera House, can easily be classed as one of the very finest plays by the company since its first appearance here a year ago. Next week the company will give an elaborate production of "In the Bishop's Carriage." The dramatization of Miss Marium Michelson's novel was a happy inspiration of Channing Pollock, and its success was instantaneous. Not unlike "The Pit," the story of life on the Chicago board of trade, which Mr. Pollock also adapted for stage purposes, "In the Bishop's Carriage" contains much that is new. The story differs from the novel in many respects, but the characters are the same.

"In the Bishop's Carriage" is not held up as something exceptional or extraordinary, but as interesting and decidedly human. Melodrama it might be called, for it had the brain and bone and blood of real and vital life its leading character, "Nance Olden," is a sort of female "Raffles," and the play deals with the exciting incidents and career of a clever female thief. Mr. Pollock has built around this character a sympathetic interest which attracts and retains a firm hold on its auditors.

"MIKE" REGAN TO PITCH.

Trojans Will Try to Better Previous Records With the Fall Rivers.

"Mike" Regan, who is to be the regular pitcher of the Trojans until "Jake" Sheehan's return from college, is a Fall River boy who was developed in South park in the Spindle City. He began when a youngster and after having great success in the Fall River City League went to Worcester Academy and during his stay there carried the team to the front rank in preparatory school base ball. Last season he pitched for Phillipsdale in the Providence Amateur League, doing fine work. His greatest game was the 17-inning contest between Revere and Phillipsdale last year, Hanley, the former Manhattan College and New York American pitcher, was in the box for Revere and the record of the game shows that Regan out-pitched his more experienced opponent, although he lost the game by a 2-1 score. "Bobby" Walling, now playing third base for the Trojans, was at short stop for Revere in the same game.

With Coughlin or Eastwood working for Fall River and Regan for the Trojans, Sunday's game looks like a pitchers' battle. The Fall Rivers have always shown good ball here and in no game the Trojans have played against them have the locals scored more than three runs. It will be interesting to see whether the present Trojan aggregation can better this record.

ASSEMBLY FINALLY ADJOURNS.

House Wins Victory Over Senate on Board of Control and Supply.

Attempt to Raise the State Tax and Put-in-Bay Relief Measures Fail.

The General Assembly has finally adjourned. The senate receded from its position whereby it attempted to force an item of $417,000 into the appropriation bill for expenditure by the Board of Control and Supply. The house had its way in that the moneys have been appropriated to be spent among the various institutions as apportioned. The victory won by the house is one in a measure affecting the principle for which the house has been striving during the entire session, that of having no members of the Assembly serving the state in other paid positions. The last session was 13 hours in duration, the final adjournment coming at 2:04 this morning.

The attempt to change the state tax was defeated and Newport will save about $20,000 thereby. This was one of the last bills which came up in the senate, and was introduced under the plea of raising $200,000 for public highways and the construction of bridges. It called for a special state tax of three cents; that is, raising the nine-cent tax of last year to 12 cents. The senate passed this and it went to the house very late. By concerted action on the part of Representatives Levy and Sullivan of this city, an attack was made on the bill with such force that the house voted not to concur.

The senate committee on finance cut down the militia committee's figures on Put-in-Bay relief to cover only the actual hospital expense and doctor's fees. In this form the senate passed the resolution, but before it had acted the house had adjourned and no relief has been provided for the men and families who died or were sick in consequence of fever contracted on that expedition.

The house departed from customary parliamentary practice by sending notice to the upper body that it was about to adjourn, and it did adjourn two hours before the senate, the time of the latter being given as the hour of the termination of the 1914 session. The session was 68 days in length, eight days over time.

Among the acts passed on the closing day was one authorizing the Southern New England Railway Company to lease all its property in the state to the Central Vermont Railway Company. Both roads are subsidiaries of the Grand Trunk railway.

Other measures included an act making it punishable to be found in possession of cocaine and similar drugs without a certificate from a physician, an act increasing the tax on motor vehicles from $2 to $7, a bond issue of $617,000 for state charitable institutions, an act levying a $1 poll tax on every male citizen of the state, a resolution providing that the Tax Commission shall prepare a report and submit it to the governor by October 1 on a means of increasing the state's income, to be accompanied by a draft for proper legislation, a resolution authorizing the governor to appoint metropolitan park policemen, an act limiting the erection of billboards, to become effective January 1, 1915; an act authorizing credit unions, and a resolution appointing a special joint committee for the investigation of the management of the institutions managed by the Board of Control and Supply and the State Board of Charities.

The proposed special road tax called forth in the senate a strong arraignment of the tax law of 1912 and its father, Senator Bennett. The fact that the committee did not recommend an increase of the tax on intangible property caused some harsh words.

The Providence subway bill, over which there had been quite a fight, was pigeon holed by request of the Providence committee.

The members of the committee on the revision of the election laws were voted $500 each, but not before the house scored the legislators for advocating pay for themselves. There was an attempt to reduce the pay to $300, but the house finally concurred with the senate.

An attempt on the part of Mr. Lawton of this city, to have the resolution for the purchase of Mount Hope park taken from the finance committee was defeated.

The effort to take the bill on revision of the milk laws out of the committee also failed.

Another attempt which failed, but which brought into the limelight a feeling which has been much in evidence for the past few weeks, was a resolution of disapproval of the activity of the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission in influencing legislation.

Lieutenant Governor Burchard in his farewell to the Senate stated that he would never preside over the body again, and when questioned said that was just what he meant. This of course means that he will not again be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

"Admiral Fletcher," says the Detroit Free Press, "is showing that he can run a city as well as a battleship." You ought to see him run a Mexican.—

A SUCCESSFUL DEBUT.

St. George's Church Dramatic Club Presents Comedy Play "Daddy."

The St. George's Church Dramatic Club made a successful debut in a public performance of the comedy, "Daddy," at Trinity Guild house Tuesday evening. The members who presented the play, several of whom made their first public appearance, established themselves as amateurs of no small ability. The inclement weather kept away many who had intended to be present, but there was nevertheless a good audience, which expressed its pleasure by frequent laughter and applause.

The play tells of the troubles of a young woman, Nellie Brown, who has attracted the attention of many admirers and become involved in many difficulties with her love affairs. "Daddy" Brown has a hard time in straightening out things, but in the end succeeds satisfactorily.

Mr. Henry Wilkinson, who was recently successful in a similar part in "A Pair of Spectacles," was Mr. Wrexson Brown, the "Daddy" of the play and gave the part a conscientious and artistic interpretation. Miss Margaret M. Edwards was pleasing as Nellie, making a success of her first public appearance on the stage. Mrs. Louis H. Scott as Mrs. Chester, Mr. Brown's sister; Miss Ethel C. Plummer as Mrs. Brown, Mr. Lewis B. Plummer as Paul Chester, a young doctor, one of Nellie's lovers; Mr. R. Carter Coudray as Teddy Brown, a callow college youth; Miss Florence Plummer as Jane, the Browns' cook, and Mr. Harold S. Gifford as Thompson, the butler, were all good, each contributing to the success of the performance.

The stage settings were in the competent hands of Mrs. Margaret H. Rice, the making-up was directed by Mr. Joseph S. Milne and Miss Louise M. Heard, the prompting was by Miss Ethel C. Muenchinger and the general direction of the play was in charge of Mrs. Edward A. Bates.

After the performance Hodgson's orchestra played for dancing, in which a large number participated.

BEATS THE OLD LOUNGE.

Correspondent Complains of a Nuisance on Duke Street.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

That story about the old lounge out on Van Zandt avenue all this time is a good one, but I have something to beat it. At the most, the old lounge has been on the sidewalk but a few months, while the nuisance I have in mind has existed so long that when I asked a man whose business keeps him in the vicinity most of the time if this would be the fifth summer of continuous performance he thought that was about the right figure. Five years, or anything like that, for turning a gutter into a cesspool, and that so near Washington square that it can be readily seen by pedestrians on that leading thoroughfare, and no sign that it is ever going to be any better—I think this beats the old lounge out on Van Zandt avenue. Talk about "Clean-up Day!" Will the C. C. C. step into Duke street?

Is There No Relief?

Newport, May 5, 1914.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Bishop Perry will be present at St. Columba, the Berkeley Memorial Chapel, May 10, to administer the right of confirmation.

The meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, to have been held Tuesday at the Methodist parsonage, was omitted on account of the rain.

Mrs. Alden P. Barker, who has been in the Newport Hospital the past 13 days, has returned to her home on Paradise avenue.

Following the meeting at the Methodist Episcopal Church next week of the Ministers' Union, Rev. W. Brenton Greene, Jr., will give an illustrated lecture. The women of the church will serve lunch at noon.

The May day party to be held at Holy Cross guild house by the members of the Junior Auxiliary will include a new form of entertainment, called a "left-handed social," which will be in charge of the former director, Mrs. Phoebe E. T. Manchester.

DEATH OF MRS. PARTINGTON.

Some of the middle-aged readers of the News will recall Mrs. L. C. Partington, a prominent temperance worker here in the seventies. She lived later in Portland, Maine, and died there some months ago, aged 82 years. She attained such prominence in the Sons of Temperance that a recent session of the Grand Division of New York passed a resolution to her memory. Her record includes the recognition of her ability as "a great lecturer on temperance in England, Scotland, Canada and the United States, doing a great work for the noble cause." She held the highest office in the Grand Division of Maine and was a member of the National Division.

MIX-UP ON THE BIDS.

Lawton Explains That His Coggeshall School Plan Was Like Architects'.

Mistake in Proposal for the Heating and the Whole Matter Postponed.

The Board of Aldermen held the monthly meeting Tuesday evening, when the bills were audited. Mr. H. C. Lawton, whose bid for the Coggeshall School addition was not considered because it was supposed to be based on a plan different from that of the architect, was present to explain that his plan was essentially the same as that of the architect and all changes in the matter of detail had been made after he had the permission of the architect, and hence his bid and his plan came within the advertisement. The board decided to postpone action until the architect could be present. Later it developed that J. J. Lynch & Co., the lowest bidder, would not take the heating contract, having made a mistake in figuring on one boiler instead of two; the next bidder bid only on the whole building. This made Mr. Lawton the lowest bidder ready to fulfil his bid. The matter of bids on the heating and ventilation went over to the next meeting, which will be held this evening.

The Second Baptist Church asked for a new sidewalk or repairs to the present walk in front of its new parsonage on Bull street. There was talk about that public convenience on Touro Park and it developed that the Park Commission desires it placed on Aquidneck park and the committee favors placing it under the band stand, the same as on the Mall. Mayor Boyle presided and all the members were present.

H. C. Lawton, one of the bidders for the heating and ventilating of the Coggeshall School addition, asked permission to explain his bid. It appears that there were some things about the plans as prepared by Mr. Weaver which did not seem to him exactly right, and after consulting him about the matter the architect told him to make suggestions as to alterations in plans to suit himself and it would be all right. He had prepared an entirely new plan, but it was simply the architect's plan with certain slight modifications, suggested by him in accordance with the permission received from the architect. He did not think the location of the boilers in the architect's plan the proper location.

Alderman Hughes thought the architect ought to be present if his work was to be criticised and the point was raised where Mr. Lawton stood, his price being far above the lowest bidder. Then it developed that the lowest bidder, J. J. Lynch & Co., would not take the job and the next lowest, R. A. Smith, had put in a bid for heating only, in connection with the whole construction, and so was out of it. This made Mr. Lawton's bid the lowest. Aside from this, Mayor Boyle said any one who felt he had a grievance had the right to appear before the board and should be given a hearing.

In view of the explanation as to other bids and what Mr. Lawton said, the matter was postponed to the next meeting, when it was hoped to have the architect present. With this arrangement Mr. Lawton seemed perfectly satisfied.

The monthly bills were taken up, and after the usual machine audit were approved and ordered paid in what is called finance report No. 4, which is as follows:

Board of Health	$1,351.49
City Asylum	429.03
Fire department	1,217.19
Highways and bridges	14,324.96

Indexing and preserving records	55.50
Dog fund	92.00
Touro Synagogue fund	2.90
	$26,836.53

The report of the street commissioner for four weeks ending April 29 was received. It showed expenditures of $7,825.31 for labor and $14,290.19 for material, a total of $22,115.50.

The report of the inspector of nuisances for April, which was received, showed 855 inspections, 405 of which were to places with inside or non-freezing closets. The mayor looked over the report enough to see that 11 dirty cellars were inspected and 7 were cleaned, leaving a balance of 4 for the "Clean Up Day" committee. He suggested that the report would be of value to that committee.

BELMONT DIVORCE GRANTED

Mrs. Ethel Lorraine Belmont has won her separation suit against Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont. Alimony at the rate of $100 a month is allowed. Mrs. Belmont is now abroad.

In fixing the amount of the alimony Justice Greenbaum of the New York supreme court alluded to the testimony to the effect that August Belmont cut off his son's allowance of $6,600 a year upon learning of the marriage, and that Raymond Belmont left his father's employ, giving up a salary of $900 a year.

"It is evident that an award of alimony may not be based upon the assumption that a generous parents, possessed of large means, may be expected to continue his voluntary bounties upon his son. There is no obligation upon the parent to continue his son's support after his majority, and no power is vested in the court to cause the parents to bestow his benefactions upon his son."

When Raymond Belmont became of age in 1910, according to the opinion, he had a fortune of $143,284. In three years he spent $73,000, "almost constantly in the company of the plaintiff," the opinion finds, besides giving about $30,000 in cash to the plaintiff. The money, said the court, was spent "in a life of pleasure and reckless squanderings," and the fortune has sunk to about $14,360, which brings an income of about $2,000 a year. The alimony is calculated on that income and an earning capacity of $900 a year."

TO SUPPLY THE UNITED CONGREGATIONAL PULPIT.

The pulpit of the United Congregational Church will be occupied during the remaining Sundays of May as follows: May 10, by Professor Daniel Evans, D. D., of Andover Theological Seminary; May 17, Rev. William Ewing, D. D., secretary of the Congregational Sunday School and Publication Society; May 24, Rev. Cornelius Patton, D. D., field secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; May 31, Rev. Vincent Ravi, pastor of the North Congregational Church, Cambridge, Mass. The pastor-elect, Mr. C. Edwin Silcox, will begin his work here Sunday, June 7.

CHERRY NECK WATER MAIN COMPLETED.

The water main to the Huntington Wilson cottage at Cherry neck has been completed and water is turned on. This ends what can be called quite a job. Pipe was laid nearly 5,000 feet to connect this house, and about one fifth of this was through some of the toughest rock on the island. Right at the turn by the Clark house and the cottage of the Gooseberry Island Club the diggers met this real rock, and it was hard. Then they had some submarine work along by the Lily pond and farther west near the Clark cottage. There was already an abundance of salt water, as Mr. Wilson found in the March storm; now he has soft water also.

SUBSCRIPTION DANCE BY THE SAYESA CLUB.

At the subscription dance to be given by members of the Sayesa Club in Masonic hall Friday evening the music will be furnished by the Newport Mandolin orchestra of 10 pieces. Hickey, James Moore, Arthur O'Sullivan, George V. O'Connor, Jerry J. Sullivan, J. Sherman McGowan and Anatole Maynard.

NEWPORT REPRESENTED.

Rhode Island Odd Fellows Elect Officers at Session in Providence.

The annual session of the Rhode Island Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, in Providence Tuesday, had a large attendance. Retiring Grand Master George H. Curtis presided and in his annual report spoke of the gain in membership and activity among the subordinate lodges.

Grand Secretary William H. T. Moseley reported a number of lodges which are deserving of special mention "for the progressive spirit which has enabled them to accomplish splendid results," and gave Rhode Island Lodge of this city the first place honor in this respect.

His statistical report for the year was as follows: Number of lodges, 47; contributing members, last report, 6,396; non-contributing members, last report, 63; members initiated, 359; admitted by card, 18; re-instated, 18; transferred to non-contributing roll, 11; total, 6,780. From this total are deducted: Errors in last report, 5; withdrawn by card, 45; dropped, 164; transferred to non-contributing roll, 11; contributing members deceased, 122; non-contributing members deceased, 6; total, 414. There was a gain in the contributing membership of 57. The total number of contributing members December 31, 1913, was 6,363; total number of non-contributing members December 31, 1913, 67, making the total number of members December 31, 1913, 6,430. The total receipts of the subordinate lodges for the year were $177,492.72; total disbursements, $86,296.81; net assets on December 31, 1913, $91,096.81; total amount paid for relief, $38,687.24.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Grand Master—Albert D. Pierce of James Wood Lodge, Providence.
Deputy Grand Master—Orloff I. Ellsworth of Roger Williams Lodge, Providence.
Grand Warden—Ellis A. Cranston of Westminster Lodge, Providence.
Grand Secretary—William H. T. Moseley of Eagle Lodge, Providence.
Grand Treasurer—J. Milton Payne of Good Samaritan Lodge, Pawtucket.
Grand Representative—George H. Curtis of Enterprise Lodge, Pawtucket.
Trustee for I. O. O. F. Home Fund, for three years—C. F. Newcomb, P. G., M., Hope Lodge.

After the luncheon the Grand Lodge re-convened the new officers were installed, and the grand master-elect made the following appointments:

Grand Chaplain—William H. Lowe.
Grand Marshal—Henry N. Barrett.
Grand Guardian—Harvey McLean.
Grand Conductor—George H. Sherman.
Grand Herald—William D. Babbitt.

Among the district deputy grand masters appointed were Past Noble Grand Eben Raynor of Rhode Island Lodge for district No. 16, which includes the lodges in Newport and Portsmouth, and Edith M. Peckham for district No. 33, which includes the Rebekah lodges in this vicinity.

Rhode Island Lodge is represented on the committees by Andrew K. McMahon on correspondence and Allen C. Griffith on state of the order.

DECIDEDLY HUMAN.

"In the Bishop's Carriage" Deals With Career of a Female Thief.

"The Only Son," this week's offering by the Malley-Denison Stock Company at the Opera House, can easily be classed as one of the very finest plays by the company since its first appearance here a year ago. Next week the company will give an elaborate production of "In the Bishop's Carriage." The dramatization of Miss Marhum Michelson's novel was a happy inspiration of Channing Pollock, and its success was instantaneous. Not unlike "The Pit," the story of life on the Chicago board of trade, which Mr. Pollock also adapted for stage purposes, "In the Bishop's Carriage" contains much that is new. The story differs from the novel in many respects, but the characters are the same.

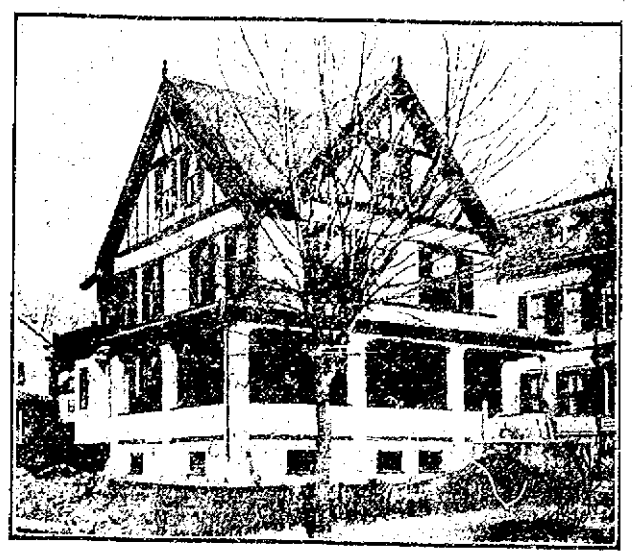

"In the Bishop's Carriage" is not held up as something exceptional or extraordinary, but as interesting and decidedly human. Melodrama it might be called, for it had the brain and bone and blood of real and vital life. Its leading character, "Nance Olden," is a sort of female "Raffles," and the play deals with the exciting incidents and career of a clever female thief. Mr. Pollock has built around this character a sympathetic interest which attracts and retains a firm hold on its auditors.

"MIKE" REGAN TO PITCH.

Trojans Will Try to Better Previous Records With the Fall Rivers.

"Mike" Regan, who is to be the regular pitcher of the Trojans until "Jake" Sheehan's return from college, is a Fall River boy who was developed in South park in the Spindle City. He began when a youngster and after having great success in the Fall River City League went to Worcester Academy and during his stay there carried the team to the front rank in preparatory school base ball. Last season he pitched for Philipsdale in the Providence Amateur League, doing fine work. His greatest game was the 17-inning contest between Revere and Philipsdale last year. Hanley, the former Manhattan College and New York American pitcher, was in the box for Revere and the record of the game shows that Regan out-pitched his more experienced opponent, although he lost the game by a 2-1 score. "Bobby" Walling, now playing third base for the Trojans, was at short stop for Revere in the same game.

With Coughlin or Eastwood working for Fall River and Regan for the Trojans, Sunday's game looks like a pitchers' battle. The Fall Rivers have always shown good ball here and in no game the Trojans have played against them have the locals scored more than three runs. It will be interesting to see whether the present Trojan aggregation can better the record.

ASSEMBLY FINALLY ADJOURNS.

House Wins Victory Over Senate on Board of Control and Supply.

The General Assembly has finally adjourned. The senate receded from its position whereby it attempted to force an item of $417,000 into the appropriation bill for expenditure by the Board of Control and Supply. The house had its way in that the moneys have been appropriated to be spent among the various institutions as apportioned. The victory won by the house is one in a measure affecting the principle for which the house has been striving during the entire session, that of having no members of the Assembly serving the state in other paid positions. The last session was 13 hours in duration, the final adjournment coming at 2:04 this morning.

The attempt to change the state tax was defeated and Newport will save about $20,000 thereby. This was one of the last bills which came up in the senate, and was introduced under the plea of raising $200,000 for public highways and the construction of bridges. It called for a special state tax of three cents; that is, raising the nine-cent tax of last year to 12 cents. The senate passed this and it went to the house very late. By concerted action on the part of Representatives Levy and Sullivan of this city, an attack was made on the bill with such force that the house voted not to concur.

The senate committee on finance cut down the militia committee's figures on Put-in-Bay relief to cover only the actual hospital expense and doctors's fees. In this form the senate passed the resolution, but before it had acted the house had adjourned and no relief has been provided for the men and families who died or were sick in consequence of fever contracted on that expedition.

The house departed from customary parliamentary practice by sending notice to the upper body that it was about to adjourn, and it did adjourn two hours before the senate, the time of the latter being given as the hour of the termination of the 1914 session. The session was 68 days in length, eight days over time.

Among the acts passed on the closing day was one authorizing the Southern New England Railway Company to lease all its property in the state to the Central Vermont Railway Company. Both roads are subsidiaries of the Grand Trunk railway.

Other measures included an act making it punishable to be found in possession of cocaine and similar drugs without a certificate from a physician, an act increasing the tax on motor vehicles from $2 to $7, a bond issue of $617,000 for state charitable institutions, an act levying a $1 poll tax on every male citizen of the state, a resolution providing that the Tax Commission shall prepare a report and submit it to the governor by October 1 on a means of increasing the state's income, to be accompanied by a draft for proper legislation, a resolution authorizing the governor to appoint metropolitan park policemen, an act limiting the erection of billboards, to become effective January 1, 1915; an act authorizing credit unions, and a resolution appointing a special joint committee for the investigation of the management of the institutions managed by the Board of Control and Supply and the State Board of Charities.

The proposed special road tax called forth in the senate a strong arraignment of the tax law of 1912 and its father, Senator Bennett. The fact that the committee did not recommend an increase of the tax on intangible property caused some harsh words.

The Providence subway bill, over which there had been quite a fight, was pigeon holed by request of the Providence committee.

The members of the committee on the revision of the election laws were voted $500 each, but not before the house scored the legislators for advocating pay for themselves. There was an attempt to reduce the pay to $300, but the house finally concurred with the senate.

An attempt on the part of Mr. Lawton of this city, to have the resolution for the purchase of Mount Hope park taken from the finance committee was defeated.

The effort to take the bill on revision of the milk laws out of the committee also failed.

Another attempt which failed, but which brought into the limelight a feeling which has been much in evidence for the past few weeks, was a resolution of disapproval of the activity of the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission in influencing legislation.

Lieutenant Governor Burchard in his farewell to the Senate stated that he would never preside over the body again, and when questioned said that was just what he meant. This of course means that he will not again be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

"Admiral Fletcher," says the Detroit Free Press, "is showing that he can run a city as well as a battleship. You ought to see him run a Mexican."

A SUCCESSFUL DEBUT.

St. George's Church Dramatic Club Presents Comedy Play "Daddy."

The St. George's Church Dramatic Club made a successful debut in a public performance of the comedy, "Daddy," at Trinity Guild house Tuesday evening. The members who presented the play, several of whom made their first public appearance, stabilished themselves as amateurs of no small ability. The inclement weather kept away many who had intended to be present, but there was nevertheless a good audience, which expressed its pleasure by frequent laughter and applause.

The play tells of the troubles of a young woman, Nellie Brown, who has attracted the attention of many admirers and become involved in many difficulties with her love affairs. "Daddy" Brown has a hard time in straightening out things, but in the end succeeds satisfactorily.

Mr. Henry Wilkinson, who was recently successful in a similar part in "A Pair of Spectacles," was Mr. Wrexson Brown, the "Daddy" of the play and gave the part a conscientious and artistic interpretation. Miss Margaret M. Edwards was pleasing as Nellie, making a success of her first public appearance on the stage. Mrs. Louis H. Scott as Mrs. Chester, Mr. Brown's sister; Miss Ethel C. Plummer as Mrs. Brown, Mr. Lewis B. Plummer as Paul Chester, a young doctor, one of Nellie's lovers; Mr. R. Carter Coudray as Teddy Brown, a callow college youth; Miss Florence Plummer as Jane, the Browns' cook, and Mr. Harold S. Gifford as Thompson, the butler, were all good, each contributing to the success of the performance.

The stage settings were in the competent hands of Mrs. Margaret H. Rice, the making-up was directed by Mr. Joseph S. Milne and Miss Louise M. Heard, the prompting was by Miss Ethel C. Muenchinger and the general direction of the play was in charge of Mrs. Edward A. Bates.

After the performance Hodgson's orchestra played for dancing, in which a large number participated.

BEATS THE OLD LOUNGE.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

That story about the old lounge out on Van Zandt avenue all this time is a good one, but I have something to beat it. At the most, the old lounge has been on the sidewalk but a few months, while the nuisance I have in mind has existed so long that when I asked a man whose business keeps him in the vicinity most of the time if this would be the fifth summer of continuous performance he thought that was about the rigat figure. Five years, or anything like that, for turning a gutter into a cesspool, and that so near Washington square that it can be readily seen by pedestrians on that leading thoroughfare, and no sign that it is ever going to be any better—I think this beats the old lounge out on Van Zandt avenue. Talk about "Clean-up Day!" Will the C. C. C. step into Duke street?

Is There No Relief?

Newport, May 5, 1914.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Bishop Perry will be present at St. Columba, the Berkeley Memorial Chapel, May 10, to administer the right of confirmation.

The meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, to have been held Tuesday at the Methodist parsonage, was omitted on account of the rain.

Mrs. Alden P. Barker, who has been in the Newport Hospital the past 18 days, has returned to her home on Paradise avenue.

Following the meeting at the Methodist Episcopal Church next week of the Ministers' Union, Rev. W. Brenton Greene, Jr., will give an illustrated lecture. The women of the church will serve lunch at noon.

The May day party to be held at Holy Cross guild house by the members of the Junior Auxiliary will include a new form of entertainment called a "left-handed social," which will be in charge of the former director, Mrs. Phoebe E. T. Manchester.

DEATH OF MRS. PARTINGTON.

Some of the middle-aged readers of the News will recall Mrs. L. C. Partington, a prominent temperance worker here in the seventies. She lived later in Portland, Maine, and died there some months ago, aged 82 years. She attained such prominence in the Sons of Temperance that a recent session of the Grand Division of New York passed a resolution to her memory. Her record includes the recognition of her ability as "a great lecturer on temperance in England, Scotland, Canada and the United States, doing a great work for the noble cause." She held the highest office in the Grand Division of Maine and was a member of the National Division.

MIX-UP ON THE BIDS.

Lawton Explains That His Coggeshall School Plan Was Like Architects'.

Mistake in Proposal for the Heating and the Whole Matter Postponed.

The Board of Aldermen held the monthly meeting Tuesday evening, when the bills were audited. Mr. H. C. Lawton, whose bid for the Coggeshall School addition was not considered because it was supposed to be based on a plan different from that of the architect, was present to explain that his plan was essentially the same as that of the architect and all changes in the matter of detail had been made after he had the permission of the architect, and hence his bid and his plan came within the advertisement. The board decided to postpone action until the architect could be present. Later it developed that J. J. Lynch & Co., the lowest bidder, would not take the heating contract, having made a mistake in figuring on one boiler instead of two; the next bidder bid only on the whole building. This made Mr. Lawton the lowest bidder ready to fulfil his bid. The matter of bids on the heating and ventilation went over to the next meeting, which will be held this evening.

The Second Baptist Church asked for a new sidewalk or repairs to the present walk in front of its new parsonage on Bull street. There was talk about that public convenience on Touro Park and it developed that the Park Commission desires it placed on Aquidneck park and the committee favors placing it under the band stand, the same as on the Mall. Mayor Boyle presided and all the members were present.

H. C. Lawton, one of the bidders for the heating and ventilating of the Coggeshall School addition, asked permission to explain his bid. It appears that there were some things about the plans as prepared by Mr. Weaver which did not seem to him exactly right, and after consulting him about the matter the architect told him to make suggestions as to alterations in plans to suit himself and it would be all right. He had prepared an entirely new plan, but it was simply the architect's plan with certain slight modifications, suggested by him in accordance with the permission received from the architect. He did not think the location of the boilers in the architect's plan the proper location.

Alderman Hughes thought the architect ought to be present if his work was to be criticised and the point was raised where Mr. Lawton stood, his price being far above the lowest bidder. Then it developed that the lowest bidder, J. J. Lynch & Co., would not take the job and the next lowest, R. A. Smith, had put in a bid for heating only, in connection with the whole construction, and so was out of it. This made Mr. Lawton's bid the lowest. Aside from this, Mayor Boyle said any one who felt he had a grievance had the right to appear before the board and should be given a hearing.

In view of the explanation as to other bids and what Mr. Lawton said, the matter was postponed to the next meeting, when it was hoped to have the architect present. With this arrangement Mr. Lawton seemed perfectly satisfied.

The monthly bills were taken up, and after the usual machine audit were approved and ordered paid in what is called finance report No. 4, which is as follows:

Board of Health	$1,351.82
City Asylum	429.03
Fire department	1,217.19
Highways and bridges	14,324.96

	$26,835.53

The report of the street commissioner for four weeks ending April 23 was received. It showed expenditures of $7,825.31 for labor and $14,290.19 for material, a total of $22,115.50.

The report of the inspector of nuisances for April, which was received, showed 855 inspections, 405 of which were to places with inside or non-freezing closets. The mayor looked over the report enough to see that 11 dirty cellars were inspected and 7 were cleaned, leaving a balance of 4 for the "Clean Up Day" committee. He suggested that the report would be of value to that committee.

"Meet Me at Barney's."

STEINWAYY FAME HAS ENCIRCLED THE WORLD WHEREVER love of music prevails—in the palace of Old World royalty, in the mansion of aristocracy, in the home of the true music lover, everywhere—the

STEINWAY

Is known and preferred above all other pianos. Supremacy of tone and workmanship has achieved this international renown, and four succeeding generations have faithfully upheld the art ideal which produced the first Steinway.
